Location, etc.—This republic is bounded south by Orange river, west and north by Vaal river, east by Basuto territory and the Drakensbergen mountains. It extends from latitude 27° to 31° south; area 42,000 square miles; population 57,000, of which about 14,000 are Dutch, English and other Europeans. The country is well watered, excellent for pasturage for sheep and cattle, and some portions suitable for cultivation. It is a high table land with a climate dry, temperate and salubrious. Good roads communicate with Cape Colony and Port Natal. Coal and iron abound, and gold was discovered in 1854.

Sub-divisions, etc.—The republic is divided into five districts. The capital is Bloemfontein, population 1,100. The political organization is democratic, with an elective president and legislature. The people are well provided with schools and religious instruction; the Dutch Reformed church being the leading denomination. Its distant and isolated state precludes the necessity of any diplomatic or consular relations with the United States.

THE KINGDOM OF WADAY.

BY CHAS. E. WILBUR, A.M.

Danish, German and Italian—Waday. French, Spanish and Portuguese—Uaday. Swedish—Vadia.

Location, Topography, etc.—Waday is a kingdom of Central Africa, lying south of the great desert and west of Darfoor. The natives generally call it Dar-Saleyh, and in Darfoor, Kardofan, and in Bornoo it is called Borgoo. Very little is known of it with any certainty. Its surface is generally level, though there are isolated mountains. In the northern provinces there are large desert tracts, with small water courses interspersed at intervals. The southern portion is better watered and more fertile. The largest town is Kodogus, containing about 600 houses. Although Waday is mainly a pastoral country, immensely rich in horses and flocks of every kind, it has considerable commerce which is subject to a large tax. The principal articles of trade are salt, copper, fine cloths, harnesses, coats of mail, beads, calico, paper, needles, ivory (taken in exchange from other countries for export), and tobacco. It appears that all the large bargains are made in cattle, and the smaller in strips of cotton cloth. There are few manufactures and these are of the rudest kind.

Government, Army, etc.—The kingdom comprises in all about 26 tribes of negroes and Arabs, and is governed by a sultan, who resides at Abeshr, and under whom there are four provincial governors. The army consists of 7,000 cavalry, of whom 1,000 are mail-clad. The country has long been racked with civil wars, and of late few of the sultans have died a natural death. The religion is a mixture of Mohammedanism and paganism, but Dr. Barth found among the negro tribes a translation of the Lord's prayer. It is asserted that the foundation of what is now the kingdom of Waday was laid by Abdel-Kerim as long ago as 1020. The kingdom, according to the accepted accounts, has thus existed for more than 800 years, with a regular succession of sovereigns. The United States is not represented within it, nor has it any trade there. Banks and newspapers are unknown within its limits.

THE KINGDOM OF SACCATOO.

BY CHARLES E. WILBUR, A.M.

French—Sokatará. German and Russian—Sokota. Italian—Sakota. Spanish—Sacato. Portuguese— Sacatas. Swedish—Sakkatu.

Location, etc.—Saccatoo, or Sokoto, is an empire in Soodan, or northern Central Africa, lying between Joliba and Benoowe rivers, and bounded on the north by the Sahara, south by Guinea, east by Bornoo, and west by Gando. It is supposed to extend from about latitude $7^{\circ} 30'$ to 13° north, and from longitude 5° to 12° east. Its population is estimated at from 700,000 to 12,000,000, of whom large numbers are slaves. It comprises nearly the same territory as the ancient territory of Houssa, and forms a part of that extensive region conquered by the Foolahs about the year 1800. It is subdivided into several populous districts. The largest rivers are the Joliba and Benoowe; in the eastern part some rivers flow into Lake Tchad.

Topography.—The surface of the country is very uneven. The higher portions are dry and generally barren, but the valleys are extremely fertile. The climate of the northern portion is salubrious, except in the valleys during the rainy season. The highlands are among the best in Central Africa for grazing.

Products.—The productions are cotton, rice, tobacco, two species of yams, sorghum, tamarinds, plantains. Sheep, cattle, horses and camels are raised. The inhabitants manufacture a considerable quantity of superior iron. The principal cities are Wurno, the capital of the empire and the residence of the Sultan, Sackatoo, Kano, Gakoba, Yauri and Rabba.

Government, Military, etc.—The government is a despotism, the ruler being called Sultan. He appoints governors of the provinces at pleasure, and on their death succeeds to all their effects. The military force consists of about 25,000 cavalry, but on account of the rebellious spirit of some of the provinces, all these troops could not be concentrated in the field.

Religion, Education, etc.—In religion most of the inhabitants are Mohammedans. The children of both sexes of the better classes are taught to read and write Arabic, in which language they say their prayers. According to Dr. Barth, the revenue of the province is about $50,000 in shell money, and as much more in slaves and goods, which is less than it was at a more flourishing period of the empire.

Race Peculiarities.—The inhabitants are a tribe of Foolahs. The opinion of modern travelers is that they are destined to become the dominant race in Negroland, and they have excited more interest and scientific research than almost any other African race. They are superior in intelligence, but inferior in physical development to the surrounding tribes. They are robust and courageous, however, of a reddish black color, with regular features, hair longer and less woolly than that of the common negroes. They have a tradition that their ancestors were white, and certain tribes call themselves white men. No newspapers or banks exist within the kingdom, and no regular commercial relations are held with civilized nations.

THE BARBARY STATE OF TUNIS.

[BELONGING NOMINALLY TO TURKEY.]

BY W. H. M'CARTHY, A.M.

Arabic and Turkish—Toonoos. Danish, French and German—Tunis. Russian—Tunis. Italian—Tunisi.
Spanish—Túnez. Swedish—Tunis. Portuguese—Tunez.

Location, Size, etc.—Tunis, one of the Barbary States, is in Northern Africa. At the north and east of it lies the Mediterranean sea; at the south Tripoli and Beled-eb Jerid; at the west Algeria. Tunis is between 30° and 37° north latitude, and 8° and 11° east longitude, and covers an area of 45,000 square miles, and has a population of about 2,000,000. Mountains, high table lands and extensive sandy plains, make up the topography of Tunis. Cape Bon, a lofty promontory, is one of the principal headlands of Tunis, and is the most northern point of Africa.

Ruins.—There exist many interesting ruins of ancient aqueducts, temples, arches, etc., in Tunis. Under the Romans Tunis formed the province of Africa, its most important cities being Carthage, Hippo, Zaritus, Hadrumetum, Leptis Minor, Thapsus, and Zama.

Cities, Climate, etc.—Tunis, the capital city, is in a commanding position near the sea. Population from 100,000 to 180,000. About three miles to the east of it lie the ruins of Carthage. The climate of Tunis is very healthy, especially near the coast, where the cool sea breezes temper the heat of the tropical sun. The date is the principal food of the inhabitants. Wheat, barley and maize are raised to a considerable extent. Various drugs and dyes are grown, as well as olives, tobacco, cotton and indigo.

Trade, etc.—The chief exports of Tunis are wool, oil, wax, honey, hides, leather, red caps, dates, soap, coral and corn. The chief imports are cotton cloth, alum, iron, lead, manufactured articles from England, wine and brandy from Spain, sugar, coffee, glass, arms, etc. The geological formations are similar to those of Algeria. Silver, lead and copper are found in the mountains, but the mineral products are not much developed.

Government.—Tunis, though a province of Turkey, is governed by the bey, who is only nominally subject to the Ottoman empire. The government is an absolute despotism, and is hereditary in the family of the bey. The revenue comes from taxes, which are often collected by force. The people of Tunis, comprising Arabs, Kabyles, Turks, Moors, Jews and Christians, with various degrees of mixture, are usually good looking, but ignorant and bigoted. The prevailing religion is Mohammedanism.

Recent events have given the government of France a commanding influence in the affairs and administration of the territory of Tunis. Indeed, it is shrewdly suspected that the relations of the French republic with this province are liable to result in its becoming a dependency of the republic, if not absolutely one of its territorial possessions. Nor can it be denied that such a change of ownership would be greatly beneficial to this hitherto ill-governed and benighted region.

THE ISLAND OF ST. HELENA.

[BELONGING TO GREAT BRITAIN.]

BY HENRY A. TODD, A.B.

Danish—Sanet Helena. French—Sainte Hélène. German—Sanct Helena. Russian—Óstrof Svatói Elény.
Italian—Sant'Elena. Spanish, Portuguese and Swedish—Santa-Elena. Turkish—Sant-halen.

Location, Size, etc.—St. Helena, a solitary island, belonging to Great Britain, situated in the Atlantic, in latitude 15° 55' south, and longitude 5° 44' west. It is over 1,200 miles from any continent, and 850 from the nearest island. Its greatest length is 10½ miles, breadth 7 miles; area, 47 square miles; population (1871), 6,241. It is surrounded by rugged and steep cliffs, 600 to 2,000 feet in height. It contains a few plains, with about 6,000 acres of fertile soil, but only 500 are in cultivation. Provisions are mostly imported. The revenue, from customs and taxes, is about $72,000; the expenses, $266,000, including over $110,000 military expense. The climate is temperate and healthy. The vegetation is mostly European. The island was once covered with trees, which are now mostly destroyed. Iron, gold and copper have been found in small quantities. It is noted as the place where Napoleon Bonaparte was confined from 1815 to his death in 1821.

THE COUNTRY OF SENAAR.

(BELONGING TO EGYPT.)

BY CHAS. E. WILBUR, A.M.

Danish—Sennar. German—Senaar. French—Sennâr. Russian—Sennaâr. Italian—Sennaar. Spanish and Portuguese—Senar. Swedish—Sennaâr.

Location, Size, etc.—Senaar is a country of northeast Africa, and a part of the territory known as Nubia. It lies between Abyssinia on the east and Kordofan on the west, and extends from the junction of the Blue and White Niles, in latitude $15^{\circ} 40'$ north to latitude 11° north, but its boundaries are not well defined. Its area is estimated at 60,000 square miles, and its population at 1,500,000. The chief towns are Khartoom, where the governor resides; Senaar, the former capital; Wady Medineh, Messelemiah, and Golek.

Topography, Climate, etc.—The country consists of a plain from 1,400 to 1,500 feet above the level of the sea. There are some isolated summits nearly 1,000 feet above the surrounding country, and toward the south the surface becomes very mountainous. The climate is exceedingly hot, the mercury sometimes rising to 120° in the shade. Rain seldom falls in the north, sometimes not for two or three years, but in the south it is abundant between May and September. The soil is a rich black mould, and abundant crops of durra and beans are raised.

Animals and Minerals.—The elephant, giraffe, zebra, rhinoceros, antelope, lion, leopard, hyena, baboon, camel, hippopotamus, crocodile, heron and ibis are met with. Iron ore is abundant, and salt is found on the White Nile and at Khartoom. The inhabitants understand working in metals, and are good weavers, potters, etc.

Government and Religion.—Senaar was independent in its government from about the 15th century till 1822, when an army under Ismael Pasha annexed it to Egypt. Mohammedanism is the prevailing religion, but there are many Christians and heathen in the southeast part of the country. The precepts of the Koran, however, are little attended to. There is a representative of the United States, resident at Khartoom, in the person of Azar Abdel Melak, consular agent.

THE COLONY OF SIERRA LEONE.

BY W. H. M'CARTHY, A.M.

Danish—Sierra Leona. French—Sierra Leona. German—Sierra Leona. Russian—Sierra Leonia. Italian, Spanish and Portuguese—Sierra Leóna. Swedish—Sierra Leona.

Location, Size, etc.—This is a British colony on the west coast of Africa, settled originally in 1787 by Granville Sharp and other British philanthropists, with a view to providing a suitable home for destitute negroes from different parts of the world. It consists of a small peninsula terminating in Cape Sierra Leone, and is bounded on the north by a river of the same name. The cape lies in latitude $8^{\circ} 30'$ north, longitude $13^{\circ} 18'$ east. The territory covers an area of 468 square miles, and in 1872 had a population of 38,936.

Topography.—The peninsula is generally quite mountainous, but there are occasional tracts of level ground and several small valleys well watered and densely wooded. Aside from Free Town, the capital, which lies upon the coast, there are several other villages established by the colony.

Climate, etc.—The climate along the coast is said to be very deadly to Europeans, but much more salubrious three or four miles in the interior among the hills. The principal productions are cassava, cacao, maize, ginger, ground nuts, guinea corn, yams, plantains, sugar cane, and various fruits, such as the orange, banana, pineapple, pomegranate, guava, paw-paw, lime, lemon, etc.

Trade, etc.—Palm oil, nuts, hides and timber are the principal exports, the total value for 1871 being £467,755, and the value of the imports for the same year £305,849. The educational system is at present very inefficient. There are in this territory about 100 Christian missionaries, of all denominations, toiling faithfully against the combined power of paganism and Mohammedanism. The supreme power is in the hands of a governor and a legislative council, some of the members of which are pure negroes. English law is in force.

For map, list of newspapers, banks and value of money, see other departments of this work.

The only resident representative of the United States is Judson A. Lewis, consul, Free Town.

AFRICAN NATIONS AND COUNTRIES.

[NOT OTHERWISE DESCRIBED.]

BY J. A. AMUNDSON, A.B.

Bambarra, a country lying in the western part of Central Africa, and forming part of the territory of Soudan, extends in north latitude from about 10° to 15° , and in west longitude from about 2° to 8° . It has an area estimated at 28,800 square miles, and a population put at 2,500,000. Senegambia bounds it on the west, the Desert of Sahara on the north, and Upper Guinea (from which it is separated by the Kong mountains) on the south, while on its eastern side is one of the other countries of Soudan. The river Niger, or Joliba, runs through the central part of Bambarra from southwest to northeast. In the western portion the country is hilly, but in the east it forms a large plain, subject to some extent to the overflow of the rivers. The climate is generally healthy, intensely hot in some parts, but more moderate in others. There is a rainy season from June to November. The wild animals consist of lions, leopards, elephants, wolves, panthers, venomous reptiles and numerous crocodiles. Bambarra has a fertile, well-watered soil, from which in one year double crops of corn, rice, maize, yams and kindred products are obtained. The indigo plant grows spontaneously. An ash-gray butter, forming an article of trade, is obtained from the butter tree. Among the other native trees are the cotton tree, oil palm, baobab and date. There are extensive forests and excellent pastures. Cattle, sheep, goats, fine-bred horses, and poultry are abundant. The rivers are filled with fish, which forms a considerable article of commerce. Manufacturing constitutes an important industry. A soft, coarse, beautifully colored cloth, and articles wrought from gold, iron and ivory are the products. Trade is active. The chief articles of export are gold, slaves, ivory and cloth, while the chief imports consist of salt, tobacco, hardware, etc. The principal towns of Bambarra are along the Niger river. Sego is the capital. The population consists of three classes; the peasantry are mostly barbarous; the bulk of the mechanics and merchants are Mandingoes, a superior negro tribe and Mohammedan in religion; and there are also a number of Moors, who have great influence with the petty chieftains of the country and with the Mandingoes. The country is nominally governed by one monarch, but really by several rulers.

Bornoo, a country of Central Africa; bounded on the north by the Desert of Sahara, on the east by Lake Tchad and Baghirmi, on the south by Adamawa, and on the west by Sokoto, or Saccatoo; extending in north latitude from 10° to 16° , and in east longitude from 12° to 17° . It has an area of about 208,000 square miles, and its population is estimated at 5,000,000. Most of the country is on a dead level, and subject to overflow in the rainy season. The Shary and the Yo are the principal rivers, both emptying into Lake Tchad. As to climate, the heat is intense from March to June, the thermometer being at 104° to 107° F. The rainy season continues from October to April, and during this season fevers and other diseases are prevalent. Wild beasts are numerous, and consist of all those which are common in Central Africa, as lions, panthers, venomous reptiles, crocodiles, etc. Wild bees are very abundant. Domestic and domesticated animals are plentiful among the inhabitants, and consist of elephants, horses, buffaloes, oxen, sheep, etc. Bornoo has a fertile soil, but agriculture is very imperfect; nevertheless large crops of maize, millet, barley, rice, cotton, indigo and pulse of various kinds are raised. Coats-of-mail for horses and riders are manufactured from iron imported from Adamawa. Cotton cloth, beautifully dyed, is also largely made and exported to Fezzan. Most of the inhabitants are a lazy, peaceable tribe of negroes, called Bornoose or Kanowry; but the ruling class are bigoted Mohammedan Arabs. The active prosecution of the slave trade is a leading occupation, on account of which many warlike expeditions take place. An Arab sheik governs the country. The military force consists of about 30,000 cavalry.

Adamawa is a country in Central Africa, extending in north latitude from $6^{\circ} 30'$ to $11^{\circ} 30'$, and in east longitude from 12° to 16° . It has an area of about 70,000 square miles, and its population is estimated at 3,000,000. The country is about 350 miles long and 200 miles wide. It is for the most part flat, but rises towards the south to an elevation of more than 1,500 feet. It is well watered and grassy. The principal rivers are the Benuwe and Faro. Elephants are very numerous in Adamawa. The ayu, a river animal resembling a seal and feeding upon the grass of the river bank at night, is found here; also a diminutive ox, dark gray in color, and not reaching a height of three feet. Meat is very expensive, a goat and a female slave being considered of equal value. Iron of an excellent quality is found. Soap is a common article, manufactured in every household. Yola, with a population of 12,000, is the capital city. The country is subject to the Foolaahs deriving its present name from the Foolaah chieftain (Adama) who conquered it. Before that it bore the name Fumbina. The Mohammedan portion of the population dress decently, even well; but the pagan part wear only a leather covering over the loins. Slavery is a universal institution, even private owners having sometimes as many as a thousand slaves. The standard of value in the country is a native cotton cloth, $2\frac{1}{4}$ inches in width, the length being used to indicate extent of price.

Baghirmi is a country of Central Africa, lying southeast of Lake Tchad, with Bornoo on the west and Waday on the east, and extending south to latitude 10° north. It has a total population of about 1,500,000. With a breadth of 150 miles, it has a length of about 240 miles. It is a flat country, with an elevation of 1,000 feet above sea level. There are three rivers of considerable size, the Benuwe, the Logan, and the Shari. Still water is very scarce, the inhabitants guarding their wells with great care. The climate is fiercely hot. The tamarind and the date palm are the chief trees. Worms and ants are very destructive to crops and clothing. Millet, sorghum, sesamum, beans, ground nuts, rice, cotton and indigo are raised. Also wheat, but only for the sultan's private use. Weaving and dyeing are carried on somewhat. Excellent horses and large flocks of sheep and cattle are found. The people are a superior tribe of negroes, the men being finely formed and the women quite beautiful. At least one-tenth of the male population are subject to the infliction of having their little toes eaten away by worms. The disease is called "mukárdam." The sultan is absolute in his own dominion, but in his turn is subject to the ruler of Bornoo. The army numbers 13,000 men. Masena, with a circumference of seven miles, is the capital.

Loango, in a somewhat indefinite sense forms a part of Lower Guinea, and is situated on the western coast of Africa and extends from the equator south to the river Congo. A more definite description confines it to a territory north of the river Congo, with about 250 miles of coast, extending from 50 to 100 miles into the interior. The interior of the country is unknown, but the coast is flat and fertile. The river Quillo flows through the northern portion. A rude and barbarous race inhabits the country—idolatrous and superstitious, and low in morals. Both polygamy and the slave trade are allowed. A man sells his wife as a part of his chattels. The inhabitants possess some skill in the manufacture of baskets, colored mats, and grass-cloth. Commerce is also carried on in oil, gum, wax, ivory, coffee, cotton, dye-woods and copper. Europeans have established factories or trading posts in considerable numbers on the coast and rivers. The two principal towns are: Loango, situated in south latitude $4^{\circ} 30'$, and having a population of 20,000; and Kabinda (population 16,000), on the north bank of the river Congo. The country is ruled by an absolute despotism. Its population is estimated at 750,000. Trade is open to all nations.

Congo, also forming part of Lower Guinea, on the western coast of Africa, is bounded on the north by Loango, on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, on the south by Angola, and on the east by a range of mountains running parallel with the coast. It extends in south latitude from about 5° to $8^{\circ} 30'$. Numerous rivers flow through it from the mountains on its eastern frontier. The climate of the coast region is very hot and unhealthy. In the interior the climate is more tolerable. The animals include the elephant, lion, leopard, buffalo, zebra, gazelle, antelope, monkey, and hog. Excellent fish, as well as turtles, crocodiles and hippopotami abound in the rivers. Among reptiles are the boa, the chameleon, and the flying lizard. Ostriches, peacocks and parrots are abundant. Poultry is also plenty. The soil is fertile. The palm tree, the sugar-cane, the yam, and the orange grow. Three crops of rice and maize are often produced annually. The most remarkable forest tree is the baobab. The oil-palm is common. The imports include cloths, stuffs, carpets, hardware, earthenware and grains. The exports consist chiefly of ivory and furs. The country is filled with innumerable petty tribes, each with a chief at its head, but all of these are subject to the Lindy N'Congo, who lives in Banza, the capital of the whole country.

Somali is a country in the eastern part of Africa, extending along the Gulf of Eden and the Indian Ocean, from latitude $11^{\circ} 18'$ north to $0^{\circ} 14'$ north. Its area is computed at 330,000 square miles. The country is mountainous. There is an excellent harbor at Berbera, a city situated in latitude $10^{\circ} 22'$ north and having a population of 20,000. Myrrh and frankincense are abundant and form an important article of trade. Trade is also carried on in various kinds of gums, hides, ostrich feathers and grass mats. The country is inhabited by Arabic tribes, who have acquired an undesirable notoriety for their savage and predatory habits. The people are all Mohammedans, very superstitious and believers in witchcraft. The different tribes, very different in character, are governed by chiefs, but these chiefs have little real power.

Benguela is a country on the southwestern coast of Africa, extending in south latitude from 9° to 16° , and in east longitude from 12° to 17° . The Coanza river bounds it on the north, the Mocambe mountains on the east, the Nourse river on the south, and the Atlantic Ocean on the west. It is nearly 500 miles long by 350 wide, with an area of about 170,000 square miles. The coast region is very low, but the surface rises in a series of terraces toward the interior, and finally terminates in the mountains on the eastern boundary. Numerous rivers flowing from the mountains to the sea intersect the country. Water is so abundant that it may be found anywhere by digging two feet below the surface. Owing to the humidity of soil, the climate is quite unwholesome on the coast, especially in the rainy season. But in the interior and among the mountains the atmosphere is pure and healthy. The moistness of the soil causes great luxuriance and variety of vegetation. Both tropical fruits and the vegetables of temperate climes grow abundantly. Hyenas, lions, elephants, buffaloes, zebras and antelopes are found among the wild animals. Peacocks are regarded as sacred. In the mountains are found sulphur, copper, and petroleum, and also, in small quantities, gold and silver. The inhabitants are very barbarous, many of the tribes being cannibals. Their religion is fetichism. The Portuguese claim sovereignty, but it is only nominal. The principal cities are Benguela (population 3,000), Caconda, Novo Redondo, and Mossamedes, the latter being favorably situated and thriving. It has a fine harbor, several forts, and is the residence of the governor of South Benguela. The population of Benguela is computed at from 1,000,000 to 2,500,000.

Mozambique is a country on the southeastern coast of Africa, having an area of about 380,000 square miles and a population of 300,000. It lies in south latitude between $10^{\circ} 40'$ and 26° . The Mozambique Channel bounds it on the east, while its western boundary is somewhat indefinite. The beautiful Lake Nyassa, 300 miles long and 30 wide, lies in or along its western borders. The Zambesi, the largest river of southeastern Africa, flows through Mozambique, emptying through several mouths. There are numerous other streams. The country also contains another lake of considerable size, named Shirwa. The southern and the northern parts of the coast are high and precipitous. Numerous reefs and islands lie along the whole shore. Mozambique has a hot, unhealthy climate. Wood of great beauty and value is found in the forests. Large crops of rice are raised. Excellent ivory is obtained from the hippopotami, which are abundant in the rivers. Gold was once obtained by washing the sands. Copper ore exists. Valuable skins and ivory are secured from the wild animals of the interior. Mozambique is a nominal dependency of Portugal, but the neglect of that government has made its authority feeble. The native chiefs are in fact absolute rulers. Roman Catholicism is the established religion so far as Portuguese domination extends. The slave trade is still carried on to some extent. Mozambique city is the capital of the country, having a population of about 8,500. It is situated on a coral island near the mainland, crescent in shape, the hollow being towards the sea. The harbor is safe and excellent. The city is from 20 to 50 feet above sea-level and strongly fortified. The streets are narrow, and, owing to the fact that all the houses are whitewashed, the temperature is from 6° to 10° higher than on the neighboring mainland. The inhabitants include Indians, Arabians, and Europeans, the latter including the governor and his staff. Mozambique was once a great slave market, but with the decline of this trade its prosperity has also declined. The ivory commerce, however, is important.

Zanzibar is a country on the eastern coast of Africa, lying immediately north of Mozambique. It includes several adjoining islands. The word Zanzibar, modified from Zanguebar, is derived from the Arabic word Zing, a name given to the negroes of Eastern Africa, and the Persian or Indian word bar, meaning country. The mainland is comparatively unexplored. There are a number of rivers, the largest being the Lufiji, which, 30 miles from its mouth, has a width of 250 yards. The climate of Zanzibar is hot, oppressive and generally considered unhealthy. A very fertile and well-watered soil yields all the productions of the tropics, embracing sugar, cotton, coffee, cocoa, cloves, nutmegs, cinnamon, Guinea pepper, sesame and indigo, as well as maize, millet and rice. Valuable timber and large quantities of caoutchouc and copal are obtained from the forests. Among animals are the elephant, rhinoceros, lion, leopard, hippopotamus and crocodile. Fish are abundant in the rivers. Cattle, sheep, goats and fowls are plenty. The island of Zanzibar, on which the capital is situated, is 25 miles distant from the mainland, is of coral formation, has an area of 630 square miles and a population estimated at 300,000. It is exceedingly fertile, producing coconuts, red pepper, sugar, rice and cloves, the last-named in great abundance, the annual yield averaging 7,000,000 pounds. In 1872 the exports and imports of the island were estimated at $2,500,000 each. The exports consist of ivory, gum-copal, cloves, hides, goat-skins, archil-weed, surisuri seed, ebony, coconut oil and gum myrrh. The customs revenue is farmed out for $210,000 annually. The city of Zanzibar is the capital of the country. Its population in 1875 was estimated at 80,000. The population is a heterogeneous mixture of races, the larger part being Arabs. The streets are narrow, crooked, and cleaned only by the rains. The city has a safe and excellent harbor. It has a large French hospital and a fine cathedral belonging to the Anglican bishopric. Ship-building is carried on and there are extensive manufactories of cotton, gold, silver, copper, etc. The foreign trade is very extensive and valuable. Zanzibar in 1862 became independent. Previous to that it was subject to the government of Oman, a country of southeastern Arabia. The chief ruler of Zanzibar has the title of seiyid.

Cazembe is a country in the interior of southeastern Africa, lying between Lakes Moero and Bangweolo, and between 9° and 11° south latitude. Its area is estimated at 120,000 square miles, and its population at 500,000. The country has not been very thoroughly explored. It forms a plain, and is watered by many rivers. Millet, maize, manioc, sugarcane, yams, gourds and bananas are grown. Agriculture receives some attention. Cattle are abundant, but the horse and ass are unknown, while sheep are scarce. Coarse cotton cloth, earthenware and iron goods are manufactured. The exports consist of salt, ivory, and copper ore. The country is under the despotic and barbarous government of a chief, or cazembe, who has 600 wives. There is no fixed capital, each new ruler choosing a new seat of government.

Kordofan is a country in the interior of eastern Africa, extending in north latitude between $12^{\circ} 30'$ and $15^{\circ} 30'$, and in east longitude between 29° and 32° . Nubia bounds it on the north, Darfur on the west, the Deir mountains on the south, and a desert land, separating it from the White Nile, on the east. Its population is estimated at 400,000. Its surface is generally level, but rather mountainous in the southwest and in the extreme north. The rivers are not permanent. A few lakes exist. In the rainy season its climate is very unhealthy; in the dry season, it is very hot. Hurricanes occur frequently. The luxuriant vegetation with which the naturally fertile soil is covered during the wet season is completely burned up during the dry season. The population is made up of negroes, Arabs, and emigrants from Dongola. The country is subject to the khedive of Egypt, and its capital is El Obeid.

For map of Africa, see index. None of the foregoing countries maintain direct trade with the United States, nor have any of them newspapers or banks so far as advised. The only resident representatives of the United States are as follows:

THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.

BY W. E. HOUP, A.B.

Spanish—República Argentina. Danish—Argentinske Republica. French—République Argentine. German—Argentinische Republik. Russian—Argentinskaja Respublika. Italian—Repubblica Argentina. Portuguese—República Argentina. Swedish—Argentinska Republiken.

Location, Size, etc.—The Argentine Republic is situated on the southeast coast of South America. It is bounded on the north by Bolivia and Paraguay; on the east by Paraguay, Brazil, Uruguay and the Atlantic Ocean; on the south by the Atlantic and Patagonia; and on the west by Chile and Bolivia. The republic proper lies between 22° and 41° south latitude, and 53° and 71° 17' west longitude. It claims all of Patagonia east of the Andes. Its area is about 841,000 square miles. In 1869 its population was 1,768,681, which in 1876 was estimated at 2,400,000, exclusive of 93,291 Indians.

Topography and Geography.—Over three-quarters of the country are plains—pampas—which are rendered very rich by decayed vegetation. There are mountains in the west which are branches of the Andes, and a few scattered hills in the southeast. The Parana forms its chief river system, and the whole vast plain is well watered by it and its tributaries.

Divisions and Cities.—The chief divisions are Buenos Ayres, Corrientes, Entré-Ríos, Santa Fe, Calamarca, Mendoza, La Rioja, San Juan, Cordoba, San Luis, Santiago del Estero, Tucuman, Salta and Jujuy. Population of the capital (Buenos Ayres) in 1869 was 177,787; estimated population in 1876, 230,000; Corrientes, 10,670; Tucuman, 17,438; Salta, 11,716. The number of immigrants from 1870 to 1875, inclusive, was 284,609.

Climate.—In climate it is very diversified and is one of the most delightful countries in the world. In the south its climate resembles that of Norway; near Buenos Ayres it is like that of England; while in the north it rivals that of Southern France.

Flora and Fauna.—Along the Andes and on the banks of the Paraguay river are dense forests. In the south only scattered clumps of willows are found, but in the north are palms and other trees of the tropical zone. The country abounds in curious fossils. The wild animals are llama on the plains; jaguars, pumas, etc., in the forests; tapir in the north, and deer in the pampas.

Agriculture, Trade, etc.—Agriculture is in a very low state, the chief occupation of the inhabitants being the raising of sheep and cattle. The chief productions are figs, oranges, walnuts, wine, sugar, tobacco, maize and potatoes. The exports are wool, tallow, hides, beef, cattle, horses, sheep, furs, honey, copper, gold and silver. Imports are cotton and woolen manufactures, iron, coal and machinery. The imports in 1878 were valued at $42,344,460, and the exports at $36,313,267. In 1880 the exports to the United States were of the value of $6,214,575, and imports from the United States $1,882,841.

Minerals, etc.—The mineral endowments are considerable, but are not greatly developed. There are mines of gold, silver, iron, rich deposits of salt and rock salt, gypsum, alum and sulphur. The rivers abound in fish of nearly all kinds: lamprey, trout, skate, etc. Seals, sea lions and sea elephants are taken on the coast.

Government.—In government it is a republic. It has a president elected for six years by representatives from each of the provinces. The legislative power is vested in two houses, a senate and house of deputies, the former consisting of 28 members and the latter of 50. Members receive £700 per annum. The salary of the president is £4,000. The judiciary is entirely independent. There are a supreme court and tribunals in every State. Freedom and equality are guaranteed to all.

Miscellaneous.—The prevailing religion is Roman Catholic, but all kinds are tolerated. The regular army is composed of 7,175 men. The navy consists of 27 vessels which carry 88 cannon. There are 1,568 miles of railway, of which a part is under control of the government. The number of miles of telegraph is 9,830, of which more than one-half belongs to the republic. Until recently education has been neglected. Only about 28,000 persons are able to read and write. Much, however, is now being done to diffuse knowledge throughout the land. Universities have been and are being established. The revenue for 1879 was $16,889,120, and the expenditures $17,311,610. The public debt in 1879 amounted to $85,589,963.

THE REPUBLIC OF BOLIVIA.

BY C. C. OTIS, A.B.

French—Bolivie. Spanish, Danish, German, Russian, Italian, Portuguese, Swedish and Turkish—Bolivia.

Position, Size, etc.—Bolivia is a republican State in the western part of South America, bounded on the north by Brazil and Peru, on the east by Brazil and Paraguay, on the south by the Argentine Republic and Chile, on the west by the Pacific Ocean and Peru. It extends from latitude 10° to 23° south, and from longitude 58° to 71° west, embracing an area of 536,000 square miles, with a population according to the latest returns (1872) of 1,811,368 of European origin, and 245,000 native Indians.

Topography, etc.—The physical characteristics of Bolivia may be regarded as unique. The territory lying between the Andes and the Pacific coast is for the most part a sandy and desert waste. The mountains are numerous and contain the highest peaks in the New World,—that of Sorata rising to an altitude of 24,800 feet. Volcanoes are frequent in the Andes and Coast ranges, five of which are constantly smoking. The central portion of the country consists of very elevated table-lands, the rivers emptying into Lake Titicaca, which has an area of 3,220 square miles and is 12,600 feet above the level of the sea. These table lands are very rich and fertile, supporting a dense population. There is perhaps no more interesting field for geological investigations in the world than Bolivia.

Subdivisions and Cities.—The principal subdivisions of the republic are as follows: La Paz, Cochabamba, Potosí, Chuquisaca, Santa Cruz de la Sierra, Oruro, Tarija, Beni, and Atacama. The chief cities are: La Paz, population 76,372; Cochabamba, population 40,000; Sucre, population 20,000; Potosí, population 25,774; Santa Cruz, population 10,000, and Tarija, population 6,000.

Flora and Fauna.—Owing to the great differences in elevation the variety of flora is correspondingly great. The slopes of the Andes are to an immense elevation covered with magnificent trees. The varieties of wild animals include the llama, vicuña, alpaca, guanaco, several species of monkeys, wild-cat, bear and wild boar.

Agriculture.—The principal production of agriculture is the coca, the annual sales of which amount to upwards of $4,000,000. Sugar-cane, tobacco, the various cereals, and coffee are also cultivated. The potato in many places grows wild. Cotton also grows wild and is of two kinds, yellow and white. The soil is capable of a much higher state of cultivation than at present exists.

Trade.—There is no direct commercial intercourse between Bolivia and the rest of the world, owing to the very poor facilities for transportation. A considerable trade is, however, carried on with the immediately surrounding nations, the exportations including such articles as the precious metals, vicuña, and alpaca wool, guano, leather, coffee, cocoa and cinchona bark. The importations embrace cotton goods, hardware, furniture, jewelry and silks. In 1879 the total value of exports was about $3,000,000, while the imports amounted to nearly $5,750,000. The United States make no report of direct trade with Bolivia during the fiscal year 1879-'80.

Minerals.—The mineral wealth of Bolivia is great, consisting chiefly in its almost inexhaustible silver mines. It is estimated that the mines of one mountain alone (Cerro de Potosí) yielded from 1545 to 1789 silver amounting in value to $2,000,000,000. It still continues to give an annual yield of about $2,250,000. Gold is also found in large quantities in many localities, besides also copper, lead and tin. Owing to the great difficulty of transportation these latter, in common with other sources of wealth, are of little practical value to the country.

Government.—Bolivia was named after Simon Bolívar, who gave it a constitution in 1826. Since that time, however, the constitution has suffered important changes, and instead of the president's being elected for a term of four years as was originally intended, he now holds his office for life, with the power of naming his successor. He has supreme authority, and in reality differs little in power from a king. The executive power is vested in the president, vice-president and three secretaries of state. In 1856 the seat of government was transferred from La Paz to Oruro.

Religions.—The Roman Catholic religion is strongly dominant, and free and unrestricted toleration toward other denominations can not be said to exist in Bolivia.

The Army.—The regular army consists of 31 generals, 359 superior and 654 subaltern officers, 3,034 men and 522 horses. There are provisions for a navy whenever necessity may require one. The annual cost of the army is about $2,000,000.

Education.—Efficient means are being adopted for the advancement of general education. There exist at present three universities and 348 schools of all grades, 294 of which are for males and 54 for females.

Revenues.—The amount of public revenue was for the financial year 1873-'74 nearly $3,000,000, and the expenditures for the same period amounted to nearly $4,500,000. The republic has foreign and internal debts amounting to $30,000,000.

Railways.—Bolivia has three short railways in operation; that from Lake Titicaca to the coast at Mollendo, passing through Peruvian territory and constructed by Peruvian authority and capital, serves as an outlet for the trade of all Western Bolivia.

THE EMPIRE OF BRAZIL.

BY GEO. L. FOX.

Portuguese—Brasilíia. Danish, German and Swedish—Brasilien. French—Brésil. Russian—Бразилия.
Italian—Brasile. Spanish—Brasil. Chinese—Pa⁴ Hsi¹ Kwo. Turkish—Brazília.

Surroundings, Size, etc.—Brazil, the great empire of South America, is bounded on the north by Columbia, or New Granada, Venezuela and the Guianas, British, French and Dutch; on the east by the Atlantic; on the south by the republics of Uruguay and the Argentine Confederation, and on the west by Paraguay, Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador. It extends from about 4° north latitude to 33° 41' south latitude, and from 35° to 70° west longitude. Its greatest length is about 2,600 British miles, its greatest breadth about 2,500, and it has a seaboard of about 4,000 miles. The area of the empire is estimated at 3,287,964 square miles or one-half of the total area of South America, and nearly as large as the whole of Europe. The population, according to a partial census taken in 1872 and government estimates, is, including both slave and free, 9,700,187, exclusive of a nomadic aboriginal population estimated at one million.

A Magnificent River System.—Brazil has remarkable natural features and advantages. The most notable is the river Amazon, the largest river in the world, which drains the northern watershed of Brazil. From its source in the mountains of Western Peru, near the Pacific, to its mouth on the eastern shore of Brazil, it is at the safest estimates 3,000 miles long. Though probably shorter than the Mississippi or the Nile, it far exceeds either of them in volume, and has well been called the Mediterranean of South America. The area drained by the river and its tributaries is probably one-third of the whole of South America. It is 50 fathoms deep in some portions of its course, is navigable for vessels of the largest size even to within the confines of Peru, and with its tributaries affords free navigation over not less than 30,000 miles within Brazilian territory. The main mouth of the river is 50 miles wide, but if the Pará river be regarded as one of its outlets, the delta is 180 miles wide. This great river system stains the sea 600 miles from its mouth, and at this point sailors dip up fresh water far from the shore. Though salt water rarely enters the river, the tides are felt therein five or six hundred miles away from the sea. Besides these tidal changes, there is a yearly rise and fall, varying with the locality and different years, from 60 feet above the normal level, generally in June on the upper waters, to 30 feet nearer the mouth. From July to December the prevailing wind is against the current and makes navigation for sailing vessels either way comparatively easy. Steamers, however, are now largely used for the river traffic. Between the Pará and the main mouth of the river is the Marajo, an island as large as the State of New York, forming the delta of the river. As the main mouth north of the Marajo is obstructed by shifting sand-bars and filled with fierce currents, dangerous for shipping, the Pará will always be the commercial mouth of the Amazon. Compared with this king of rivers, the other rivers of Brazil, though of considerable size, seem small. The largest are the Paraguay and the Paraná, which form part of the western boundary. These like the Amazon are navigable for a long distance from their mouths.

Topography.—The surface of Brazil in respect to its elevation, is divided into the higher region of plateaus, ridges and broad, open valleys, occupying the whole of the country south of the parallel of Cape St. Roque and the vast lowland plain of the Amazon, extending inland to the base of the Andes of Peru, Ecuador and Columbia, and rising again in the extreme north to the ranges which form the boundary with Venezuela. The extremely low level of the great northern lowlands may be judged by this, that the banks of the Amazon 1,500 miles in a straight line from the sea are not more than 250 feet above the ocean level. Between the mountain ranges of Southern Brazil and the low basin of the Amazon, is a range of high plateaus called collectively the range of the watersheds, which divide the waters that flow into the Amazon from those that flow into the Paraguay.

Provinces and Cities.—For administrative purposes Brazil is divided into 20 provinces, comprising 642 municipalities, including that of the capital. From various causes the number of municipalities is fluctuating. Of the provinces the most important and populous are Rio de Janeiro, Minas Geraes, Bahia, Pernambuco and Ceará, all on the Atlantic coast. The province of Amazonas on either side of the upper Amazon, with the largest extent of territory has the least population. The three largest towns are Rio de Janeiro, the capital, Bahia, Pernambuco and Pará. In 1872 the population of Rio de Janeiro was 274,972; of Bahia, 129,109; and of Pernambuco 116,671.

Climate and Health.—A country like Brazil, extending over so many degrees of longitude, with so diversified a surface, has naturally great variety of climate. The northern lowland, which is drained by the Amazon, lies entirely within the tropics, has great heat, and its year is divided between the simple wet and dry seasons. The wet season with heavy rainfall and much thunder and lightning, extends from December or January to May or June. The rest of the year is dry, though fine weather often comes in the rainy period, and showers in the dry season. Farther southward, the time and extent of the rainy season changes, until in the southernmost province the four seasons of the temperate zone are distinguishable. In temperature the vast Amazon basin is remarkable for the small seasonal variation in heat, accounted for by its equatorial position and the immense surface of water and forest. Within its limits the thermometer at its highest reading averages about 90° and at the lowest about 75°. In the latitude of Rio de Janeiro, the summer or January temperature averages about 75° near the sea level, and that of July about 65°. Away from the moist and hot air of the coast, on the high table lands and mountain ranges, the thermometer often goes below the freezing point and snow and ice form. The prevailing winds of the country are the trade winds from the east which blow up the valley of the Amazon from July to November, materially assisting sail navigation and tempering the heat of the dry season. Pará, at the Amazon's mouth at this season is said to be as comfortable as New York in August. Excepting the low river lands and swamps where fevers abound, the country is generally healthy. On the sea coast, however, epidemics of yellow fever and cholera are sometimes unwelcome visitors.

Vegetation.—The natural conditions of Brazil, which produce variety of climate, have a like effect upon the vegetation. The flora are varied and luxuriant almost beyond belief. Heat and moisture are the necessary conditions of vegetable growth, which in the Amazon valley and along the coast nature has furnished with lavish hand. Trees split for fences near Rio Janeiro send forth shoots and branches, and that too whether they are set up down or not. On the banks of the Amazon, the loftiest trees grow so close together as to kill each other, and roots and grasses extending from the shores of pools weave themselves into a kind of vegetable bridge strong enough to support a man's weight. The vegetable products of Brazil are very much like those of Guiana. On the lowlands there is little brushwood or herbage; everything tends to the gigantic in size. All sorts of plants of different botanical families grow side by side. Mangroves, palms, luxuriant ferns, cocoa trees, the vanilla, capsicum frutescens, and different kinds of pepper, the cinnamon tree and Brazilian cassia abound. On the southern prairies the vegetation is widely different, being chiefly tufts of hairy grasses, interspersed with herbaceous flowers, of the most varied colors, and small groves of trees. The bed of the Paraguay abounds in water plants so strong as to impede the navigation of a naturally deep river. Brazilian forests are rich in useful and ornamental wood. The most important trees are the Brazil wood, rosewood, laurel, soap, and the whole family of palms. The cocoa tree which grows in great quantities supplies chocolate, one of the most important items of internal commerce, and the gum of the caoutchouc tree, which is tapped daily in the dry season, when held in the smoke made by burning the nuts of the tucuma becomes the india rubber of commerce, useful in a thousand ways. The best of the fruits of Brazil, which are numerous and excellent, are the banana, the pineapple, the mango, the custard apple, guava and various kinds of melons and fruits. The fruit of the Brazil nut tree or the bertholletia, which grows about the upper waters of the Amazon and its tributaries, ranks third in importance among the exports of the Amazon valley, the first two being rubber and cocoa.

Animal Life.—The varieties of animal life are more numerous in Brazil than in any other region of the world. Of beasts of prey, the most formidable are the jaguar or South American tiger, the ocelot, tiger-cat, the puma, guará and red wolf and the Brazilian fox or wild-dog. In the forests are found the peccary, a species of hog, and the tapir, the largest South American mammal. On the river banks water hogs roam, and there are many kinds of deer on the elevated plains. There are besides armadillos, ant-eaters, sloths and several species of opossum, while the varieties of the monkey tribe that abound in the forests appear to be almost infinite. In the marshy districts swarm many troublesome insects, and there abound vast numbers of snakes, such as the rattlesnake and the jaracá, that are remarkably venomous, and the boa constrictor, which often attains great size and strength. The birds, like all tropical birds, are celebrated for their plumage. Worthy of notice among many varieties are the rhea, a species of ostrich, the oriole, the manakin, the toucan and the different kinds of humming birds. Of domestic animals the most important are the horse, ox and the sheep. Vast numbers of horses sprung from European stock are allowed to roam in droves over the broad plains of the southern provinces, and oxen wander half wild. They are hunted down with the lasso in great numbers, and are valued chiefly for their hides, horns and tallow, which are exported in large quantities. The chief cattle breeding districts are the central and southern provinces along the coast. Sheep do not thrive as well as the larger kinds of cattle.

Agriculture, in Brazil, is pursued mostly in the eastern and coast provinces. In the fertile valley of the Amazon the spontaneous vegetation is so fruitful, and fruit can be so easily obtained by the half civilized natives without tilling the soil, that the number of farmers is comparatively small. It is estimated that not one acre in 200 is under cultivation, and such as is tilled is devoted to raising articles for foreign markets. Breadstuffs are largely imported from the United States, as the supply of grain raised in Brazil is far inferior to the demand. The chief products are coffee, sugar, cotton, manioc or cassava flour, tobacco, rice, maize, fruits and spices. Of these by far the most important is coffee; next, sugar; and cotton ranks in value after sugar. The coffee plant introduced from Arabia into the French colony of Cayenne in 1722 was soon after brought to Brazil, but was not extensively cultivated until 1820. In that year new methods of cultivation were introduced, and since that time the coffee crop has grown amazingly. The provinces of Rio, São Paulo and Minas Geraes on the southern coast, produce nearly all the coffee that is sent out of the country. The cultivation of the plant is carried on chiefly in large plantations owned by wealthy proprietors, as the absence of a land tax has thrown the soil mainly into the hands of wealthy proprietors, and the necessity of a costly plant of machinery for curing the berry, makes it difficult for the small proprietor to compete with the wealthy ones. On the sea coast modern implements of agriculture are largely introduced, but in the interior some of the appliances still in use are very rude. There are not more than four or five saw mills on the whole Amazon, and the sugar cane which is grown in large quantities is very commonly crushed between squeaking wooden rollers, turned by men or horse-power, while the methods of evaporating and refining the juice are often of the rudest kind. In few places is the ploughshare set deep into the soil, for the fertile earth with slight scratching sends forth a crop abundant enough to satisfy the tiller. Cotton of excellent quality is chiefly grown on the table lands of the northern provinces, and the toothsome cocoa, cultivated chiefly in the Amazon valley, is shipped as a berry to other countries to be made into chocolate.

Exports and Imports.—The exports of such a country as Brazil are naturally confined to the products of the soil. In the order of their value the chief exports are coffee, hides, sugar, cotton, india-rubber, tobacco, yerba-mate, diamonds and rum. About one-third of the exports is sent to Great Britain, about one-fourth to the United States, and the rest chiefly to France, the Argentine Confederation, Germany and Portugal. The chief articles imported, one-third of which come from Great Britain, are manufactured cotton, iron, woolen and linen goods. The total value of the imports into Brazil in the year 1878 amounted in rough figures to about $44,739,800, being an increase of over $10,000,000 in comparison with the previous year, while that of the exports during the same time was about $46,168,000, being a decrease of $4,350,000 as compared with the preceding year. The value of the imports from the United States in the fiscal year 1879-80 was $8,605,346, while the value of the exports to that country amounted to $51,970,090. This is by no means a satisfactory showing to the citizens of the United States, and ought not to continue. But a change can not be wrought in a day or a year. It will take time, patience, a knowledge of the Portuguese tongue, and a wise business study of the markets and adaptation to them. In the words of the latest writer on Brazil, Mr. H. H. Smith, "If we are to gain a footing in Brazil we must do precisely as our English and German neighbors have done: establish regular agencies and branch houses, study the wants of the country and adapt our goods to them; finally, avoid all rash speculations and bubble schemes. Even then we shall have many difficulties to contend with, which we can only vanquish with time."

Mineral Wealth.—The mineral productions of Brazil are immense. They comprise diamonds, sapphires, emeralds, euclases, rubies, topazes, aqua marines, gold, silver, copper, tin, lead, iron and other metals. Diamonds are found in all parts of the empire, but the great diamond region is in the territory of Minas. (Diamond washing, formerly a monopoly of the government, is now carried on exclusively by private individuals.) In many places, especially in the province of Minas Geraes, gold is found in quartz veins among the metamorphic rocks, and on the alluvial gravel and sands. Gold and silver mining has been carried on for some time, but with rude appliances, and the underground wealth of the country is as yet untouched. In the southernmost provinces bituminous coal is found which supplies fuel for the steamers. All over the country are beds of iron ore, much of which is remarkably free from pyrites.

Fish.—The rivers and lakes abound in fish of every variety. The most notable kinds of these are the garoupa, which is taken off the coast, and the pirarucú, which, caught in large quantities in the Amazon, and dried like cod, forms the principal food of large numbers of the people of Pará and Amazonas.

Historical and Governmental.—Brazil was for many years a colony of Portugal, but threw off the yoke in 1821, when republican movements were rife in South America. Brazil (not going so far as some of the other countries toward republicanism), was proclaimed an independent empire in 1822, accepting as its emperor the prince regent of Portugal, Don Pedro I, who abdicated in 1831 in favor of his son, the present emperor, Pedro II, who was crowned in 1841, after an intervening government of ten years by a regency. The Brazilian empire derives from Portugal the principle of hereditary succession to the crown, which excludes the Salic law and allows females to occupy the throne. The constitution adopted in 1824 and since amended, establishes four powers in the state: the legislative, executive, judicial and the moderating power, or royal prerogative. The legislative power is vested in a national assembly for the affairs of the empire, and in provincial assemblies for provincial affairs. The national assembly consists of two houses, senate and congress. The senators, 58 in number, are elected for life; and the representatives, 122 in number, are chosen by the whole population (save minors, monks and servants) for four years. Representatives are chosen by electors appointed by voters, every 30 voters having the privilege of naming an elector in each district. The annual session of the legislative assembly begins in May. The executive power is vested in the emperor, assisted by his ministers and a council of state. The departments of the ministry are the same as in most other liberal governments. The executive functions consist in calling the ordinary meetings of the assembly, the nomination of bishops, governors of provinces and magistrates, the declaration of peace or war, and the general execution and superintendence of measures voted by the legislature. The council of state is composed of 12 ordinary and 12 extraordinary members, appointed for life by the sovereign, who are for the most part, ex-ministers. Each provincial government consists of a provincial chamber and a general council or legislative assembly. The members of the chamber are elected directly by the voters for two years, while the assemblymen are chosen by the same electors as the numbers of the national congress.

Emancipation.—The year 1871 was most notable in the history of Brazil. In September of that year a law was passed which, enacted that from that date every child born of slave parents should be free, and also declared all the slaves belonging to the state or to the imperial household free from that time. The same law provided an emancipation fund, to be annually applied to the ransom of a certain number of slaves owned by private individuals. The importation of slaves ceased in 1873, and since 1871 the freeing of the bondmen has gone on rapidly, the work having been promoted largely by the slave owners and private philanthropy. At no very distant day slavery in the empire will be extinct.

Religions.—The established religion of the empire is the Roman Catholic, but all other religions are tolerated, and no person can be persecuted for religious acts or motives. While the Roman Catholic clergy are maintained by the state, funds are often voted for the construction of chapels and the support of ministers of different religions.

Army and Navy.—The army, formed partly by enlistment and partly by conscription, consisted, of men actually under arms, in the year 1876, of 21 battalions of infantry (9,864 men), 2,484 cavalry, 3,280 artillery, with a staff or special corps of 427 men. The navy, in June, 1878, consisted of 58 steamers, of which there were 18 ironclads, 1 frigate, 8 corvettes, 23 gunboats and 7 transports. On the muster roll of the navy department are 1 admiral, 2 vice-admirals, 4 rear-admirals, 8 chiefs of divisions, with 340 officers of lower grade and 4,200 able bodied seamen.

Railways and Telegraphs.—The empire possessed, at the commencement of 1879, railways of a total length of 1,438 miles open for traffic. The principal one of these is the Pedro Segundo, extending over and through the mountains from Rio de Janeiro into the interior. Some are owned by the government and some by private corporations. In the same year there were 4,250 miles of telegraph lines in the empire, and a submarine cable was completed in 1874 between Europe and the Brazilian ports.

Education.—Public education is divided into three forms or classes, viz: primary, secondary or preparatory, and scientific or superior. The primary instruction in the capital is under the charge of the general assembly, and in the provinces under the provincial assemblies. According to the constitution primary education is gratuitous, and it will become compulsory, as soon as the government considers it opportune. Notwithstanding the efforts of the legislature in recent years for the spread of education, it is still in a very backward state, and the public schools were frequented in 1874 by only 140,000 pupils. The Dom Pedro II. Imperial college at the capital, with 22 professors, awards the degree of B. A. to those who have successfully pursued the seven years course of instruction. There is also in Rio de Janeiro a national museum of natural history and a national public library of 100,000 volumes.

Revenues, etc.—The estimated revenue for the financial year ending June 30, 1879, was about $51, 100,000. The estimated expenditure during the same time was nearly $54,000,000. According to the report of the minister of finance in 1879, the total debt of Brazil amounted to about $377,967,500 at the end of the year 1876.

BRITISH GUIANA.

BY CHARLES E. WILBUR, A.M.

Spanish—Guyana Inglesa. Danish—Britisk Guayana. German—Britische Guayana. French—La Guyane Anglaise. Russian—Britanskaia Guena. Italian—Guiana Inglese. Swedish—Britiska Guiana.

Location, Area, etc.—British Guiana lies in the northeastern part of South America. It is bounded on the north and northeast by the Atlantic, on the east by Dutch Guiana, south by Brazil, and west by Venezuela. It lies between 0° 40' and 8° 40' north latitude, and 57° and 61° longitude west from Greenwich, and has an estimated territory of 76,000 square miles. The estimated total population in 1876 was 225,365.

Topography and Geography.—The coast of Guiana is very flat, and along the shores are rich undulating alluvial plains. The eastern portion is a rough inclined plain, sloping down to the sea level from a height of 800 feet. Two great parallel mountain chains cross the country from east to west, the Pacaraima and Canucu. The colony is traversed by numerous large rivers, the principal being the Essequibo, Corentyn, Mazarrini, Cuyuni, Berbice, and Demerara.

Subdivisions, etc.—The colony has three subdivisions called counties: Berbice, Demerara and Essequibo. Georgetown is the capital, with a population of about 40,000; other principal towns are New Amsterdam and Queenstown.

The Climate, especially in the interior, is healthy. The even temperature is considered favorable to pulmonary complaints; and tubercular consumption is unknown. There are no hurricanes, but occasionally there is a long drought. The mercury seldom rises above 90° or falls below 75° Fahr.

Flora and Fauna.—Among the wild animals are the tapir, manatee, jaguar, ant-bear, sloth, opossum, armadillo and monkeys. The bird, insect and fish life is of indescribable richness and variety. The vegetable productions are as follows: Orange, lime, guava, cashew and pine-apple; maize, cassava, yams, papaw-tree fruit, sweet potatoes, peppers; the trees yield valuable gums, febrifuges, oils and juices. Coffee is raised in large quantities.

Trade.—The principal articles of export are sugar, coffee, rum, molasses and timber. The value of the imports in 1878 was $10,753,570. Value of exports same year, $12,537,855. Imports from the United States for the year 1879-'80, $1,783,669; exports to same, $1,909,994.

Minerals.—Guiana is not richly endowed with minerals. Gold has been found about 40 miles up the Cuyuni river, but has not been successfully mined.

The Government is vested in a governor appointed by the British crown and a court of policy. The unofficial members of the court are elected by a college of electors, who are themselves elected by duly qualified inhabitants. The Episcopal is the established church of Guiana. The official list shows: 1 bishop, 1 archdeacon, 10 rectors, 14 curates, 2 incumbents and several missionaries and chaplains. The Church of England has 69 churches or chapels and 90,000 members. The Church of Scotland has 10 ministers. The Roman Catholics have also several churches and mission stations.

Education, etc.—The system of education supported by the general revenue is denominational. There are 177 schools sanctioned by the board of education. The estimate for primary education in 1879 was $148,475. The Church of England has 81 schools exclusive of those on estates for coolies. The public revenue in 1878 was $2,025,460. Half is derived from import duties, and the remainder from taxes on spirits. The expenditure in 1878 was $2,089,975. The public debt in 1877 was $1,617,815. Public and mercantile accounts are kept in dollars and cents.

For map, lists of newspapers, banks and value of money, see other departments of this work.

The resident representatives of the United States are:

Demerara—Philip Figyelmesy, consul.

Demerara—J. H. de Jonge, vice consul.

THE REPUBLIC OF CHILI.

BY W. E. HAUPT, A.B.

Portuguese, Danish, German, Italian and Swedish—Chile. Russian—Chili; or, Chile. Spanish—Chile.
French—Le Chili. Chinese—Chili Kwo. Turkish—Chili.

Location, Size, etc.—Chili is situated on the western coast of South America and extends nearly from the central portion to the southern extremity of the continent. It lies between latitude 24° and 56° south, and 70° and 74° west longitude. It is bounded on the north by Bolivia, on the east by the Argentine Republic and Patagonia, and on the south and west by the Pacific. Its breadth varies from 40 to 200 miles, and its length, including its Patagonian possessions, over which it has a nominal control, is 2,270 miles. Area, including Patagonian possession, 218,925 square miles. The population in 1878 was 2,136,724.

Topography and Geography.—Its coast is bold and rocky, and, notwithstanding its great extent, affords very few good harbors. Its eastern coast is separated from the Argentine Republic and Patagonia by the Andes, which branch out with lateral ranges across Chili. Communication across the mountains is difficult at all times, but is possible only during a part of the year. It is much more difficult to cross the Andes from the Chilian side since the western slope is much more abrupt than the eastern. The country north of Valparaiso, which is near the centre of the republic, is generally barren and sterile. By the mountains it is divided into plateaus in the interior, and valleys on the coast. The richest and most fertile portions are found in the south and central parts. In the north few lakes or rivers exist, but in the south they are more numerous. The rivers are short streams, mostly fed by melted snow from the mountains.

Earthquakes and Volcanoes.—The earthquake of 1822 raised the coast four feet above its former level. Shocks are felt every day, though a serious earthquake is experienced only about every ten years. In the Chilian portion of the Andes there are 23 volcanoes, many of which are now extinct.

Subdivisions, etc.—The republic is divided into 17 states and 2 territories. Santiago is the capital, and has a population of 129,807. Valparaiso, the port of Santiago, has a population of 97,775. Talcahuana is the best harbor, and Coquimbo is the next, but Valparaiso is the most important. Chiloe and its archipelago are the most important of the islands. They are 60 in number, 30 of which are inhabited and have harbors. Magnificent forests of cedar and cypress cover them all. The island of Juan Fernandez, which is 52 miles in circumference, and 360 miles from the coast, also belongs to Chili.

Climate.—Chili embraces the two extremes of climate, extending as it does from the hot portion on the north to the extreme south, with one part of its surface slightly above the level of the sea and another part scarcely below the snow line of the mountains. On the whole the climate is healthful and one of the finest on the globe. The atmosphere is remarkably clear, especially at night. Rain seldom falls on the desert of Atacama, in the north, but is abundant in the south. The rainy season is June, July and August. In Santiago the mean temperature is about 53° F. Violent winds and hurricanes are prevalent from the north during the summer.

Flora and Fauna.—Trees of both tropical and temperate regions flourish. The southern part is covered with dense forests of laurel, myrtle, cypress and other evergreens, which attain great size. The puma, otter, wild fox and chinchilla are common. The condor and white eagle are also found.

Soil, Agriculture, etc.—About 82 per cent. of the whole surface is desert, mountain pasture and forest, and the remaining 18 per cent. arable land. Agriculture is carried on with the most improved implements, and large flouring mills are in operation. The staple products are European grains, hemp and fruits in abundance. The central portion only is adapted to cultivation. Potatoes are indigenous. The vine and olive trees are also cultivated.

Trade.—The chief exports are copper, silver, wheat, barley, hay, potatoes, walnuts, butter, cheese, eggs and hides. The imports are sugar, rice, tea, cattle, machinery, books, etc. The value of the exports for 1877 was £5,943,474; value of imports, £5,842,553. Trade is carried on mainly with Great Britain, France, Germany, the United States and Peru, in the order named. For 1880 the value of the exports to the United States was $1,254,736; and imports from the United States, $967,776.

Minerals and Fish.—Chili is rich in minerals. Gold, silver, copper, cobalt and coal are found. The copper mines, especially, are actively developed, furnishing 70 per cent. of the metal exports. The coal mines are fast being opened. All the mines are worked with modern appliances. Minerals form 46 per cent. of total exports. Clams, mussels and sweet, oysters are caught in large quantities along the coast.

Government, Religions, etc.—Chili is of a republican form of government. It has three departments: legislative, executive, and judicial. The legislative is vested in two assemblies called the senate and chamber of deputies. The senate is composed of 20 members elected for nine years; the chamber of deputies has one representative for every 20,000 inhabitants, and the term is three years. Chief magistrates of provinces are appointed by the president. The president holds his office for five years and receives a salary of $18,000 per annum. The Roman Catholic is the established form of worship, but the public profession of other forms is tolerated.

Army, Navy, Railways, etc.—The usual standing army is 27,873. The navy consists of 22 vessels carrying 55 guns. There are 1,100 miles of railway in operation, of which 594 belong to the state. There are 3,659 miles of telegraph. The provisions for education are very good, and are being improved yearly. There are 1,585 schools, of which 987 are supported by the State. The total number of pupils in 1878 was 122,000. There is a university at Santiago, and professional courses at the lyceums of Capiape, La Serena, Valparaiso and Concepcion. One child from among every 24 inhabitants goes to school, and in the total population one out of every seven can read, and one of every eight can both read and write. In 1878 the public revenue was $20,443,977, and the expenditures $21,375,728. In the same year the public debt (exclusively to England) was $35,535,000, and the home debt was $27,647,544, making a total of $63,182,544.

THE COLONY OF DUTCH GUIANA.

BY CHARLES E. WILBUR, A.M.

Danish—Hollandsk Guayana. French—Guyane Hollandaise. German—Niederländische Guayana. Russian—Hollandskaia Gviana; or, Giana. Italian—Guiana Olandese. Spanish—Guayana Holendesa. Swedish—Holländska Guiana.

Position, Area, etc.—Dutch Guiana lies east of British Guiana, from which it is separated by the river Corentyn, in 57° 5' west longitude from Greenwich. The Dutch claim possession of 58,530 square miles. In December, 1875, the whole population was stated at 51,329, exclusive of about 17,000 bush negroes and an uncertain number of Indians. The principal rivers are the Surinam, Saramaca, Para and Maroni. Between the rivers of Dutch Guiana there are remarkable cross channels, available during the floods at least. The capital is Paramaribo.

Climate, etc.—The Climate of Dutch Guiana has long enjoyed a reputation for exceptional unhealthiness which it does not appear to deserve. Though hot and moist like a Turkish bath, it seems congenial even to the European constitution. The mean temperature of the year is 80° 4' Fahr., that of the coldest months 78°, and that of the warmest 99°. The greatest quantity of rain falls in May, June, July, September and December. There are no endemic diseases; and though cholera, fevers and small-pox have appeared occasionally, they are not more violent than in temperate regions.

Forests, Productions, etc.—A large portion of the country is covered with primeval forests. Among the most important trees are bolletrie, bruinhart, geelhart and letterwood. Besides the banana, to which the negro is indebted for a large part of his sustenance, maize, sorghum, yams, kayers, arrowroot may be mentioned from the vast list of plants of value for their edible products. The great staple of industry is sugar; cotton and coffee are next in order.

Trade, etc.—In 1876 the total export of the colony had a value of 2,762,568 florins. The imports in the same year were valued at 3,183,252 florins. Imports from the United States during the year 1879-'80, $254,796; exports to same, $281,870.

Minerals.—Gold diggings are beginning to attract attention, a rich auriferous district having been found about the Marowynne. Up to May, 1876, 519,000 acres had been rented to private persons, and a fair amount of success had attended their labors. The lead, silver and iron ores may yet prove of importance.

The Government is under the king of Holland. A house of assembly was constituted in 1865, the members of which are partly appointed by the crown and partly elected. The franchise is given to all citizens paying 40 golden of taxes. The decrees of the assembly become laws only by sanction of the king; but a royal decree may overrule the strongest opposition of the assembly, and not unfrequently does.

The resident representative of the United States is: Paramaribo—Henry Barnett, vice consul.

[Written specially for Hubbard's Newspaper and Bank Directory of the World.]

THE REPUBLIC OF ECUADOR.

BY HON. ALEXANDER M'LEAN, LATE U. S. CONSUL AT GUAYAQUIL.

Portuguese—Ecuador. Danish, German, Spanish and Swedish—Ecuador. French—L'Équateur. Italian—Ecuador. Russian—Ekvator.

Location, Provinces, etc.—The Republic of Ecuador is situated on the west coast of South America, between Peru and the United States of Colombia, and consists of nine States called provinces, embracing Azuay, Chimborazo, Esmeraldas, Guayas, Imbabura, Leon, Loja, Pichincha and Tunguragua. It contains an area of 218,900 square miles on the mainland and the archipelago of the Galápagos, situated over 500 miles from the coast. The area is equal to the New England and Middle States, with Ohio and Maryland added.

Topography, etc.—The territory is unequally divided into three districts by the Andes and Cordilleras. The center or inter-Andean valley has a mean elevation of 8,000 feet, and a climate very much like that of the wheat belt, well adapted to the cultivation of cereals and vegetables such as are produced in the temperate zone. The northern end of this valley is the highest and contains Quito, the capital, a city estimated at 80,000 population. The southern end of the valley produces large quantities of cinchona bark, from which quinine is obtained. The eastern division slopes gradually from the mountains to the plains of Brazil, and is irrigated by the head-waters of the Amazon and its tributaries. It is a region little known to science and unknown to commerce, though rich in tropical products. Its natural outlet in the future will be through the Amazon when the demands of commerce shall have opened it to the world. The western division is the farthest advanced in every particular and embraces the territory between the mountains and the sea. It is irrigated by numerous streams, dotted with towns, and possesses the most fertile soil known. The total population, as far as the official census shows, is 1,350,000; but this does not show the actual population. In the eastern section the population is indigenous and savage, the government scarcely represented and the country unmapped except by guess-work, the only data having been furnished by Humboldt.

Trade and Commerce.—The two western divisions are civilized and carry on an extensive trade with foreign countries. The principal seaports are Guayaquil and Esmeraldas, both State capitals. The trade statistics of Esmeraldas and the other towns on the coast have never been compiled, but the trade of Guayaquil was carefully examined by the resident United States consul in 1879 in accordance with instructions sent out by Hon. Wm. M. Evarts, secretary of state. The foreign trade of Guayaquil for 1879 showed $7,500,000 of imports and $9,437,241.03 of exports, making a total of nearly $18,000,000. The tonnage of the port for the same year was, entering, 215,820; clearing, 215,612; total, 431,432 tons, of which 236 were steam and 117 sailing vessels. The exports were: Staples of agriculture, $8,998,773.39; farm produce, including timber, $260,824.52, and manufactured articles, $177,643.12. The imports from the United States were $1,148,350.88, and the exports $723,436.79. As there seems to be neither official nor private data of a reliable kind for the estimate of the foreign trade of the other ports, it is impossible to form an accurate estimate of the total value of the trade, but it probably amounts to a grand total of $25,000,000, including exports and imports. The principal articles of export are cacao, rubber, hides, ivory nuts and cinchona bark.

Mineral Wealth.—The country is rich in mineral products, but owing to the indifference of the people, and the lack of efficient protection to capital, no attempt is made to carry on mining enterprises. Gold and silver are found in great quantities in several sections, but no one works the mines. Iron and coal oil could be worked profitably, and pitch and salt mines are worked as a government monopoly.

Railways.—There is only one railroad in the country. It is owned and operated by the government and is intended to afford a railway between Quito and Guayaquil. About 45 miles have been completed, but on a middle section, so that it is comparatively useless. The road is a narrow gauge and the equipments are from the United States. There are no telegraph lines in the country.

Postal System.—The postal system divides naturally into foreign and domestic. The foreign mails are regular and generally reliable. The service is performed by ocean steamers, which connect five times per month with Panama, and four times per month with Callao and ports south. It is conducted in accordance with the Berne convention, Ecuador having been admitted to the universal postal union in July, 1880. The domestic service to river towns from Guayaquil is performed by river steamers and is regular every second day. Every provincial capital has regular messenger service, and most of the towns have communication through these as distributing points. The mails are not generally considered reliable, and the absence of trained employés is a great disadvantage.

Agriculture, as a science, is unknown. The only crop attended to with care is cacao, the principal wealth of the country. In 1879 the export of this bean exceeded $6,000,000. There is a tax of 10 per cent. on agricultural produce, and this prevents its development. There is not a wagon road in the country, and crops reach a market in canoes. The implements sparingly used are very similar to those of the ancient Egyptians. Oats are threshed by driving cattle over them, and corn is gathered and sold by the individual ear. The crops raised for export are cacao, coffee, rice, sugar, cotton and tobacco. Rubber and cinchona are not properly crops. They are obtained in a barbarous manner by killing the trees, in the case of rubber for the sap and in that of cinchona for the bark.

Popular Education is entirely controlled by the priesthood, Church and State being united. Each province has a bishop, and is subdivided into parishes, each of which has a public school. The curriculum is limited to preliminary branches, and the books in use are illy adapted for children. There are colleges of law and medicine in Quito and Guayaquil of limited capacity, though offering a fair education. The laboring classes are illiterate, and not over 50 per cent. of the population are able to read and write.

The Government is vested in an executive and congress. The president holds office four years, and the congressional sessions are held every second year. The form of government is based on the democratic system of the United States, and the jurisprudence on the laws of Spain. The provinces are territorial and have governors appointed by the president. The judiciary are appointed, except in the commercial courts, where they are elected by the matriculated merchants of the city or parish of their jurisdiction. Civil suits are tried before them and criminal causes before the criminal courts. Appeals from each are taken to the supreme court which combines law and equity proceedings. A standing army of 2,500 men is maintained, which with the salaries of the priesthood and officials of the several departments are the national sources of expenditure. The budget shows a chronic deficit.

Popular Characteristics.—The people are polite, hospitable and inclined to commerce. Their activity is surprising in a tropical country, and they accomplish wonders considering the means at their command. What they principally lack is such laws as will enable them to offer security to foreign capital and mutual confidence. The lack of these prevents the formation of companies to carry on large enterprises. The laws prohibit freedom of conscience, and this operates against immigration. A general disregard of sanitary rules, through ignorance on the part of the lower classes, and carelessness in other quarters, invites epidemic diseases, and to a certain extent neutralizes the natural increase so that the population remains about stationary as to numbers. The resident foreign element is smaller than in most of the South American countries, though few extend a more hearty welcome to foreign business men who come among them. A knowledge of the Spanish language, the national language, and a small capital, will guarantee success to any enterprising foreigner who may elect to reside in the country.

Inducements to Immigrants.—The forests abound in valuable wood and game, the rivers supply excellent fish in great quantities, the vegetable products are unlimited, the sea shore offers openings for marine investments or pearl fisheries, the rivers for steamboating and in many instances for placer gold diggings, the fertile soil offers sites for farms, and the towns supply markets. It can readily be seen that there is an abundant margin for improvement and profitable investment.

THE COLONY OF FRENCH GUIANA.

BY CHARLES E. WILBUR, A.M.

French—La Guyane. Danish—Fransk Guyana. German—Französische Guayana. Russian—Frantsúzskaia Gviana. Italian—Guiana Francese. Spanish—Guyana Francesa. Swedish—Franska Guiana.

Boundaries, etc.—French Guiana is bounded on the west by the Maroni river, which separates it from Dutch Guiana. Toward the south and east its limits are still uncertain. According to the treaty of Utrecht in 1713, it was to be bounded toward Brazil by the river St. Vincent Pinzon, but the identification of this river has never been officially determined. On the north it is bounded by the Atlantic. Its area is 27,560 square miles; but if the frontier be pushed back to the watershed it is 53,000 square miles. The population in 1877 was 27,000. Cayenne is the capital, with a population in 1877 of 7,000.

Topography, etc.—Along the coast there is a belt of flat, rich, alluvial land, and also up the rivers. Much of this is covered with mangrove marshes. Inland 40 or 50 miles, the traveler reaches the outskirts of those primeval forests which stretch back vast and vague toward the mountains.

Climate.—The rainy season begins in November or December and lasts till the latter part of June. During the remainder of the year there is scarcely a drop of rain. The temperature never exceeds 88° F., nor falls below 70°.

Agriculture, etc.—Manioc is the principal food, rice, maize, yams, arrowroot, bananas and bread-fruit are known. Cloves and cinnamon have been successfully introduced. Among the trees are cocoa-palm, oil-palm, date-palm, and caoutchouc.

Trade and Minerals.—The value of imports in 1871 was 5,903,413 francs. Exports were valued at 2,715,597 francs. Imports from the United States in 1879–80, $76,034; exports to same $3,272. Gold is obtained in considerable quantity. In 1874, 4,000,000 francs in gold were exported from Cayenne, and in 1875 and 1876 the yield was 4,823 ounces per month. It is thought also that iron abounds.

Government.—Besides the governor and the military commandant, the administrative personnel comprises an ordonnateur, a director of the interior, and a procurator-general, as well as a privy council, and a director of the penitentiary service. There is a court of appeals and a tribunal of first instance, and justices of the peace are appointed for each canton. Religious affairs are under an apostolic prefect.

THE FALKLAND ISLANDS.

BY JOHN C. TALCOTT, A.M.

Location, etc.—The Falkland Islands, belonging to Great Britain, lie in the Southern Atlantic ocean, 250 miles east of South America, and between 51° to 52° 35' south, and 57° 20' to 61° 40' longitude west. They number about 200, mostly quite small. There are two large islands, East Falkland, with an area of 3,000 square miles, and West Falkland, having 2,000 square miles. The islands possess good harbors and form a convenient stopping place for vessels passing around Cape Horn. In 1876 the population numbered 1,250, of whom 127 were children in school.

Industries, Trade, etc.—The great industry is sheep farming, and it is estimated that there are about 200,000 sheep on the islands. In 1876 the total exports were about $180,000, of which wool made up $125,000. Seals are killed in great numbers for the sake of the oil. There are no trees on the islands, and only a few vegetables will grow there. Wheat, barley and oats will not ripen. Rain falls about 250 days in the year, although the annual fall is only about 20 inches. The chief town is Port Stanley, on East Falkland, having, in 1876, a population of 800 inhabitants.

The resident representative of the United States is Geo. M. Dean, vice-consul, Port Stanley.

THE REPUBLIC OF PARAGUAY.

BY C. C. OTIS, A.B.

Spanish, Danish, German, Italian, Portuguese and Swedish—Paraguay. French—Le Paraguay. Russian—Paragvái. Turkish—Paragua.

Situation, Size, etc.—Paraguay is a republic of South America, bounded on the north and north-east by Brazil, on the south-east, south and south-west by the Argentine Republic, and is touched on the north-west by Bolivia. The territory extends from latitude $21^{\circ} 27'$ to $27^{\circ} 30'$ south, and from longitude $55^{\circ} 21'$ to $58^{\circ} 40'$ west, with an area variously estimated from 57,000 to 90,000 square miles. No accurate census of the people has ever been taken, and the number of inhabitants is variously estimated at from 100,000 to 1,300,000; but probably the population will not exceed 200,000, as it was greatly reduced during the late war with Brazil (1865-70). The greater proportion of the population is Indian.

Topography, etc.—The southern portion of Paraguay consists almost entirely of swamps and jungles, so that the land is practically of no value. Farther to the north it is more elevated and fertile. The greatest elevation nowhere exceeds 3,500 feet, as there are no mountains in this part of South America. The country is well watered by various tributaries to the Parana river on the south and east, and to the Paraguay on the west. There are also numerous lakes, the largest covering an area of 100 square miles.

Climate.—During the summer, from November to February, the average temperature is 90° F., in the shade; in the winter months, June, July and August, the mean temperature is about 50° , and the maximum 40° . In the more elevated and cultivated regions the climate is pronounced one of the most salubrious in the world.

Flora and Fauna.—A large portion of the country is covered with forests, and every variety of vegetation grows luxuriantly. There are no wild animals peculiar to this country, the animal kingdom being similar to that of Brazil.

Agriculture, Trade, etc.—In certain portions agriculture is zealously carried on, but owing to the lack of laborers since the war not more than half of the most fertile districts are under cultivation. Maize, tobacco, rice, cotton, sugar-cane, and all the tropical fruits are cultivated. Yerba maté is also extensively cultivated as a substitute for tea. The chief exports are yerba maté, tobacco, dry hides, tanned hides, bark for tanning, oranges and timber. The imports include silks, woolens, linens, cottons, hardware, wines, groceries, etc.

Minerals.—No minerals of any importance have ever been found.

Government, etc.—The constitution of the government was, in 1870, based mainly upon that of the Argentine Republic. The executive authority is vested in a president elected for six years, aided by a cabinet of five ministers. The dominant religion is Roman Catholic. Well directed and determined efforts are now being put forth for general education. The standing army is only 2,000 strong. Financially, the country is in a terrible condition, as the result of the late war, the whole amount of indebtedness being not far from $200,000,000. No direct trade exists with the United States.

For map, lists of newspapers, banks and value of money, see other departments of this work.

The representative of the United States is, also in Uruguay :

Montevideo, Uruguay—J. C. Caldwell, chargé d'affaires.

THE REPUBLIC OF PERU.

BY W. E. HAUPT, A.B.

French—Le Pérou. Danish and German—Peru. Russian—Перу. Italian—Perù. Spanish, Portuguese, Swedish, Chinese and Turkish—Peru.

Location, Size, etc.—Peru is situated on the western coast of South America, and its coast extends more than 1,000 miles along the Pacific Ocean. It is bounded on the north by Ecuador, on the east by Brazil and Bolivia, on the south by Chili, and on the west by the Pacific. It lies between $3^{\circ} 20'$ and $22^{\circ} 20'$ south latitude, and 67° and $81^{\circ} 26'$ west longitude. Its total length is about 1,250 miles, and its width from 60 to 750 miles. Its area is estimated at 500,000 square miles. In 1876 its population was 2,683,075.

Topography and Geography.—The entire extent of the republic is traversed by two parallel ranges of the Andes, which divide the country into three divisions: Costa, Sierra and Montana. The Costa extends along the entire coast and is about 30 miles in width. It is an extended sandy waste on which no rains fall. Sierra, which comprises nearly one-third of the whole area, nine-tenths of the cultivated land, and four-fifths of the population, is situated between the two ranges, about 7,000 feet above the sea. This is by far the most important division. Montana contains the portion east of the Andes. This is occupied mostly by Indians, and has not been explored wholly. It is supposed to be quite fertile, and contains most of the large rivers by which navigation could be carried on through the Amazon to the Atlantic. The coast has very few good harbors, of which Callao is by far the most important. Its roads are generally bad and most of its transportation is done by mules.

Subdivisions and Cities.—The republic is divided into 21 departments. Lima is the capital and has a population of 160,056. Cuzco has a population of 50,000, and Arequipa of 40,000. Callao is the harbor of Lima.

Climate.—The country, differing so much in elevation, presents a great variety of temperature. Along the coast it is dry and hot, in the central or elevated portion it is quite cold, while in the extreme east it is hot again. The coast section is moistened mostly by vapors from the ocean; the central portion is subject to sudden and extreme changes of wet and dry seasons; while similar conditions, but with more regularity, occur in the east. On account of the dryness there are no streams in the north, and even those in the southern part are at times wholly dry.

Flora and Fauna.—Montana is considered the most beautiful portion of Peru on account of the foliage which covers its hills. In Peru are found most valuable forests of cedar, ebony, mahogany and walnut; also the cinchona tree, which yields "Peruvian" bark. Of animals, there is puma, jaguar, bear, deer, boar, fox, armadillo, and a species of monkey.

Alligators are found in the rivers, and seals and tortoises on the coast. Peruvian sheep are of the valuable animals, of which there are the llama, alpaca, guanaco and the vicuna. There are also large flocks of common sheep, sometimes numbering as many as 80,000, besides horses, asses and black cattle.

Agriculture.—Agriculture is carried on in a primitive manner in the interior, but in other localities modern appliances are found. Near the coast there are large plantations of cotton and sugar on which the ploughing is mostly done by steam. The vine, olive and tobacco are cultivated, and the sweet potato, being indigenous, grows in great quantities in the valleys.

Trade.—The chief exports are guano, alpaca, nitrate of soda, Peruvian bark, sugar, cotton and wines. The imports are woollen, linen, cotton fabrics, railway materials, coal, silks and petroleum. The exports to the United States for the year 1879-'80 were valued at $361,308, and the imports from same at $918,136. At present its greatest source of wealth is its immense beds of guano which are found on the coast and neighboring islands. These beds have been found to extend to a depth of 80 feet, and on the Chincha islands the quantity is estimated at millions of tons. Peru's trade in this exceeds all the remainder of its commerce.

Minerals, etc.—In mineral wealth Peru is exceedingly rich. There are about 15,000 mines of all descriptions in the country, about 600 of which are worked. It is intended to open a tunnel at Cerro de Pasco, which will bring to access a mine of silver valued at $500,000,000. There exists in Peru a mine of saltpetre embracing an area of 50 square miles. In the year 1878, 450,000 tons of guano, 250,000 tons of saltpetre and 200,000 tons of sugar were exported. The rivers and lakes are well supplied with fish, among which the salmon is found.

Government, Religions, etc.—In government Peru is modeled after the United States. Its senate is composed of 44 members and its house of 110. The term of its president and vice-president is four years. There is here absolute political but no religious freedom. The Roman Catholic is the established church. The regular standing army consists of 13,200 men. The navy has four iron-clads and six steamers, which carry 77 cannon. The total length of railways is 2,030 miles. In 1873 there were 1,000 miles of telegraph, but of poor service. All lines belong to the government.

Education, etc.—In no part of Spanish America is education more sedulously cared for than in Peru. Schools of all grades are established throughout the country for the education of both sexes. These consist of primary, grammar, normal, schools of arts and sciences, naval and military. There are six universities. Those at Lima are considered the best in South America. Over 100,000 pupils attend the schools. Education is compulsory and gratuitous. There is no direct taxation in Peru, but the revenue is derived from customs duties and from the working of the mines, which are a government monopoly. In 1873 its revenue was $23,499,653, and its expenditures $17,380,516. In July, 1879, its foreign debt was $226,340,516, and home debt, $20,000,000. In consequence of the recent war the interest on its public debt remains unpaid, and its finances are in a deplorable state.

Present Condition.—The recent unfortunate war between the republics of Chili and Peru, resulting in the occupation by the armed forces of the former of the national capital of the latter, in the overthrow of the organized government of Peru, and in the dispersion of its armies, has placed the defeated nation apparently at the mercy of its conquerors. It remains to be seen what results will flow from the sanguinary contest which for two years has involved these republics, and how far the integrity of the domain and the form of government of Peru may be affected. The present occupation of Peru by the armies of Chili has re-opened the Peruvian ports, so long closed by blockade, to trade and commerce. No interference has been made by the Chilian military authorities with the administration of the municipal government of Lima, where good order has been preserved, and security to life and property assured, since its surrender to the victorious army of Chili.

THE PROVINCE OF PATAGONIA.

[BELONGING TO THE ARGENTINE REPUBLIC.]

BY C. C. OTIS, A.B.

French—La Patagonie. Russian, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and Turkish—Patagonia. Danish, German and Swedish—Patagonien.

Location, etc.—Patagonia is a territory in South America, bounded on the north by the Argentine Republic and the Rio Negro, which separate it from the Pampas; on the north-west by the Chilian territories; on the east by the Atlantic; on the south by the Strait of Magellan, and on the west by the Andes, separating it from the Republic of Chile. Its length is about 1,100 miles, extending from latitude 38° 42' to 53° 52' south, and from longitude 63° 9' to 75° 30' west. It has an area of 350,000 square miles and a population of not more than 4,000.

Topography, etc.—The Andes mountains divide the country into two natural divisions, the territory on the Atlantic side being far the greater. Across the Strait of Magellan are numerous islands belonging to Patagonia, with coasts as rugged as those of Norway. Taken as a whole Patagonia may be regarded as a barren, desolate country, but along the eastern base of the Andes there are sections remarkably picturesque and fertile. The inhabitants are for the most part native Indians. They are divided into nine tribes, but all speak the same language. Efforts to colonize Patagonia have proved futile, and the territory will doubtless remain unpopulated for centuries to come. Through the combined effects of disease and intemperance the population is steadily decreasing. The territory lying west of the Andes belongs, without dispute, to the Republic of Chile; that east has until within a recent period been claimed both by Chile and the Argentine Republic. A late treaty has confirmed the claim of the latter to all that part lying east of the Andean range. It has no organized government and no external trade. The only towns within it are Punta Arenas, on the Strait of Magellan, a convict colony, with about 1,000 inhabitants, and Chupat, a Welsh settlement, population about 150, situated on the river of same name, in the north-east part of the territory. There is a railroad at the southern extremity from Punta Arenas to the coal mines in the interior.

THE REPUBLIC OF URUGUAY.

BY. C. C. OTIS, A.B.

Spanish, Danish, French, German, Italian, Portuguese and Swedish—Uruguay. Russian—Uruguay.

Location, etc.—Uruguay, or Banda Oriental del Uruguay, is a republic of South America, bounded north, northeast and east by Brazil, southeast and south by the Atlantic, and on the southwest and west by the Rio de la Plata and the Uruguay rivers, which separate it from the Argentine Republic. It extends from latitude 30° to 35° south, and from longitude 53° to 58° 30' west, embracing an area of 71,740 square miles, and having in 1876 a population of 445,000, most of whom were foreigners, the aborigines having wholly disappeared.

Topography, etc.—The coast line accessible to shipping has a length of 625 miles—200 miles on the Atlantic, 155 miles on the Plata, and 270 miles on the Uruguay; while the land frontier is only 450 miles. The general character of the country is that of wide, open, grassy plains, with here and there low, well-wooded ridges, from which descend numerous streams in all directions. The principal river is the Rio Negro, which rises in the Sierra Santa Anna and divides the country into two nearly equal parts from northeast to southwest, emptying into the Uruguay after a course of about 350 miles.

Subdivisions, etc.—The subdivisions of the republic, with their population in 1872, and capitals, can be seen from the following table:

Departments.	Population.	Capital.
Cerro Largo	33,000	Villa de Melo.
Colonia	22,508	Colonia del Sacramento.
Durazno	16,281	Durazno.
Florida	19,900	Florida.
Guadalupe	48,000	Canelones.
Maldonado	18,750	Maldonado.
Minas	27,163	Minas.
Montevideo	127,704	Montevideo.
Paysander	33,052	Paysander.
Salto	32,602	Salto.
San José	20,115	San José.
Soriano	21,403	San Salvador.
Tacuarembó	34,000	San Fructuoso.

The capital of the republic is Montevideo, with 120,000 inhabitants.

Climate.—The climate is very changeable, though in most parts mild, and healthy. The mercury ranges from 32° to 88° F. Snow seldom falls, but there is an abundance of rain at all times of the year.

Products.—The soil is very rich, yielding abundant crops of grain, fruits, vegetables, sugar-cane and cotton. The varieties of trees are numerous, embracing the walnut, willow, cedar, myrtle, mulberry, laurel, orange, lemon, olive, fig, apple, pear, peach, plum, cherry, etc. The deer, ostrich, partridge, duck, parrot, swan and wild-goose are found in abundance. The principal occupation of the people is cattle-raising. In 1874 the country possessed 7,254,000 horned cattle, 1,463,000 horses, and 18,474,000 sheep.

Trade, etc.—The principal exports are hides, wool, tallow, beef, etc., the value of which in 1874 amounted to $15,240,000, according to official records, but in reality it was much larger, as various devices are employed to avoid the heavy export duty. The value of the imports for the same year was $16,320,000. On January 1, 1875, the public debt was $42,357,695. The army numbers about 3,000. There are about 400 schools of various kinds, with an average attendance of 16,786. The prevailing religion is Roman Catholic.

Railways, etc.—About 200 miles of railway are in operation, the chief lines being the Northwestern and the Central Uruguay, with branches. Montevideo is the terminus for the most important roads. The imports into Uruguay from the United States for the fiscal year 1879-'80 were $928,451; exports to the United States, $5,541,935.

For map, list of newspapers, banks and value of money, see other departments of this work.

THE UNITED STATES OF COLOMBIA.

BY CHARLES E. WILBUR, A.M.

Spanish—Estados Unidos de Colombia. Danish—Forenøde Stater Columbia. French—Etats-Unis de Colombie. German—Die Vereinigten Staaten von Columbien. Russian—Soiediniónnyie Shtáty Kolumbei. Italian—Stati Uniti de Colombia. Portuguese—Estados Unidos de Columbia. Swedish—Förenade Staterna af Columbien. Turkish—Eyalati Muttefickeyee Columbia.

Position, etc.—The United States of Colombia, formerly called New Granada, is a republic of South America, occupying the north-west corner of that continent, between latitude $3^{\circ} 38'$ south, and $12^{\circ} 30'$ north, and longitude $65^{\circ} 50'$ and $83^{\circ} 5'$ west from Greenwich. It is bounded on the north by the Caribbean sea, north-east and east by Venezuela, south-east and south by Brazil and Equador, and west by the Pacific ocean. Area in square miles, 533,000. Its population in 1870 was 2,894,992.

Sub-divisions, etc.—It is sub-divided into the following States, nine in number: Antioquia, Bolivar, Boyacá, Cauca, Cundinamarca, Magdalena, Panama, Santander and Tolima, besides several territories. The capital is Bogota, with a population of 50,000; Cartagena, Santa Marta, Sabanilla, or Baranquilla, Rio Hicha, Buenaventura, Panamá and Lumaco are other principal towns.

Topography, etc.—The natural configuration of the country is peculiar. The Cordillera of the Andes, from the point where it enters the country from the south, forming the plateau of Pasto and Luqueres, elevated 14,000 feet above the sea, opens out like an extended hand in three great ranges called the eastern, central and western, between which are the two large and beautiful valleys of Cauca and Magdalena. The east branch of the Cordilleras is much the greatest in extent; it forms what may be called the heart of the republic, and consists of a series of great table-lands or plateaus, from 8,000 to 14,000 feet in elevation, cool and salubrious, where the Caucasian race flourishes in all its strength, to the exclusion of the African, who naturally seeks the hot valleys of the coast.

The Climate, on the highlands and plateaus, is temperate and healthful, but in the lowlands and along the coast there is a great extreme of heat, though it is not necessarily unhealthy.

The Flora of the republic combines species belonging to almost the entire range of the tropical, inter-tropical, and temperate zones. The traveler frequently encounters in a single day the four seasons of the year, and the vegetable peculiarities of the three central zones of the earth. He finds wheat, potatoes, the breadfruit, Peruvian bark (quina), cedar, balsam tolu, vanilla, lignumvitæ, mahogany, wax tree, caoutchouc and the three trees perhaps most precious of all, viz: albatogue, the vine of the cross, and the arisa, all remarkable specifics, the first against inflammation, the second for stanching effusions of the blood, and the third for instantaneously stopping bleeding at the nose.

Trade.—The total imports in 1875-6 had a value of $6,709,109; the exports $10,049,071. During the year ending June 30, 1880, the exports of merchandise from the United States of Colombia to the United States amounted in volume to $8,447,972; imports from the United States, $5,337,314; the total trade with this country amounting in value to $13,779,286.

Minerals.—The republic abounds in rich auriferous alluvions of great extent. There is hardly a state which does not possess in its soil more or less gold. It is claimed that Choco, Antioquia, Mariquita, Papayau, Pamplona, Ocaña, Bucaramanga and other places are exceedingly rich in that metal. Even now, though rudely worked by a few laborers, they produce annually from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 worth. Choco produces nearly all the platinum, and Muzo the emeralds which are now found in foreign markets, and in various parts of the country are mines of silver, copper, lead, iron, quicksilver, coal amethysts and other varieties of valuable stones and minerals. But mining industry, together with manufacturing, is generally backward.

Government.—The constitution of the republic is modeled closely after that of the United States. Complete freedom in religion and worship is conceded, and there is absolute independence of church and state. Trial by jury, freedom of the press, free navigation of the rivers in the interior of the republic for all flags, prohibition of monopolies, abolition of slavery, and of the penalty of death for political offences, gratuitous primary education, the establishment of a public school in every parochial district, equal rights of foreigners with citizens, freedom of foreign and domestic periodicals from postage, a decimal money system, freedom of the ports of the Isthmus of Panama, and liberal encouragement of immigration, are among the laws and guaranties which have distinguished the policy of the country and its government.

Education.—There are 800 public schools, 60 seminaries and colleges for higher and professional education, 47 printing establishments, various literary and scientific societies and theatres, 3 hospitals, 2 asylums, 1 of which is for orphans, and a number of savings banks for the poor, administered gratuitously, and paying an interest of one per cent. a month.

Army.—The federal army of this republic consists of 3,000 men on a peace footing; but in time of war each state is bound to furnish a contingent of one in a hundred of its population.

Railways, etc.—The carriage roads of the country are not good, and this is a great hindrance to industry. Besides the railway across the Isthmus of Panama, there is another short line in operation, and about 1,250 miles of telegraph wires have been erected.

Revenues, etc.—The revenue in 1878 was $4,838,800, and the expenditure $7,271,933. The revenue has fallen so low, chiefly on account of the abolition of the tobacco monopoly, and the surrender of imposts on freights and travel across the isthmus of Panama. The public treasury, though weighed down with an exterior debt of $16,000,000, inherited from the old republic, has been managed with great integrity. Before the year 1861 the official name of the republic was New Granada. The educated classes of the people rank among the first in South America for their scientific and literary culture. The people of Socorro and Antioquia have been called the "New Englanders of New Granada," from their laborious industry, and mercantile enterprise. The women are celebrated for their grace and beauty.

ADVERTISING SCHEMES vs. LEGITIMATE NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE.

There are two distinct classes into which the many advertising mediums for the countries of the world may be divided, viz: 1st, Legitimate Newspaper Enterprise, by which advertisers can use newspapers that are printed and published in those countries, and have a bona-fide cash paying circulation among merchants, planters, land-owners, and the public generally; and 2d, Advertising Schemes, consisting of papers and circulars that are printed in the United States, the proprietors claiming for them a circulation in the countries from which business is desired. Of the Advertising Scheme class it is safe to say that very few of them are ever circulated abroad, except gratuitously through consuls and shipping offices; and that being foreign, they cannot be so influential as newspapers with which the people are familiar. In attestation of this statement, we have the testimony of many leading men who have traveled in South America, Africa, Australia and other countries, and have arrived at this conclusion after giving the matter careful study.

New York supports 145,749 males between the ages of 15 and 30 years, and 172,777 females between the same ages. About 30,000 of the latter are domestics.

The New York police arrested last year 71,699 persons, 47,798 of whom were held, while 23,899 were discharged. Crimes of violence are on the increase. In 1880 they numbered 5,790.

The New York city prisons opened their doors last year to 30,825 persons of intemperate habits. The police stations furnished lodgings to 120,084 men and women who had nowhere else to sleep.

New York's organized charitable societies disbursed $4,000,000; and 141,765 persons were committed by the Commissioners of Public Charities and Correction to the almshouses, prisons, hospitals, nurseries, schools, and asylums.

New York's Sunday school scholars of all denominations number 115,826, in 418 Sunday schools.

New York's street Arabs, growing up without instruction and learning to be criminals, form an army of over 10,000.

New York has, according to the United States census of 1880, 1,206,577 inhabitants, of whom 590,762 are males and 615,815 females.

New York has a floating population of about 30,000. This includes sojourners at hotels, boarding and lodging houses, and emigrants temporarily stopping in town.

New York expended for amusements, theatres, operas, and shows about $7,000,000 last year, and in the drinking places nearly $60,000,000, the latter expenditure resulting in the arrest of 48,191 persons for intoxication.

New York's accession of population by birth last year was about 35,000; its loss by death just 31,866.

In New York live 213,467 families, occupying 67,126 dwelling houses.

New York's weddings last year reached the number of 20,000.

THE REPUBLIC OF VENEZUELA.

BY C. C. OTIS, A.B.

Spanish, Danish, Turkish, Arabic and Persian—Venezuela. French, German, Russian, Italian, Portuguese and Swedish—Vénézuëla.

Location, Size, etc.—Venezuela is in the extreme north of South America, extending from latitude $1^{\circ} 8'$ to $12^{\circ} 16'$ north, and from longitude 60° to $73^{\circ} 17'$ west. It is bounded on the north by the Caribbean sea; on the east by the Atlantic ocean and British Guiana; on the south by Brazil, and on the west by the United States of Colombia. It comprises an area of 403,000 square miles, and in 1873 had a population of 1,784,194, of whom 17,000 are pure whites, about 52,000 Indians, and the remainder a mixture of Spaniards, Indians and negroes.

Topography, etc.—The coast along the Atlantic is for the most part low and sandy; but along the Caribbean sea, it is alternately low and swampy, and bold and rocky, forming many excellent harbors. North and south of the Orinoco river there are two distinct mountain systems. The average height of the mountains is from 5,000 to 6,500 feet, but in the Sierra Nevadas two peaks reach an altitude of 15,000 feet. The whole territory is remarkably well watered by the Orinoco with its 400 navigable tributaries, besides several hundred streams which empty into the Caribbean sea. Lakes and lagoons are also numerous. The soil is generally exceedingly fertile, and the primeval forests contain excellent timber, such as mahogany, satin-wood, ebony, etc. The average rain fall for 80 days at Carácas, the capital, is 330 inches. This is during the rainy season; but in many parts of the country during the dry season there are frequent rains.

Sub-divisions, etc.—The principal sub-divisions with their capitals and population for 1873 can be seen from the following table:

States.	Population.	Capitals.
Apure	18,635	San Fernando.
Barcelona	101,396	Barcelona.
Barquesimeto	143,818	Barquesimeto.
Bolívar	129,143	La Guayra.
Carabobo	117,695	Valencia.
Cójeles	85,678	San Carlos.
Cumaná	55,476	Cumaná.
Falcon or Coro	99,920	Coro.
Guárico	191,000	Calabozo.
Guayana	34,653	Ciudad Bolívar
Guzman Blanco	94,151	Victoria.
Maturín	47,863	Maturín.
Merida	67,849	Merida.
Nueva Esparta (Margarita)	39,983	Asuncion.
Portuguesa	79,934	Guanare.
Táchira	68,619	San Cristobal.
Trujillo	108,672	Trujillo.
Yaracuí	71,689	San Felipe.
Zamorá	59,449	Barinas.
Zulia	59,235	Maracaybo.
Federal district	60,010	Carácas.
Territory of Amazonas	23,048	Carácas.
Total	1,784,194

The capital, Carácas, has a population of 48,897; Valencia, 28,594; Barquesimeto, 25,664; Maracaybo, 21,954; Maturín, 12,944. The census of June, 1876, showed an increase of the total population of the Republic to 1,882,236.

Climate.—Like all the mountainous countries of Spanish America, Venezuela presents three grand divisions as to climate: the hot, the temperate, and the cold, the average annual temperature being respectively 80° F., 65° to 75° , and in the cold regions the mercury descends according to the altitude reached.

Flora and Fauna.—All varieties of palm trees are found here, and the cocoa palm is especially abundant, so that cocoanut oil is exported in considerable quantities. Wild animals are very numerous, embracing the panther, jaguar, tiger cat, tapir, black bear, fox, deer, badger, fourteen varieties of monkeys, fifteen varieties of snakes, besides various rodents, amphibious quadrupeds, etc. The streams all abound in fish.

Agriculture, etc.—The principal products of agriculture are cacao, coffee, tobacco, cotton, indigo, sugar-cane, maize, wheat, and various kinds of fruits. The chief occupation of the people, however, is cattle raising. In 1873 the country possessed 1,389,802 head of horned cattle, 1,128,273 sheep and goats, 93,800 horses, 47,200 mules, 281,000 asses, and 362,579 swine. Only about 1-368 of the area of the republic is under cultivation, or 1,094 square miles, while the whole cultivable region is said to embrace an area of 105,384 square miles.

Trade.—The principal articles of export are cotton cacao, sugar, indigo, tobacco, salt, hides, cattle, tallow, horns and cabinet woods. The imports include cotton, linen, silk, flour, provisions, hardware, wines and spices. The value of the exports for the year 1876-'7 was $15,000,000, and of the imports $16,110,000. Exports to the United States for the year ending June 30, 1880, $6,039,092; imports from same, $2,330,745.

Minerals.—The mineral wealth of the country seems to be very great, though as yet the mining industry is very little developed. The minerals found embrace diamonds and precious stones, gold, silver, platinum, copper, iron, tin, zinc, lead, quicksilver, etc.

Government.—Venezuela is a federal republic, the constitution being a close imitation of that of the United States of America. The executive power is vested in a president elected for four years, aided by a cabinet of six members; but the president has no veto power.

Religions.—The dominant religion is Roman Catholic, but other religions are tolerated. The clergy are strictly subordinate to the civil power.

The Army, Education, etc.—In 1875 the army was 30,000 strong. The educational advantages of Venezuela are superior to those of any neighboring country, and the interest is continually increasing. In 1875 the number of primary schools was 541 with 18,081 pupils. The university at Carácas had in the same year 19 professors and 165 students. Elsewhere in the republic there are colleges and private schools.

Revenue, etc.—In 1874-'5 the national revenue amounted to $6,702,080, and the expenditures to $6,143,130. The public debt amounted to $100,000,000 at the end of the year 1876.

The resident representatives of the United States are as follows:

Cardcas—Jehu Baker, Minister Resident.

Barcelona—Ignacio H. Baiz, consular agent.

Ciudad Bolívar—John Dalton, consul.

La Guayra—James W. Siler, consul.

Maracaibo—E. H. Plumacher, commercial agent.

Puerto Cabello—Richard Kolster, vice consul.

CONCERNING NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

[From J. H. Bates' Advertisers' Guide Book.]

A good many people think it almost disreputable to advertise in the newspapers, and speak of those who practise it in a disparaging kind of way. This sentiment originated in the so-called learned professions of Divinity, Law, and Physic. The first two of these have excellent advertising methods of their own.

The doctor of a regular school of medicine will sit down and starve before he will call attention to himself in the newspapers. If he thinks highly of a remedy, and is prescribing it, he will stop if he finds it advertised in the newspapers, and thereafter denounce it as a quack medicine. These ethics are relics of codes held two hundred years ago, when the profession knew no better than to let blood for almost every disorder, and stanch an amputated stump by dipping it in hot tar. This absurd prejudice has filtered down among the business classes, many of whom feel in a vague way that there is something belittling in announcing their goods in the newspapers. Merchants and manufacturers will shrink from saying in print one-tenth of what they authorize their traveling men to say to their customers face to face, not because the traveling men are authorized to say anything that cannot honorably be said, but because of this lingering and unreasonable prejudice against newspaper advertising.

This is wearing away, and more and more all classes come to believe that the appropriate place for expressing any of the manifold wants of the complex civilization of these times, or the ability to supply them, is the column of the newspaper. Indeed the first notion of a newspaper in England came from the recognized want of a quick and commodious way of bringing buyer and seller together; so much so, that the first newspaper begun in 1660*—a "diurnal," printed on a single leaf, and named the Publick Advice—had advertising for its chief object. In 1689 it had become sixteen pages quarto.

Quite often business men insist that they cannot afford to advertise in the newspapers, although they regard them as suitable and profitable mediums of intercourse with the public, because the margin of profit on their particular goods is so small.

It should be borne in mind that the cost of doing a business does not keep pace with the increase of such business. Certain principal expenses, such as rent, clerk hire, ordinary running expenses, and the cost of living continue about the same, whether one is doing a large or a small business. So that with a low per cent. of profit, but with a large business, a man can afford expenses not possible when his trade is light. This fact is obvious, but seems to be overlooked by those who hesitate to put money into advertising on the ground that their present business will not allow it. The expansion of the business when the same rate of profit will furnish more income should be taken into the account.

Mr. Robert Bonner, the founder of the New York Ledger, one of the few great newspaper successes of the world, acted on this fact as no one else has had the sagacity to do. He has never had a dollar of income from advertisements, as none are admitted, and has depended solely on the small difference between the cost of producing the Ledger and the price he sold it for. Everything of course depended on the extent of his sales, and these he proceeded to carry to a prodigious height by advertising in the leading newspapers with a boldness, an ingenuity, and a success which are not likely to be equaled, because few men think so clearly and at the same time act so decisively.

Large margins of profit are not essential to successful advertising, but a clear vision, an unflinching nerve, and faith founded on reason, are essential.

THE ISLANDS OF WEST INDIA.

BY J. A. AMUNDSON, A.B.

French—Les Antilles; Les Indes Occidentales. Spanish—Antillas; Las Indias Occidentales. German—Antillen West Indien. Russian—Západnaia and Vest; Indiai and Vest. Dutch—West Indien. Italian—Le Antille. Swedish—Antilliska Öarne. Turkish—Djeyiri-Antilles. Portuguese—Antilles. Chinese—Hsi¹ Yin Tu⁴.

Location and Constituents.—The West Indies, forming an archipelago of about 1,000 islands, lie between North and South America, reaching from Florida to the mouth of the Orinoco river, and dividing the Caribbean sea on the one hand, from the Gulf of Mexico, and, on the other, from the Atlantic ocean. They extend in north latitude between 10° and 28°, and in west longitude from 59° to 85°. They have a total area in square miles of 95,929, and an estimated population of 4,381,735. The following are the chief islands and groups:

Cuba, the most important remaining possession of Spain, in the New World, and the largest of the Antilles group, extends from 10° 50' to 23° 9' north, and from 74° 8' to 84° 58' west. It has an area of 43,220 square miles, and had a population (Dec, 31, 1877), consisting of 764,164 whites, 58,400 Chinese, 444,050 free negroes and 227,902 slaves, making a total of 1,394,526. With a length of about 750 miles and an average width of 50 miles, Cuba is in area somewhat smaller than England. A mountain range runs almost the whole length of the island near its centre, forming a watershed from which numerous rivers flow on either side into the sea. The sea itself, in many places, remains deep to the very shore, affording secure havens. The highest mountains attain an elevation of 8,000 feet. As to the healthfulness of the climate opinions differ. The mean annual temperature is 77°, the thermometer rarely indicating more than 100° or less than 50°. The rainy season extends from May or June to November, but during the dry season, consisting of the remainder of the year, the dews are heavy. Thunder storms are violent in the summer months, and earthquakes are not infrequent, especially on the eastern coast. Yellow fever often occurs in the coast towns. Wild beasts, snakes and birds of prey are rare. Turtles, alligators, and insects abound, the latter comprising the tarantula, the scorpion, the sand-fly, and an ant very destructive to vegetable matter. There are also 300 kinds of butterflies, and other flies are equally numerous in species. The forests abound in lignumvitæ, ebony, rosewood and mahogany. The fruits are those of the tropics—the pine-apple, banana and sweet potato being noteworthy. Cuba is divided into three military departments—the western, the middle, and the eastern. The western contains Havana, the capital of the island, with a population estimated at 300,000, and the cities of Matanzas with 40,000 inhabitants, and Cardenas with 13,000. Puerto Principe, with 30,000 population, is the capital of the middle division, and of the eastern division Santiago is the capital and has a population of 37,000.

The soil of Cuba is exceedingly fertile, particularly in the western part, where the chief agricultural industries of the island are carried on. These are sugar, molasses and tobacco. A good many cattle are also raised. The staple exports are sugar and tobacco, including cigars. The imports consist of manufactured goods, hardware, machinery, flour and salted fish. The value of the exports from Cuba and Porto Rico to the United States in the fiscal year 1879-'80 was $70,866,904; imports from the United States the same year, $13,242,272. Mining is not a profitable industry in Cuba. The following metals exist: gold, silver, iron, copper, quicksilver, lead, antimony, arsenic, magnesia and copperas. Sulphur springs abound. Rock salt is found in large quantities on the coasts. There are above 600 species of fish, but this fact is without commercial importance. The government of Cuba is entrusted largely to a governor appointed by the crown, and styled the captain-general. Since the late rebellion the island has been entitled to representation in the Spanish cortes, and many reforms in government have been promised. After long delay a bill has been passed providing for the gradual abolition of slavery in Cuba. With the exception of foreign residents, the whole population is Roman Catholic, and less than one-half of the whites can read and write. There are about 400 miles of railway connecting the capital and principal towns.

Hayti.—The next island in size to Cuba is that of Hayti or San Domingo, lying between Porto Rico on the east, and Cuba and Jamaica on the west. It is also one of the greater Antilles, and has a length from east to west of 400 miles, and a breadth of 160 miles. It has an area of 28,000 square miles, and its total population is estimated at 760,000. The country is mountainous, having a range running along its length from which spurs shoot off. Hayti has several excellent harbors, but no navigable rivers. The climate is tempered by sea breezes, but hurricanes occur in August and September. The soil is peculiarly rich, and the mountains may be tilled almost to their tops. The chief productions are coffee, logwood, mahogany, tobacco, cotton, cocoa, wax, ginger and sugar. The mines of the island are not worked, but gold, silver, copper, tin and iron exist. The island is divided into two governments—the republics of Hayti and San Domingo, the latter occupying the eastern portion. The Haytian republic has an area of 10,000 square miles, and a population of 572,000, while the Dominican republic, with an area of 18,000 square miles, has a population of about 250,000.

The capital of Hayti is Port-au-Prince, with 22,000 inhabitants; that of the Dominican republic is San Domingo, with 15,000 inhabitants. From 1873 to 1875 the total imports of the Haytian republic averaged £1,250,000, and the exports £1,820,000. In 1875 the total value of Dominican imports were £359,410, and of the exports £318,470. The exports consist of the natural productions above mentioned, while the imports are chiefly manufactures. The imports from the United States into both countries during the fiscal year 1879-'80, were valued at $4,614,472, and the exports to the United States at $4,999,679. Nearly one-half the entire trade is with the United States. The republics are heavily in debt, and the annual revenues do not equal the annual expenditures.

Jamaica, a dependency of Great Britain, lies south of Cuba, belongs to the greater Antilles group, has an area (with Turk's Islands), of 6,900 square miles, and had a population in 1871, of 510,354. Its harbors are numerous. The eastern portion of the island is mountainous. There are many streams. the climate is tropical, with an average temperature of 72° F. Rainy seasons occur in April, May, September, October and November. Hurricanes of great violence are common in summer in the intervals of the rainy season. The soil is not as good as that of the other West Indies. Forests of precious woods exist. Sugar, allspice and coffee are largely raised, also cacao, arrowroot, indigo, ginger, and turmeric. Two and three crops of maize are yearly produced. Yams, cassava and sweet potatoes abound. Cattle in herds, mules in droves, sheep, swine and barn-yard fowls are numerous. The exports are chiefly sugar, rum, coffee, spices and dye-stuffs. The total value of the exports in 1879-'80, from all the British West India possessions to the United States was $5,482,002; imports from the United States during same period, $7,067,748. Jamaica is divided into three counties: Surrey, Middlesex and Cornwall, lying in that order from east to west. The capital is Kingston, a fine city with many enterprising merchants and elegant structures; population 34,314. It has a magnificent harbor. In 1871 the public revenue was $2,175,000, and the expenditures $2,110,000. The public debt that year was $388,000. The schools in Jamaica are flourishing, and numerous churches of all denominations exist. The British crown is represented by a captain-general, who wields the executive power. Legislation is controlled by the crown. Turk's Island (the largest of a group of small islands among the Bahamas), although 500 miles north-east of Jamaica, is attached to the latter for administrative purposes. This group is famous for its salt products, which are largely imported into the United States. Chief ports, Grand Turk and Salt Bay. Population in 1871, 4,723.

Porto Rico, lying immediately east of the island of Hayti, is the smallest of the greater Antilles group. It is a dependency of Spain, and has an area of 3,550 square miles. Population, 646,362. The island has a rectangular shape, with an east and west length of about 100 miles, and a breadth from north to south of about 40 miles. Though the coast is generally regular, there are many bays, inlets and navigable lagoons. Through the island from east to west extends a range of mountains, having an average height of about 1,500 feet, and from which, on either side, descend many streams. There are extensive plains in the interior. Porto Rico has a more healthful climate than the other Antilles, but is very warm. The island is subject to destructive hurricanes. The soil is very fertile. Valuable woods, such as mahogany, ebony, lignumvitæ, cedar and logwood are abundant. Also, plants used in the arts and pharmacy. Tropical fruits here attain a perfect growth. The agricultural products consist of sugar-cane, coffee, tobacco, cotton, rice and maize. The island is almost destitute of wild animals, birds and flowers. The mineral resources are not developed, but gold, copper, iron, lead and coal exist. Salt is obtained from the lakes. The principal exports consist of sugar, rum, molasses, coffee, tobacco, cotton, cacao, dye-wood, lignumvitæ, rice, salt, cattle and hides. The imports comprise linen, cotton and other manufactures. The trade of the island is chiefly with the United States, Great Britain, Cuba, Spain and Germany. Telegraph connects the principal towns of Porto Rico, and telegraphic cable joins it to the other West Indies. But railroads and facilities for internal communication generally are lacking. San Juan, on the north coast, with a population of about 20,000 is the capital. The island belongs to Spain. It is governed by a captain-general assisted by a junta of military officers. It is politically divided into 7 departments.

The Bahamas form a group of about 600 islands, extending from Florida to San Domingo. They have an area of 3,021 square miles. Only about 15 are inhabited and the population of these, in 1871, was 39,162, now estimated at about 45,000. As a rule, the islands are flat, long and narrow. The products of the groups comprise fruit in abundance, and maize, cotton, yams, sweet potatoes, oranges, pineapples, limes, lemons, etc. The principal exports are fruits, sponges, cabinet-woods, shells, cascarilla bark, arrowroot and pimento. The climate is healthy and sought by invalids. The chief exports consist of salt, sponge, pineapples and oranges. Nassau (famous as a delightful winter resort), on the island of New Providence, is the capital of the group, and has a population of 10,492. The group is subject to Great Britain. The chief executive power is vested in a governor appointed by the crown. The control of all public officers is with the crown; but legislation is carried on by local representatives, the crown having only a veto. The legislature consists of the governor, a council appointed by the crown, and a house of assembly selected by the people. The principal islands of the Bahamas are: Abaco, or Lucaya, 80 miles long and 20 broad, population 2,362; Eleuthera, 80 miles long by 10 broad, population 5,209; New Providence (the most important of all), about 20 miles long by 8 or 10 wide, population 18,492; capital city, Nassau; Andros, 100 miles long and 15 wide, exports wood and sponges, population 2,000; Guanahani, or Cat island, 40 miles long by 5 broad, population 2,500; Watling, 20 miles long by 4 wide, is the island first discovered by Columbus, in October, 1492, and named by him San Salvador, population 490; Exuma, 30 miles long by 4 wide, population 2,591; Long Island, 75 miles long by 5 wide, population 960; Crooked Islands (a group of 4 small islands), population about 1,200; Maricua, Inagua, Little Inagua, Caicos and Turk's Islands, population of the last five named, about 7,000.

Other British Possessions.—The other West Indian islands and groups of islands belonging to Great Britain are as follows: (1) Trinidad. This lies off the north-east coast of South America, and ranks next in size among the British possessions, to Jamaica. It is about 50 miles long by 40 broad; area 1,756 square miles. The landscape is exceedingly interesting, and the climate healthful. The soil is fertile, and many fine forests grow upon the hills, producing the best of ship-building timber. Chief products, cotton, sugar, coffee, molasses, rum, cocoa nuts, cacao, timber and pitch, which last named article is found in immense quantities upon the island, where there is an asphaltum or pitch lake $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles in circumference, 80 feet above the level of the sea, boiling in the center, and of unfathomable depth. Trinidad is a crown colony, having a governor and a legislative council. Population, 109,638. Capital, Port-of-Spain, one of the finest towns in the West Indies, having broad thoroughfares, elegant churches and public buildings, and a thriving population of about 22,000. (2) Barbadoes; population, 162,042; area, 166 square miles; is an important and valuable possession; has its own legislature. Chief products, sugar, rum and arrow-root. Capital, Bridgetown, with a population of about 20,000. (3) The Virgin Islands (about 50 in number); population, 6,551; products, sugar, molasses, rum, cotton, salt, ginger, turmeric, tobacco, pimento and indigo. (4) Tobago; population, 17,054; area, 97 square miles; products, sugar, molasses and rum; capital, Scarborough, with a population of 1,250. (5) Grenada; area, 133 square miles; population, 42,000; products, cotton, sugar, molasses, rum and cacao. This is one of the most attractive islands in the West Indies in the picturesqueness of its landscapes. The chief towns are St. George (the capital), population 4,570, and St. Mark. On the coast are several fine harbors. (6) Grenadines; (a group of several islands;) area, 86 square miles; population, 6,500; chief exports, cotton, sugar, corn, oil and wood. (7) St. Vincent; area, 132 square miles; chief products, cotton, sugar, molasses, arrow-root and rum; population, 35,688; capital, Kingston, or Kingstown, on a fine harbor regularly laid out, and well built. Population of the city, 34,314. (8) St. Lucia; length 27 miles; breadth 14 miles; area, 248 square miles; population, 31,610. Dense forests cover most of the island. Chief productions, cacao, sugar, coffee, rum, molasses and sulphur. Parts of the island are well cultivated and remarkably productive. Capital, Castries; it has a large trade and an excellent harbor. Population 4,500. (9) Dominica, 29 miles long, 16 miles wide; area, 291 square miles; population, 27,178; products, sugar, cacao, molasses, rum, coffee, and copper ore; has its own legislature and executive officers. Capital, Roseau, or Charlotte Town, with a population of 5,100. (10) Antigua, 20 miles long; area, 108 square miles; population, 35,000; chief products, rum, molasses and sugar; soil excellent, climate salubrious. Capital, St. John's, on an excellent harbor; population, 8,719. (11) Montserrat; area, 47 square miles; population, 8,693; chief products, cotton, arrow-root, sugar, coffee and fruit. Capital, Plymouth. (12) Barbuda; area, 75 square miles; chief products, sugar, tobacco, corn and cattle; population, 1,000. (13) Nevis and Redonda; the former is about 4 miles long by 3 wide, and has a population of 11,735; capital, Charlestown. The latter is of value only for its mines of phosphate of alumina and iron. Population, 200. (14) St. Christopher; length, 23 miles; area, 68 square miles; immensely fertile and highly cultivated; productions, sugar, cotton, cacao, rum, salt and fruits; population, 29,000. Capital, Basse Terre, with a population of 9,000. (15) Anguilla; area, 35 square miles; population, 2,773. It is also called Snake Island. (16) The Bermudas. These are not officially classed as among the West Indies, but for the purposes of description here it is most natural so to group them. They comprise a cluster of small islands and islets, about 500 in number, so closely congregated as to be separated by very narrow channels. Their total area does not exceed 20 square miles, and their population, in 1871, was but 12,121. Yet they constitute a very important naval station for British ships, and for the protection of British commercial interests in the West Indies. The group is situated about 600 miles east of the coast of North Carolina. Hamilton, the capital city, has a population of 2,000. Its harbor admits ships drawing 15 feet of water, but is difficult of access. The 4 principal islands are St. George's, Bermuda, Somerset and Ireland. Here is found a climate so equable and delightful as to leave nothing to be desired. The main crops are Indian corn, onions, potatoes, garden-vegetables and arrow-root. Total annual trade, \$1,500,000 to \$2,000,000. The group forms a crown colony, with a governor, a council of 9 members, and an assembly of 36. It has direct communication by regular lines of steamers to and from Halifax and New York.

French West Indies.—These embrace the following islands: (1) Martinique, 45 miles long by 10 to 15 broad. Productions, sugar, coffee, cacao and cotton. Capital, Fort-de-France, with a fine harbor, and population of 13,288; population of island, 160,831. (2) Guadeloupe (composed of 2 islands separated by a narrow strait—one 27 miles long by 15 broad, the other 30 miles long by 10 to 12 broad), very fertile, well cultivated, and with many fine forests. Exports, sugar, coffee, dye and cabinet-woods, rum, tafia, cotton, wool, hides, copper and tobacco. Capital, Basse-Terre, with a population of about 10,000; population of islands in 1876, 122,533. (3) Désirade, 4 miles long by 2 wide. Cotton is the chief product. Population about 2,000. (4) Marie Galante; estimated area 60 square miles. Population, 14,590. Productions, coffee, sugar, cotton and cacao. (5) St. Bartholomew; area 35 square miles. Population, 2,500. Products, tobacco, cotton, sugar, cacao. Gustavia is the capital, population 800. (6) Les Saintes, comprising several small islands. Population, 1,600. Products, cotton, sugar, tobacco, potatoes, manioc and coffee. (7) The north part of the island of St. Martin is also under French jurisdiction. Population of the French portion about 3,500.

Danish West Indies.—These are 3 in number, to wit: (1) St. Thomas, about 17 miles long and 4 broad. Population, 15,000. Capital, Charlotte Amalie, or Saint Thomas, with a population of about 13,000. It has a fine harbor and enjoys an extensive trade. Has 6 churches, 3 banks, and fine public buildings and private residences. (2) St. John; population 1,100; capital, Crux Bay; exports, cattle and bay-rum. (3) Santa Cruz (or St. Croix); area 110 square miles; population, 25,000. Sugar, rum, coffee, indigo and cotton are the principal products. Capital, Christianst d (or Bassin); population, 6,000.

Dutch West Indies.—Six islands belong to the Netherlands, as follows: (1) St. Martin. The south half of this island belongs to the Dutch, the north half to the French. The island has an area of about 30 square miles. Chief products, sugar, rum and salt. Population of Dutch part 3,000. (2) St. Eustatius (or St. Eustache); population, 2,000; area, 190 square miles; capital, St. Eustatius, or Orange. (3) Saba; area, 15 square miles; population, 2,500. (4) Curaçao, the largest of the Dutch West India possessions, about 40 miles long by 10 wide; has an area of 212 square miles, and a population in 1880 of 24,378. It lies near the South American continent. Its exportations are salt, straw-hats and lime phosphate. Capital, Willemstad, with a population of 12,025. It is situated on a fine harbor, and is a handsome and flourishing place. (5) Aruba, or Oruba, near the coast of Venezuela; population, 5,700. (6) Buen Ayre, or Bon Air; off the coast of Venezuela; 20 miles long by 5 broad; population, 4,500. Produces aloes, divi-divi, guaiacum and brazil-wood.

West Indian Trade with the United States.

—The imports from the United States and the exports to the same, in 1879-'80, on the part of the West Indies, were as follows:

Place.	Imports.	Exports.
Cuba and Porto Rico.....	$13,242,272	$70,866,904
British West Indies.....	7,087,748	5,482,002
Hayti and San Domingo.....	4,614,472	4,999,679
French West Indies.....	1,828,396	2,717,004
Dutch West Indies.....	848,541	1,355,517
Danish West Indies.....	697,795	461,497
Total.....	$28,299,224	$85,882,603

CENTRAL AMERICA.

[INCLUDING THE REPUBLICS OF COSTA RICA, SAN SALVADOR, NICARAGUA, HONDURAS AND GUATEMALA.]

BY JAMES Q. RICE, A.M.

Spanish—America del Centro. Danish and German—Central Amerika. French—Amérique Centrale. Russian—Srednaia Amerika. Italian—America Centrale. Swedish—Centralamerika.

Position.—As a geographical division this would naturally include all the territory from the isthmus of Tehautepec to the isthmus of Darien, but as Yucatan has become a part of Mexico, and Panama is incorporated with South America, Central America includes only that part of the nexus containing the States of Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras, San Salvador, and Guatemala. Central America, thus defined, lies between 7° and 18° north latitude, and 81° and 93° west longitude.

Area and Population.—The total area is 173,178 square miles, and the total population is 2,646,700, distributed as follows: Costa Rica, 26,000 square miles, population 165,000; Guatemala, 43,380 square miles, population 1,180,000; San Salvador, 7,230 square miles, population 600,000; Honduras, 47,068 square miles, population 351,700; Nicaragua, 49,500 square miles, population 350,000.

Topography.—The country consists almost entirely of mountainous regions, but the mountains are entirely distinct from those of North and South America. North of Panama rises the plateau of Veragua, of which the Tilla de Veragua (8,000 feet high) is the highest point. Farther north are the plateaus of Costa Rica and Castago, which are from 2,200 to 4,000 feet above the sea level. Numerous peaks of 10,000 feet and over are interspersed. In the north the plateau gradually descends until it forms the plain of Nicaragua. To the north of this plain rises the table-land of Honduras with an average height of 4,000 feet. Apart and on the south of the plateau are two rows of volcanoes, of which the highest peaks are San Miguel, San Salvador, San Vincente and Izalco. A mountain not quite 2,000 feet high connects the table-land of Honduras with that of Guatemala, which rises to the height of 5,000 feet. There are numerous streams of considerable size in Central America, but they are necessarily short from the narrowness of the country. All the longer streams are on the northern and eastern side of the country and flow into the Atlantic. The largest of these are the Usumasinta and the San Juan, the latter of which forms the outlet of Lake Nicaragua. Among the gulfs and bays the most important are the Gulf of Honduras on the east coast, and the Gulfs of Dulce, Nicoya, Fonseca and Coronada Bay on the Pacific. Central America has a number of large lakes, of which Lake Nicaragua, with an area of 3,400 square miles, is the most important.

Cities.—The principal cities are the capitals of the various States, and are, with their populations: Guatemala, 45,000; San Salvador, 16,000; Managua, capital of Nicaragua, 10,000; Comayagua, capital of Honduras, 12,000; and San José, capital of Costa Rica, 12,000.

Climate.—The inequality of the surface produces a great variety of climate. The year, however, consists of two seasons, viz: a wet and a dry season. In the former the sun is always vertical, but is seldom seen, the air being filled with clouds and falling rain. In the latter the temperature does not rise so high, but hot and dry weather prevails, with a clear and more healthy atmosphere. In the higher regions, where the land is more open, few noxious vapors are generated and health is comparatively good; but in the low marshes, where decomposition is rapid, many contagious diseases prevail.

Flora and Fauna.—The effect of the inequalities of surface is also very marked in the vegetable productions of the country, and all the fruits and grains of Europe and America are produced together with sugar cane, indigo, cochineal, tobacco, cotton, and all the tropical fruits. The zoölogy is similar to other American countries, but Central America is especially remarkable for the variety and beauty of its birds. Large and dangerous serpents are also numerous.

Agriculture.—A large portion of Central America consists of cultivable land, and some of it indeed is of remarkable fertility. Agriculture is carried on extensively, but in the rudest and most primitive fashion, the crops raised being small compared with what might be obtained were modern and civilized methods employed. The great diversity of surface gives opportunity for the cultivation of almost all kinds of crops. The slopes of the mountains in some localities afford the most excellent pasturage, and grazing might be, and indeed is, a most profitable enterprise. Coffee, cotton, indigo, maize, sugar, spices, tobacco and cochineal are the principal crops raised. There are no manufacturing interests of importance.

Trade.—The chief exports are coffee, cochineal, mahogany, hides and tobacco. The imports are cotton goods, silks, hardware, etc. The total export trade can be known only from estimates, which place it at $14,520,000. The imports are reckoned at $10,705,000. The exports from Central America and British Honduras to the United States during the fiscal year 1879-'80 amounted in value to $3,766,788; imports from same, $2,190,537.

Minerals.—The country is fairly rich in minerals, deposits of gold, silver, iron, lead and mercury being found. The gold, silver and iron mines are worked to some extent, but not nearly so much as formerly, and the other mineral deposits are practically untouched.

Government, Religion, Army, etc.—Each one of the five States is, and since 1833 has been, an independent republic. The Roman Catholic religion is the principal religion. The military force is divided among the five States as follows, viz: Costa Rica, active force 900, militia 15,225; Guatemala, active 3,225, militia 13,000; Honduras, active 600, militia 6,000; San Salvador, active 1,000, militia 500. The military force of Nicaragua is unknown.

Railways, etc.—Costa Rica has in construction a line of railway from Alajuela to Limon which is 114 miles in length, and is destined to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. She has also two lines of telegraph with a total length of 389 miles. Honduras has one line of railway from Puerto Cortez to San Pedro, 37 miles in length. There are 500 miles of telegraph in operation and 150 miles more in course of construction. The railways of Guatemala are spoken of elsewhere. The chief interest in Nicaragua centers in the Nicaraguan ship-canal scheme. Several routes have been surveyed and General Grant has taken a lively interest in the enterprise.

Revenues, etc.—The statistics with regard to public revenue, expenditure and debt are as follows: Costa Rica had a revenue in 1880 of $2,802,279 and an expenditure of $3,460,597. She has no internal debt, but has a foreign debt placed in England of $17,000,000. The government has ceased payment both of interest and sinking fund of the debt. The finances of Honduras are in great disorder owing to wars with Guatemala and San Salvador, which ceased in 1876 from general exhaustion. The revenue in 1877 amounted to $1,189,546. The expenses for several years have exceeded the receipts and the deficits have been covered by loans. The total indebtedness, principal and interest, in 1875 was $36,101,360. The revenue of Nicaragua for 1877 was estimated at $1,750,000 and the expenditures at $2,235,000. There have been annual deficits increasing in amount since 1865. The total amount of the public debt was estimated at $9,500,000 in 1877. The public liabilities of Nicaragua were wholly contracted within the country. The revenue of San Salvador for 1878 was $2,686,000. The floating interior public debt amounted in 1877 to $2,294,000.

THE REPUBLIC OF GUATEMALA.

BY HON. E. MARTINEZ, CONSUL FROM GUATEMALA TO THE UNITED STATES.

Size and Population.—The Republic of Guatemala, the most populous of the Central American republics, has a territory of 44,800 square miles. Its population in 1872 of 1,197,054 increased according to the census of Oct. 31st, 1880, to about 1,400,000.

Trade and Commerce.—The foreign trade is being steadily developed, though the low prices of coffee and cochineal, staple articles of the republic, have been against her trade during the last year. The imports and exports for the twelve months ending 31st December, 1880, were as follows: Imports, $3,935,536.85; exports, $4,423,445.57; total, $7,458,982.42. The revenue in 1880 was represented by $3,844,412, besides the rents from municipalities, about $400,000.

Telegraphs, Railways, etc.—The republic has in full operation 1,200 miles of telegraph, in the best order. It is connected with the other Central American republics by telegraph, and ere long will be connected by cable at Santo Tomas with the whole world. Its public roads are being constantly improved, as the best way to increase its trade. Post-offices are established at every town, and communications from all places are regular and well administered. The postal system for money orders has been in operation since 1877, and the government gives assistance to that branch by paying a subsidy of $24,000 per year to the American Pacific Mail Steamship Company and as much more to maintain postal agencies at foreign ports. The railroad from S. José to Escuintla (28 miles) was opened to public service last year, and has proved a success. The same contractors are engaged upon the extension of the line to the capital, some 42 miles more; while Messrs. Larraondo Brothers have been granted a concession to build a railroad from Guatemala City to Santo Tomas on the Atlantic, a distance of 240 miles. The agreement is for some fourteen millions of dollars, the government assisting with grants, guarantee of bonds and a subsidy.

The Capital City.—Guatemala, the capital, is the finest city in Central America. It is the central point for all the trade of the republic and of the sister States. The climate is healthy and temperate—an eternal spring. Some of the buildings of the city were erected at an expense of millions of dollars, and are worthy of mention. Numerous fountains, public squares, hospitals (one of them suitable for 400 patients), and theatres, the post-office, custom house, cathedral and other churches, several colleges, the executive mansion, the building of La Sociedad Economica, and the banks, etc., etc., all give to Guatemala a peculiar interest. Nine periodicals are published in the city, and three of the hotels are first class in all their appointments.

The Government.—The executive is assisted by four ministers, and the "Sociedad Economica," an institution established by the Spaniards in 1795, which, although not under government control, may be counted as an official corporation. The operations of this institution are so important to the whole country that the government entrusts to it the most difficult work in the various departments with which its members are familiar.

Education.—Public instruction is thoroughly promoted throughout the republic, and to it the administration gives especial care. Last year 59 schools, with 6,078 pupils, were established, making a total now of 666 public schools with 32,786 attendants. Included among these there are several high schools, colleges or academies for engineers, medical and pharmaceutical, a school of jurisprudence, a school of agriculture, a school of commerce, a school for deaf and dumb, academies after the system of Sweden where all mechanical and artistic professors can be had, a school of drawing, normal schools, a conservatory of music, a telegraphic school with all kinds of instruction under the best systems, supported by the government and the municipalities at a cost in 1880 of no less than $216,783. Besides these, there are a number of private schools for all classes, and many night schools, supported by the government and the municipalities.

Trade Productions.—Coffee is the staple production of Guatemala. It exported last year (1880) 28,976,267 pounds. Sugar also is raised and exported, and will be a profitable source of revenue very soon. In addition to these, Guatemala exports indigo, cochineal, sarsaparilla, india rubber, vanilla, cedar, mahogany and other valuable woods, deer skins, hides, cocoa and chocolate, and a variety of fruits second to none. Wheat is grown and flour manufactured. Divi-divi (for tanning) is produced but not yet exported, nor are balsam, ivory nuts, dye-woods, and a great number of excellent fibres which are raised. Guatemala has several mines of gold and silver which only require better implements and modern machinery to make them profitable. The mint is in full operation. Coal is found and will soon invite development, as attention is being called to every possible source of industry. A great part of the woolen and other fabrics used there are manufactured at home, as also are hats, common earthenware, embroideries, etc., etc. These enterprises are being stimulated by local exhibitions and especially by the "International Exhibition" which is to be held at the capital in 1882.

[For resident representatives, see preceding article on Central America.]

[Written specially for Hubbard's Newspaper and Bank Directory of the World.]

THE REPUBLIC OF MEXICO.

BY JAMES Q. RICE, A.M.

Spanish—Mexico; or, Mejico. Danish, German, Portuguese and Turkish—Mexico. Russian—Méksika; or, Mékhido. French—Le Mexique. Italian—Mesico. Swedish—Mexiko. Chinese—Mo⁴ Hsi¹ Ko¹.

Situation, Area, etc.—Mexico constitutes the southern extremity of the continent of North America proper, and occupies that portion of the continent which connects the Isthmian States with the main body of North America. Its eastern boundary is formed chiefly by the Gulf of Mexico, and its western and southern by Central America and the Pacific ocean, and its northern by the United States. It lies between latitude 15° and 32° 42' north, and longitude 86° 34' and 117° 7' west. The total area is about 750,000 square miles. No accurate census has ever been taken, but according to calculations based on partial enumerations made by the government, in 1874, the population of the republic is placed at 9,343,470, of which over 5,000,000 are Indians, the remainder being Spanish Creoles, Spaniards and of mixed races.

Topography and Geography.—The greater portion of the Mexican territory consists of an elevated plateau formed by the expansion of the Cordilleras of Central America, from which terraced slopes descend with a more or less rapid inclination to the Atlantic on the east, and the Pacific on the west. This vast tract comprises one of the richest and most varied zones in the world, for while its position secures to it a tropical vegetation, the differences of elevation afford all the advantages of a temperate climate, and thus it combines within its limits a most unparalleled exuberance and multiplicity of natural products. The table-lands lie at elevations from 5,000 to 9,000 feet, and exhibit great varieties of soil, as well as great differences of level. They are in general girt by low mountain chains, among which rise individual lofty peaks, and are intersected by higher ranges among whose loftiest peaks are Istaccihuatl (15,700 feet), and the volcano of Popocatepetl (17,880 feet). Several isolated volcanoes also occur. The principal chain is the Sierra Madre, or Tepe Sueño, which, after traversing the States of Queretaro and Guanajuato, divides into three main branches, the central of which forms the main watershed between the Atlantic and Pacific. In addition to these, the Mexican territory is intersected by many lesser ranges. Mexico may be said to be generally deficient in navigable rivers, for although the largest have a course of over 1,000 miles, few are free from rapids. The largest is the Rio Grande del Norte, which, forming in its lower courses the boundary between the United States and Mexico, has a length of nearly 1,800 miles, but is navigable for vessels of light draft only to Matamoras, 60 miles from its mouth. The Panuco, Alvarado, Coatzacoalcas and Grijota are the principal streams flowing into the Gulf of Mexico. On the Pacific side the most important are the Lerma, which is called in its middle course the Tololottan and in its lower course the Rio Grande de Santiago and the Mescala or Rio de las Balsas. Mexico has 59 large lakes, or lagoons, the most important of which are those of the valley of Mexico.

Political Divisions and Cities.—The Republic of Mexico is composed of 27 States and 2 territories, viz: the States of Aguas Calientes, Campechy, Chiapas, Chihuahua, Coahuila, Colima, Durango, Guanajuato, Guerrero, Hidalgo, Jalisco, Mexico, Michoacan, Morelos, Nuevo-Leon, Oajaca, Puebla, Queretaro, San Luis Potosi, Sinaloa, Sonora, Tabasco, Tamaulipas, Tlaxcala, Vera Cruz, Yucatan and Zacatecas, and the Territories of Lower California and the Federal District of Mexico. The capital is the city of Mexico, which has a population of 250,000. The other important cities are, with their populations, Matamoras, 15,000; Vera Cruz, 14,000; San Luis Potosi, 45,000; Guanajuato, 64,000; Queretaro, 48,000, and Puebla, 69,000.

Climate, etc.—The differences in altitude produce marked differences in the Mexican climate. Tropical Mexico has but two seasons, a wet and a dry, which are of irregular duration, usually extending from May to October, and from October to May, respectively. The heaviest rains occur in September. The variations of the different sections in regard to heat and cold are so great that a traveler may, in a few hours, experience every gradation of temperature, from torrid heat to glacial cold. The mean annual temperature in the tierras calientes is from 75° to 85° F., in the tierras templadas from 65° to 70° and in the tierras frias from 55° to 62°. The temperate regions, or tierras templadas, enjoy a most delicious climate, justly entitling them to the title of "paradise of Mexico." The cold regions are cold only in a relative sense, and the chief discomfort to winter visitors is from the rarefaction of the atmosphere. Moisture is irregularly distributed through those regions and largely affects the comparative healthfulness, a dry climate being reckoned the more salubrious.

Flora and Fauna.—The varieties of climate are so numerous that the vegetable products of this vast country embrace almost all that are to be found between the equator and the polar circle. In the tierras calientes maize, rice, bananas, pineapples and manioc are found, and sarsaparilla, jalap and vanilla in the littoral swampy forests. In the tierras templadas all the cereals, fruits and vegetables of Southern Europe are raised, among which maize, oranges, lemons, grapes and olives are produced in the most exuberant abundance. In the tierras frias the soil is more arid, and agriculture is limited to the cultivation of barley and the agave. In addition to the vegetable products already named, Mexico yields coffee, tobacco, yams, capsicum, pepper, pimento, indigo, ipecacuanha, dragon's-blood, copaiva, fan-palms, india rubber trees, mahogany, rosewood, ebony, etc. The principal animals are the buffalo, tapir, wolf, lynx, jaguar and wild-cat. The domestic animals are horses, asses, mules, cattle and sheep, all of which abound in great numbers on account of the great extent of pasturing ground.

Agriculture is assiduously, but laboriously, carried on by the natives, who persist in using the implements of their ancestors to the almost absolute exclusion of efficient modern appliances. One of the chief cultivated products is maize, of which three and even four abundant crops are obtained annually in many districts. One writer estimates the annual crop at, at the least, 20,000,000 bushels. Wheat gives an increase of 60 fold, and rice of about 45. Barley is extensively grown, the United States importing, in 1876, nearly $8,000,000 worth. The agricultural possibilities of Mexico are almost unlimited, and were the methods employed more modern and civilized she might easily become one of the great grain centres of the western continent. The cotton, tobacco, sugar and cacao crops are also of importance, the yield being most flattering. In speaking of Mexico Mr. Anderson says: "Probably no other portion of the earth's surface is naturally so self supporting, for the long list of its products not only embraces the staple articles of commerce, and the necessities of life, but also many of the luxuries, and all grow in great profusion."

Manufactures.—The manufactures of Mexico are comparatively few and unimportant. Cotton is the chief manufactured product, but the supply does not satisfy the home demand. According to the report of the United States consul for 1874, the cotton factories of the three States of Mexico, Puebla and Queretaro use annually over 11,000,000 pounds of the raw material. Sugar is manufactured largely, and is of good quality. Paper, glass, earthenware and porcelain are made. There are iron foundries and flour mills in some of the States, and manufactures of tobacco, cacao and indigo are exported.

Trade.—Nearly three-fourths of the exports of Mexico consist of metals, chiefly silver. Other exports are cochineal, indigo and other dye-stuffs, timber, cabinet-woods, etc. About one-third of the imports are "cotton stuffs." Besides these, unwrought iron, machinery, hardware, provisions, etc., are imported. The total value of the exports for 1876 was $23,435,000. The imports for the same period were valued at $28,485,000. The exports to the United States for the year ending June 30, 1880, were $7,209,593; and the imports for the same period were $7,866,493.

Mineral Wealth.—The mineral products of Mexico, so far as hitherto known, are richer than those of any other country, not excepting Peru, and in addition to the mines already in operation numberless undeveloped mines exist in every direction, only wanting capital and enterprise to make them yield the richest harvests. The United States consul at Mexico estimates the product of silver for 1875 at $27,000,000, and of gold, $75,000, and of this one-half comes from three mining districts, viz: Guanajuato, Zacatecas and Catorel. This enormous product is obtained from mines conducted in a manner at once disconnected and unscientific, and the almost continual wars and Indian raids, together with the lack of transportation, have been great obstacles in the way of development. If the matter were taken in hand by capitalists having enterprise and progress, so that transportation could be afforded for troops and mining machinery, and the development of the mines carried on under scientific principles, the present yield could easily be doubled. Beside the precious metals, lead, iron, mercury, copperas, gypsum, salt, zinc, antimony, arsenic, amethysts, agates, turquoises, marbles of all sorts, vitriol, sulphur, and amber are found.

Fisheries.—Although fish of almost every known variety abound both in the rivers and lakes, and on the coasts, yet, with the exception of the pearl fisheries of Lower California, they are of little commercial importance. These, however, though as yet little developed are very productive.

Government.—The form of government is that of a federative republic, each state managing its own local affairs, but the whole being bound together in one body politic by fundamental and constitutional laws. The legislative power is vested in a senate and house of representatives elected by each state, and the executive, in a president.

Religions.—The Catholic religion is the dominant religion of Mexico, to the almost entire practical exclusion of any other. All other sects, however, are by law tolerated.

Army and Navy.—The army consists of 24,830 men, of whom 1,512 are officers. The navy is merely nominal, consisting of nine small vessels carrying in all between 30 and 40 guns.

Railways, etc.—It is a misfortune to the commerce of all nations that a country with such magnificent possibilities in her undeveloped resources as Mexico, should remain so long without facilities of public transportation. At the end of 1879 she had only 372 miles of railroads in operation, of which the principal line, 300 miles in length, runs from Vera Cruz to Mexico, with a branch to Puebla. In 1880, however, considerable additional track was constructed, and the total length of lines now open is 678 miles, the longest single line being from Vera Cruz to Jalapa, 89 miles. A great amount of American capital has recently been invested in the construction of railroads in Mexico, and the result is that she will soon be united with the United States by at least two great lines. Valuable concessions have been made to these lines by the Mexican government. They are to run as follows: The first of these, called the Mexican Central R. R. Co., organized under the laws of Massachusetts, has secured an old concession for a road from the City of Mexico to Leon; thence by a new concession it will run northward, via Aguas Calientes, Zacatecas, Durango, San Juan del Rio and Chihuahua to El Paso del Norte, where it is to connect with the Southern Pacific, already completed to within a few miles of El Paso, with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, with the Texas Pacific, the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio, and the Sonora railroads. The concession also gives them the right to build a road from Leon to the port of Mazatlan, upon the western coast of Mexico. This company has a subsidy from the government of $15,000 per mile, and a capital of $5,400,000. The road is to be of standard gauge, and 60 miles of it are now in operation. The second company is called the Mexican National Railway Construction Co., and is to build a narrow-gauge road westward from Mexico to the port of Manzanillo, on the Pacific coast. This company also has the right to build from some convenient point about 60 miles north of the city of Mexico a road via San Luis Potosi and Monterey to the Texan frontier, where it may connect with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio, and the International and Great Northern. Captain James B. Eads has also secured most valuable concessions for his ship-railway across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, and the day is probably not distant when that will be constructed. Besides these, concessions have been granted to various corporations which propose the construction of railways in various other directions. In some of these General Grant is deeply interested, and to them has given a large share of his personal attention. In truth, it seems that the Republic has suddenly waked to the importance of railway enterprise, and is making laudable haste to overtake its neglected opportunities.

Telegraphs.—The telegraph system of Mexico is rapidly extending, and there are now in operation about 10,000 miles of line. In March last (1881), a submarine cable was successfully laid from Vera Cruz to Brownsville, Texas, establishing direct telegraphic communication between Mexico and the United States. On the 16th of that month the following telegrams were exchanged over this newly opened line:

The President of the United States sends to the President of the Republic of Mexico the cordial congratulations of the government and people of this country upon the successful completion, by submarine cable, of connection between the telegraph systems of the two countries. It must be a great satisfaction to your distinguished predecessor, as well as yourself, to see so beneficent a fruit from the wise policy of your successive administrations.

REPLY.

The President of the United States of Mexico is pleased to respond to the friendly congratulations that have been sent to him by the President of the United States of America upon the inauguration of the submarine cable that unites the telegraphic lines of the two nations, and is duly grateful for the courteous praise bestowed upon the administration of General Diaz and the present one. The government of Mexico and its people congratulate themselves upon the establishment of a new link binding the relations between the two countries for the mutual advancement of their friendship, commerce and industry.

Education in Mexico is in a neglected condition, even among the wealthier classes, despite the elaborate schemes which have been devised to educate the masses. There is a university in the city of Mexico, but its management, like that of too many other public institutions, is not so thorough and efficient as the necessities of the Republic seem to demand.

Finances.—The finances of the republic have been for many years in great disorder, the expenditures constantly exceeding the revenues. The budget estimates for 1879 placed the revenues at $16,128,807, and the expenditures at $22,108,046. The public debt was estimated in 1879 at $125,500,000, but the general government does not recognize any portion except a six per cent. interior loan of about $35,000,000, on which the interest has not been paid for many years.

Position, Size, Population.—British North America comprises all that part of the mainland of the American continent lying north of the United States, with the exception of Alaska, and also includes Newfoundland, Prince Edward's Island, Vancouver's and other islands along the coast. The boundaries of British America are the Arctic Ocean on the north, the Atlantic on the east, the United States on the south, the Pacific Ocean and Alaska on the west. British America is almost as extensive as Europe, occupying a breadth of 90° of longitude, and a length from one extremity to the other of 120°. The total area is 3,553,524 square miles; but of this the greater part is practically uninhabitable, an extent of nearly 3,000,000 square miles containing at the last census only 28,700 inhabitants (probably exclusive of savages and Esquimaux). The total population by the census of 1871 was 3,816,611.

Subdivisions.—The different provinces of British America are Ontario (Canada West), Quebec (Canada East), Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba (including Keewatin), British Columbia, Hudson's Bay Territory, Prince Edward's Island, and Newfoundland. Of these, all but Newfoundland are united under one government and known as "The Dominion of Canada." In 1867 a union was effected of Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick; in 1869 the vast territory held by the Hudson Bay Company under a charter granted by Charles II. was transferred to the imperial government and added to the United Dominion, and the province of Manitoba was formed. British Columbia joined the Confederated Dominion in 1871, and Prince Edward's Island in 1873. Newfoundland still has its own government, distinct from the Dominion.

Of the Dominion of Canada, the area and population by provinces are as follows (census of 1871):

	Square Miles.	Population.
Ontario,	107,780	1,620,851
Quebec,	193,355	1,191,516
Nova Scotia,	21,731	387,800
New Brunswick,	27,322	285,594
Manitoba,	13,923	11,593
British Columbia,	213,000	50,000
Prince Edward's Island,	2,173	94,021
Hudson's Bay Territory,	2,934,040	28,700
Total,	3,515,324	3,670,075

By the census of 1881 the population of the Dominion is shown to have increased to 4,350,933—a gain of 680,858, in ten years.

Ontario lies between latitude 41° 30'–50° 30' north, and longitude 74° 25'–90° 30' west. It has the St. Lawrence, Lakes Ontario, Erie, St. Clair, Huron and a part of Superior, with their connecting rivers, on the south and west, giving a great extent of lake coast and abundant outlet to the ocean. The surface of the country is generally undulating, with several ridges of hills, the highest of which are 2,100 feet near Lake Superior; that part of the province north of Lake Superior is not yet well known. Along its water-front of 3,000 miles are many good bays and harbors, chief of which are the Georgian at the west, Pigeon Bay on Lake Erie, and Burlington and Quinte bays on Lake Ontario. The principal rivers are the Ottawa, Madawaska, Thames and Trent, all navigable for some distance by large boats. The mineral wealth of Ontario has been but little developed; iron is found in large quantities; also, to some extent, copper, lead, antimony, arsenic, gypsum, marble and building stones. Small quantities of gold have been found. Silver is found in abundance on the shores of Lake Superior. Some salt is produced. The climate is quite extreme and severe, but healthy. Agriculture is the chief occupation; wheat is the principal crop, and most of the common grains are produced. There are large forests of valuable timber, especially red and white pine. Wild animals, except in the northern forests, have mostly disappeared; fur animals are still trapped by Indians. Fish abound, especially whitefish, herring and trout. Manufactures are not yet extensively developed. The chief cities are Toronto, the capital, population 75,000; Hamilton, 35,000; Ottawa, the capital of the Dominion, 30,000; London, 27,000; Kingston, 15,000. The province has an excellent system of free public schools, besides many Roman Catholic separate schools. Children between 7 and 12 years of age are required to attend some school during a portion of the year.

Quebec lies between latitude 45°–53° 30' north, and longitude 57° 8'–79° 30' west. It is touched by the gulf and river of St. Lawrence and joins on its southern side with the United States. That part of the province lying north of the St. Lawrence is rocky and mountainous, while the southern part is mostly hilly. On the gulf coast of 1,164 miles are many small bays, and a number of islands in those waters belong to this province; Anticosti, at the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, is the principal, having an area of 2,500 square miles. The chief rivers are the St. Maurice, Saguenay, Gatuinea, and the Richelieu. The country is dotted with many lakes. Mineral resources are not extensively developed. Iron and copper abound; gold, silver, lead, platinum, zinc, etc., have also been found. Quebec abounds in magnificent scenery. The climate is healthy, but subject to extremes of temperature. The soil in the St. Lawrence valley and eastern part is fertile; there is much fine grazing country, but the greater portion of the province is covered with forests; pine, ash, birch, beech, elm, hickory and many other kinds are found. Oats, potatoes and hay are the largest crops; wheat, rye, Indian corn, etc., are also grown in smaller quantities; apples and plums are important products in some parts of the province. Many fur-bearing animals are found in the northern parts. Fisheries are extensively pursued, the chief fish being cod, herring, salmon, seals, mackerel and lobsters. Manufactures are not yet much developed. The public school system is well regulated and effective. The chief cities are Quebec, the capital, population 59,699, and Montreal, the commercial metropolis, population 165,000.

New Brunswick is in latitude $44^{\circ} 35' - 48^{\circ} 5'$ north, and longitude $63^{\circ} 47' - 69^{\circ} 5'$ west. It has the Gulf of St. Lawrence on the east and Bay of Fundy on the south, Quebec north and Maine west. The surface is mostly flat or undulating, with hills at the north; on the eastern coast are extensive marshes. It has a coast line of 545 miles, with many good bays and harbors. The chief river is the St. John. Coal, gypsum, freestone and grindstone abound: salt springs are numerous; copper, iron, antimony and some other minerals are found. The climate is extreme, but healthy. The soil is fertile, producing wheat, barley, oats, rye, potatoes, etc., in abundance. Indian corn, apples, pears, cherries and small fruits are common. The forests are valuable. Among wild animals are bears, moose, foxes, beavers, etc. Salmon, trout, eels, perch, cod, mackerel, and herring are abundant. Shipbuilding is an important industry. Manufactures are quite well developed. A system of free public schools was established in 1871. The principal city is St. John, population 39,000; capital, Fredericton, population 6,006.

Nova Scotia, including Cape Breton island, is in latitude $43^{\circ} 26' - 47^{\circ} 5'$ north, and longitude $59^{\circ} 40' - 66^{\circ} 25'$ west. The surface of the peninsula is undulating, with a rugged Atlantic coast. The commercial advantages are good. The most valuable minerals are coal, gold and gypsum; iron, copper and other minerals are also found. The climate is notably healthy, and is much tempered by the Gulf Stream. Dense fogs are prevalent. Much of the soil is fertile, and the usual agricultural products abound. Valuable timber abounds. Wild animals are not numerous, and are of those kinds common to North America. The adjacent waters swarm with fish. Its free public school system was organized in 1864. Halifax is the capital, population 29,582.

Prince Edward's Island is in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, latitude $45^{\circ} 58' - 47^{\circ} 7'$ north, longitude $62^{\circ} - 64^{\circ} 27'$ west. The surface is generally flat, and well adapted to agriculture. No valuable minerals have been discovered; quantities of peat are found. The climate is salubrious and mild for that latitude. Agriculture is the chief occupation; shipbuilding and fishing are important industries. The smaller grains and hay are the principal products. Timber is abundant. The school system is much like that of the other British provinces. Charlottetown is the capital and chief city, population 8,807.

British Columbia is on the Pacific coast, between latitude $48^{\circ} 19' - 60^{\circ}$ north, and longitude $113^{\circ} -$

136° west. The coast is deeply indented. Vancouver, Queen Charlotte and other islands lie some distance from the coast. The country is generally mountainous, but there are large sections of arable land, and much more that is well adapted to grazing. The eastern part is occupied by the Rocky mountains, the highest peaks of which are Mt. Browne (16,000 feet) and Mt. Hooker (15,700 feet). There are vast forest tracts. The surface of Vancouver island is very mountainous and covered with forests of pine and cedar. The principal rivers are the Columbia and Frazer. Gold, silver and coal are the chief minerals. The climate is healthy, and mild for the latitude; the winters are more humid than cold. The soil in the valleys is fertile. Wheat, oats, barley, etc., are grown with some success. Stock raising is a more successful industry. The country is rich in fur-bearing animals and fish. British Columbia is of recent settlement, beginning with the discovery of gold in 1858; its institutions are not yet much developed. The capital and chief town is Victoria, on Vancouver island; population in 1871, 4,000.

Manitoba is between latitude $49^{\circ} - 50^{\circ} 30'$ north, and longitude $96^{\circ} - 99^{\circ}$ west. It joins on the south with Dakota and Minnesota. The surface is in general a level prairie. The principal stream is the Red river of the North, which empties into Lake Winnipeg. No special mineral resources have been developed. The soil is very rich, and it is one of the best wheat countries in the world; its general agricultural advantages are inducing a rapid immigration. Wild fruits are quite abundant; wood is scarce. Of wild animals, elk, badgers and squirrels are the principal; wild game, fowls and fish abound. The climate is healthy, but with great extremes. The capital is Winnipeg (Fort Garry), an active business place of 10,000 in 1878. The public school system is already in good working condition.

Keewatin.—Attached to Manitoba for purposes of administration is the Territory of Keewatin. This embraces an area of 395,306 square miles. It is bounded east by Ontario and Hudson's Bay, south by Minnesota and Manitoba, west by the Northwest Territories, and north by the Arctic Ocean. Its principal population is a colony of Icelanders. Capital, Gimli.

The Hudson Bay or Northwest Territory is the vast region stretching north from the provinces above named to the Arctic Ocean. It extends a length of about 2,500 miles, with a breadth of 1,500. The southwestern portion is generally level or rolling; further east the surface is very uneven, with mountains and extensive marshes. The greater part of the whole region is barren waste; some of the prairie lands at the south are productive, and much more has value for its timber. The climate is severe and generally inhospitable. Vast numbers of fur-bearing animals inhabit these regions. Esquimaux and various tribes of Indians are the chief inhabitants.

The Government and Constitution of the Dominion of Canada is modeled after that of Great Britain. The executive power is with the Queen, represented by a governor-general with his privy council. The parliament consists of a senate and house of commons, the senators nominated for life by the governor-general, and the members of the house elected by the people. Male British subjects 21 years of age, and on a small property qualification, have the right of suffrage. Each province has also a lieutenant-governor and parliament of its own, and is subdivided into districts or counties.

Religions.—There is no State religion; the census of 1871 showed 1,492,029 Roman Catholics, 544,698 Presbyterians, 514,214 Methodists, 494,049 Episcopalians, 37,935 Lutherans, 21,829 Congregationalists, and about 15,000 of other creeds.

Railways, Army, etc.—In 1878 the Dominion had nearly 7,000 miles of railroad in operation, and a road to the Pacific coast under construction. The army consists of a standing force of 2,000, and an active militia of 30,000. In 1878 the number of vessels for commercial and other purposes was 7,469.

Trade and Finance.—The trade and navigation returns for the year 1879-'80, presented to the Canadian houses of parliament, show some of the results of the tariff which came into operation two years since. The revenue during the year was $23,307,406. The imports amounted to $86,489,747, of which Great Britain contributed $34,461,224, and the United States $29,346,948. The exports reached $87,911,454, goods to the value of $45,846,062 going to Great Britain, and $33,349,909 to the United States. All these items show large increases over the figures for 1878-'9, with the exception of the imports into Canada from the United States, which show a decrease of $12,826,452. The imports from Great Britain increased by $3,493,364 during the same period. The appended figures show the value of Canadian exports and imports since 1868, and the increase in the public debt during that period. They indicate that the national debt has increased at a rate which is quite out of proportion to the expansion of the trade of the Dominion.

	Exports.	Imports.	Public Debt.
1868.....	$57,567,888	$73,457,644	$96,896,666

Newfoundland is an island and province of Great Britain, situated in the Atlantic Ocean, at the mouth of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, in latitude 46° 38' 51" 37' north, and longitude 52° 44' 59" 30' west. It is separated from Labrador at the north by the Straits of Belle Isle, 12 miles in width. It is 370 miles in length, 290 broad, has a circumference of about 1,000 miles, and has an area of 40,200 square miles. Population in 1874, 161,486. The island in general presents a wild and sterile appearance; its surface is diversified by mountains, marshes, barrens, ponds and lakes. There are so many of these lakes that it is estimated one-third the island is covered with water. There are many mountains of 1,000 to 1,400 feet in height. The interior has never been thoroughly explored, but is mainly an undulating plateau, hilly, barren and marshy. The coast is deeply indented with large bays and inlets. The main streams are the Exploit, Terra Nova and Humber rivers, but none are navigable for any distance. The island is rich in useful minerals, among which are silver, copper, lead, marble, limestone, gypsum, and coal. Trees, chiefly the birch, fir, willow and mountain ash, flourish, but are of stunted growth. Very little of the soil is productive and agriculture is not much carried on. Fishing is the chief occupation; the fisheries are of two kinds, the "shore fishery" and the "bank fishery," the latter comprising the great tract known as the Banks of Newfoundland, 600 miles long by 200 wide, noted for its codfish. Seal fishing is also an important industry. The principal wild animals are the caribou, bear, wolf, beaver, wild-cat, marten and fox; domestic animals are scarce. Vegetation is of stunted growth. The climate is healthy and somewhat tempered by the Gulf Stream, but is extremely variable; dense fogs prevail, which, with violent gales, make the coast dangerous to navigation. The administration is carried on by a governor and legislative council appointed by the crown, and a general assembly elected by the people. The right to vote is allowed those 21 years of age who have occupied dwelling houses two years. Education is within the reach of all classes, and religious institutions are ample. There are no railways and almost no public roads. It has about 400 miles of telegraph, and the Anglo-American cable has its western terminus on this island, from which connections extend to the United States. The imports are chiefly provisions and manufactures, while the exports are mainly fish. In 1874 the exports amounted to $7,415,978, and the imports to $7,389,090. The public revenue in 1875 was $954,835, while the expenditures were about the same amount.

THE BRITISH COLONIES OF AUSTRALIA.

BY J. A. AMUNDSON, A.B.

Danish, Spanish, Portuguese and Turkish—Australia. French—Australie. German—Australien. Russian—Avstrallia. Swedish—Australien. Chinese—Hsin Kin Shan.

Position, Size, etc.—Australia, sometimes classed as the sixth and smallest continent on the globe, is a vast island, lying southeast of the continent of Asia. It is bounded on the north by the Arafoora Sea and Torres Strait, the latter of which divides it from the island of New Guinea; on the east by the Pacific Ocean; on the south by the Indian Ocean and Bass's Strait, the latter separating it from Tasmania; and on the west by the Indian Ocean. Its latitude is from 10° to 39° south, and its longitude from 113° to 153° east. Its greatest length from east to west is about 2,600 miles, and its greatest breadth from north to south about 2,000 miles. Its area is about 2,970,000 square miles, making it half the size of South America, the fifth continent in extent.

Topography and Geography.—The coast line of Australia is unusually even and marked by very few indentations. In the north is the large gulf of Carpentaria, extending inwards about 500 miles and having a width of 400 miles. All the other indentations together are not equal to this one. The most considerable among them are Spencer Gulf and St. Vincent Gulf on the southern coast, and Queen's Channel and Cambridge Gulf on the northwest coast. The southern coast has an inward bend, forming what is called the Great Australian Bight. Along the northeast coast extend the Great Barrier coral reefs, the largest known in the world. There are numerous excellent harbors along the shore of the southeastern portion of Australia. The mountain ranges, none of very great height, are confined almost entirely to the borders of the island, and principally to the eastern and southeastern border. Though essentially but one range, these mountains on the east border receive different names in different parts,—in Victoria, the Grampian mountains and Australian Alps; in New South Wales, the Blue mountains and New England range; and in Queensland, the Craig, Denham, and Peak ranges. The highest summit is that of Mt. Kosciusko, 7,176 feet. The scenery in these mountains is often very fine. Of the interior of the continent there is as yet no thorough scientific knowledge. It seems to be a vast table land, containing not a few desert tracts, numerous swamps, and hardly any useful watercourses. Still there are extensive fertile plains in places. But the fertility and luxuriance of the continent is found mainly in the coast regions. The rivers of Australia are for the most part short, being confined to the border; very few of them are navigable, and they have a strange capacity for making a sudden disappearance in quicksands and marshes, even at seasons when they are most full of water. They do not irrigate the soil. Permanent rivers in Australia are the exception, and chief among the exceptions is the Murray, with its branches, the Lacklan and Murrumbidgee. The Murray, forming the boundary line between Victoria and New South Wales, has a length of about 600 miles. The Darling, a good-sized river, flowing into the Murray from the north, is liable to dry up considerably in summer. The lakes of Australia are not more stable than its rivers, but are apt in summer to become mere swamps or mud beds.

Climate.—The climate, though very hot, has been found dry and healthy by the European colonists in the parts where they have settled, principally in the south. Here the rains are violent but irregular. Variations in the indications of the thermometer are very great—a fall of 20° to 30° in a half-hour being frequent. In summer it is not unusual for it to indicate 100°, or even 120°. The mean annual temperature on the north coast is 80°, and at Melbourne on the south coast 59°. The mean annual rainfall at Port Phillip (near Melbourne) is 29.16 inches, and the number of rainy days is 120.

Animals.—The animals of Australia are peculiarly its own. Its carnivores are few, and ruminants and pachyderms are unknown. The dingo, resembling a dog, can alone be called a beast of prey, and its prey is sheep. The animals that most abound are marsupials or pouched animals—the largest and the most common being the kangaroo. Opossums are numerous. The serpents are insignificant and few venomous. There are several species of poisonous insects, including the scorpion, centipede, and some kinds of spider. Ants abound and are quite troublesome, their bite being painful. Sharks are found on all coasts. Among birds are eagles, falcons and owls, but especially to be mentioned and very numerous are those having a most brilliant plumage, including parrots, birds of paradise and orioles.

Plants and Trees.—The plants of Australia are as peculiarly its own as its animals, and nine-tenths of its 8,000 species are said to be elsewhere unknown. The bulk of its trees is made up of the eucalypti and the acacias. They are characterized by a lack of foliage, and what there is is firm, gummy, leathery, and monotonously green. The eucalypti often reach a height of 200 feet, with a circumference at the base of 30 to 40 feet. For at least half their height they have no branches. The flowers of Australia are very beautiful, but not fragrant. Imported varieties of plants flourish well.

Subdivisions.—Australia is made up of colonies of Great Britain, each with a separate government. The remaining facts to be presented in regard to Australia, therefore, we shall give in a brief consideration of the colonies separately.

Victoria, in the southeast, triangular in shape, bounded on the north by New South Wales (from which it is separated by the Murray river), on the west by South Australia, and on the south by Bass's Strait, extends in south latitude from 34° to 39° , and in east longitude from 141° to 150° , includes an area of 88,198 square miles, and had an estimated population June 30, 1879, of 887,734. It has a coast line of about 600 miles, including several fine harbors. About 65 miles back from the coast the Grampian mountains and Australian Alps, running east and west, divide it into two unequal parts. It possesses almost unparalleled mineral wealth, but little of which is as yet actively developed. In one-third of the colony it is estimated that gold-bearing rocks abound. Besides this, silver, copper, tin, zinc, iron, lead, antimony, cobalt, bismuth, manganese, molybdenum, coal, sulphur, kaolin, and bitumen; and among precious stones, the ruby, sapphire, topaz, garnet and agate. Three-fourths of its soil is available for pasturage and farming. In 1875 there were 1,126,831 acres under cultivation. In that year it produced 4,850,135 bushels of wheat, and 2,121,612 bushels of oats; of wine, 599,093 gallons; and it contained 180,254 horses, 11,521,036 sheep, 958,658 cattle, and 137,941 swine. The most important industry is gold-mining, in which, at the end of 1879, 38,000 men were employed, one-third Chinese. The yield for 1878 was 755,754 ounces. From the discovery of gold in Victoria up to 1878 the total yield of that metal was £188,975,205, or about $940,000,000. The chief imports are woollen manufactures, live stock, sugar, cottons, apparel and haberdashery, and tea. The gross total value of its imports in 1879 was £15,035,538. The staple articles of export are wool and gold, and the minor tallow, and preserved and salted provisions. The gross total value of its exports in 1879 was £12,454,170. The value of imports from the United States into all Australasia in 1879-'80 was $4,748,590, and of exports from same to the United States, $2,920,812. Melbourne, with a population of about 65,000, is the capital of Victoria. The executive power is vested in a governor appointed by the crown and holding office seven years. He is assisted by an executive council of nine. The parliament consists of two chambers, the legislative council and the legislative assembly. Members must have an estate of £2,500, or of the annual value of £250; and electors must have an estate of the rateable value of £50 per annum. But no property qualification is required of British college graduates or of professional men. Ministers cannot sit in parliament. Members and all officers of the government receive a fixed salary. In 1871 there were 257,835 Episcopalians, 112,983 Presbyterians, 94,220 Methodists, 18,191 Independents, 16,311 Baptists, 10,559 Lutherans, 170,620 Roman Catholics, 3,571 Jews, and some of other denominations. In 1875 the volunteer force of Victoria was 3,953 men, and the navy of two ships, one carrying 72 guns. In 1880 there were over 1,200 miles of railway, over 3,000 miles of telegraph, and about 850 post offices. Education is free, secular, compulsory. There were in 1873 1,936 schools and colleges. There are eight grammar schools and colleges and one university. Public libraries exist in the larger towns. In 1878 the revenue of Victoria was £4,504,413, the expenditure £4,634,349, and the public debt £17,022,065.

New South Wales, in the southeast part of Australia, bounded on the north by Queensland, on the east by the Pacific Ocean, on the south by Victoria, and on the west by South Australia, extending in south latitude from 28° to $37^{\circ} 30'$ and in east longitude from 141° to 154° , has an area of 310,938 square miles, and on the 31st day of December, 1878, had a population estimated at 693,743. The coast is indented with many excellent harbors, and along the whole coast, not far back from it, extend mountain ranges. The largest rivers of Australia rise in the mountains of New South Wales. In 1876 there were 297,575 acres of land under cultivation, of which 154,030 acres were under wheat, 3,462 under barley, 13,975 under oats, 1,342 under rye, 119,956 under maize, and 254 under other kinds. There were also 24,382,536 sheep, 3,134,086 horned cattle, 357,696 horses, and 190,950 pigs. New South Wales is supposed to be richer in coal than any other part of Australia. In 1875, 1,192,861 tons were produced. The gold mines are vast in area, and the copper mines valuable. The exports consist of wool, tin, copper, tallow, preserved meat, gums, bark and timber. The gross total value of exports, including bullion and specie, in 1878, was £12,965,879. The imports consist chiefly of manufactures, especially textile fabrics and iron. The gross total value of imports in 1878 was £14,768,873. Sidney, with a population in 1871 of 134,755, is the capital of New South Wales. The governor is nominated by the crown. Parliament consists of two houses, the legislative council and the legislative assembly. There is no property qualification for electors. The governor is assisted by a cabinet of seven, who are responsible to the assembly. In 1871 there were 229,243 Episcopalians, 49,122 Presbyterians, 36,277 Wesleyans, 9,253 Congregationalists, 147,627 Roman Catholics, 7,455 Mohammedans, etc., and some of other denominations. In 1880 there were 863 miles of railroad and about 9,000 miles of telegraph. There is a university at Sidney, and in 1871 the colony had 1,450 schools. The revenue of New South Wales in 1878 was £4,983,864, the expenditure £5,672,154, and the public debt £11,688,119.

Queensland, in the northeast of Australia, extending in south latitude from $10^{\circ} 43'$ to 29° and in east longitude from 138° to 153° , bounded north by the Gulf of Carpentaria and Torres Strait, east by the Coral Sea and the Pacific Ocean, south by New South Wales, and west by South Australia, has an area of 669,520 square miles, and on the 31st day of December, 1879, had a population estimated officially at 277,851, the males being largely in excess. The coast line is 2,500 miles long, with mountains along the southern portion, and 20 to 30 miles off the coast the Great Barrier reef extends for 1,250 miles. Along the Carpentarian gulf the shore is low. Queensland is well drained with rivers, and its climate the best in Australia. The soil is well suited to the raising of cotton, sugar-cane, tobacco, and all the cereals, vegetables and flowers of northern Europe. Stock raising is extensively carried on, the pasturage being rich. In 1876 there were 7,241,810 sheep, 1,985,807 cattle, 130,289 horses, and 53,023 swine. Queensland is rich in gold, copper and coal. The exports consist of wool, tallow, gold, copper, tin ore, cotton, live stock, hides, timber and provisions. The gross total value of exports in 1879 was £3,434,034. The imports consist of manufactures. The gross total value of imports in 1879 was £3,080,889. There are 530 miles of railway in operation in Queensland, all of the narrow gauge of 3 feet 6 inches. There are many lines of telegraph through the colony, and others constructing. Brisbane, with a population of 28,061 in 1877, is the capital of Queensland. The governor is appointed by the crown, and the parliament consists of two houses, the legislative council and the legislative assembly. The members of the former are nominated by the crown for life. There is a small property qualification for electors of members to the lower house. Schools are free, and in 1870 there were 111 public schools. There are also a number of grammar schools. The revenue of Queensland in 1879 was £1,461,824, the expenditure £1,678,631, and the public debt in 1878 £8,935,350.

South Australia, occupying the central part of Australia and extending north and south entirely across it, has an area of 903,690 square miles, and at the close of the year 1878 had a population officially estimated at 248,795. The southern shore has many good harbors. The colony contains the largest lakes in Australia. The northern portion consists of scrub lands, but lands rich in mineral wealth. In the south iron and copper abound, especially copper. The colony promises well agriculturally. In 1876 there were 1,444,586 acres under cultivation, of which 898,820 acres were in wheat. In 1876 there were 107,164 horses, 219,240 horned cattle, and 6,179,395 sheep. The three staple articles of export are wool, wheat and flour, and copper ore. The gross total value of exports in 1879 was £4,762,729. The imports consist of manufactures. The gross total value of imports in 1879 was £5,014,150. The South Australian railways comprise in all nearly 650 miles, of which about 532 are traversed by locomotive engines, horse power being used on the remainder. Adelaide is the capital. The population of Adelaide county in 1871 was 85,593. The governor is appointed by the crown, but both houses of parliament are elected by the people. There is a property qualification for electors. In 1871 there were 50,849 Episcopalians, 28,668 Roman Catholics, and 27,075 Wesleyans. There are over 4,500 miles of telegraph, including the great overland line, 2,000 miles in length, through the heart of the continent from Adelaide at the south to Palmerston at the north. There is a university at Adelaide, and there were in the colony 307 licensed schools in 1872. The revenue of South Australia in 1879 was £1,662,120, the expenditure £1,768,167, and the public debt in 1878 £5,329,600.

Western Australia, consisting of the whole island west of 120° east longitude, has an estimated area of 1,000,000 square miles, and in December, 1878, had a population estimated by its own government officials at 28,166. It has a coast line of 3,000 miles, mostly flat. A surface, for the most part level, is largely covered with forests. The interior is destitute of lakes or rivers of note. The colony is very rich in silver, lead, copper, iron and plumbago. The climate is healthy. In 1876 there were 45,933 acres of land under cultivation, and the live stock consisted of 25,263 horses, 44,550 cattle, and 688,292 sheep. The pearl fishery on the northwest coast has a steadily increasing value. The exports consist chiefly of wool and lead ore. Sandal wood is exported in large quantities. In 1879 the gross total value of exports, including bullion and specie, was £447,913, and the gross total value of imports was £407,099. Perth is the capital, and in 1870 the Perth district contained a population of 5,007. The government consists of a governor and a legislative council of seven appointed and fourteen elected members. Members and electors must possess a property qualification. As to religion, 70.41 per cent. of the population were Protestants in 1870, 28.72 per cent. Catholic, the rest being Jews and those of no denomination. The construction of railways and telegraphs has been begun. Thirty miles of railway are open, and other lines under contract. The revenue of Western Australia in 1879 was £196,135, and expenditure £145,312. Western Australia had public debt, December 31, 1878, of only £184,556.

From its immediate accessibility to the United States by steamer from San Francisco, Australia, as a whole, promises to be in the near future a lucrative field for the enterprise of American merchants and manufacturers.

THE BRITISH COLONY OF NEW ZEALAND.

BY J. A. AMUNDSON, A.B.

Danish—Ny Zealand. French—La Nouvelle-Zélande. German—Neu Seeland. Russian—Nóvaia Zelándiia. Italian—Nuova Zelandia. Spanish and Portuguese—Nueva Zelandia. Swedish—Nya Seeland.

Location, Area, etc.—New Zealand, a colony of Great Britain, lying 1,000 miles southeast of Australia, consists of three main islands and some lesser ones, in the South Pacific ocean. It extends in south latitude from $34^{\circ} 15'$ to $47^{\circ} 30'$, and in east longitude (from Greenwich) from $166^{\circ} 30'$ to $178^{\circ} 45'$. The area, all told, of the colony is estimated at 105,342 square miles, and its estimated population, March 3, 1878, was 414,412, there being 230,998 males, and 183,338 females.

Sub-divisions.—The two principal islands are named the North, and the Middle, besides which, south of the middle island, is the South, or Stewart Island. The whole group has a length of about 1,000 miles, and a width of 200 miles, with a coast line 3,000 miles in extent. North Island contains about 44,000 square miles; Middle Island, 55,000; and Stewart Island, as yet uninhabited, about 1,000 square miles. The three islands together have, like Italy, the general shape of a boot, the toe pointing north. Cook's strait separates North Island from Middle Island, and Foveaux strait separates Middle Island from Stewart Island.

Topography and Geography.—The best harbors of North Island are on the north coast. The east coast for 600 miles has only three safe anchorages. There are several on the west coast, but obstructed by sand bars. Middle Island, also, has good harbors on the north, only three on the east coast of 500 miles, but many excellent ones on the south and southwest. Stewart Island contains several good harbors. North Island is quite mountainous, spurs radiating in all directions from the center, where a maximum height is attained of 9,195 feet. Several peaks are covered with perpetual snow, and there are a number of volcanoes, the chief being Mt. Egmont, 8,270 feet high, and a perfect cone in shape. Middle Island has a range running from north to southwest, reaching its greatest height in Mount Cook (13,200 feet), but there are no active volcanoes in Middle Island. Stewart Island is mountainous, but the mountains are low. There are frequent but not violent earthquakes in New Zealand, Cook's strait being the center of the earthquake region. Rivers, inlets of the sea, and lakes are abundant on North Island, the rivers flowing in all directions from the central mountains, and subject to great floods from the melting of mountain snows. Middle Island has, also, several extensive lakes. Hot and cold springs, and mineral springs, impregnated with sulphur, iron and silicates abound. Also beautiful geysers ejecting boiling mineral waters. It is said that birds thrown into these are taken out as hard as flint.

The Climate of New Zealand is unexcelled in the world. Moderately warm, genial and serene, as a general thing, with no wet or dry seasons, the rains being frequent, but never long in duration, the mean annual temperature of North Island is 57° and that of Middle Island 52° . Summer mornings are invariably cool, and the nights mild.

Flora and Fauna.—New Zealand is well stocked with trees, mostly of the evergreen order, so that, from one year's end to the other, the woods present about the same appearance. Ferns are abundant, but all kinds of grasses and annual plants are scarce. Eight kinds of whales, two of dolphins, and three of seals are found on New Zealand coasts. The only native quadrupeds were dogs and rats. But the dogs have given way to swine as food for the natives and become extinct, while the native rats have succumbed before the superiority of the Norway rat, introduced by European settlers. There are 133 species of birds, mostly of dull plumage. Serpents do not exist, and very few frogs and toads. Insects number 100 species. Mosquitoes, sand-flies and spiders abound, some of the latter being reported poisonous.

Counties and Cities.—New Zealand is subdivided into nine counties, four on North Island, viz: Auckland, Taranaki, Wellington and Hawke Bay; and five on Middle Island, viz: Nelson, Marlborough, Canterbury, Otago (including Stewart Island), and Westland. Wellington, at the south end of North Island, is the capital of New Zealand, population about 12,000. Auckland, one of the most flourishing and important cities of the colony had, in 1878, with its immediate suburbs, a population of about 32,000. Christ Church, in Canterbury, and Dunedin, in Otago, are large and flourishing cities.

Agriculture.—Two-thirds of the area of New Zealand is fitted for agriculture and grazing, the English grasses having been successfully introduced for the latter purpose. Sheep farms, thousands of acres in extent, are found. In 1874 the live stock consisted of 99,859 horses, 494,917 cattle, 11,704,853 sheep, 123,921 swine, and 1,058,198 domestic fowls.

Trade, etc.—The exports are chiefly wool, gold, wheat, oats, barley, tallow, rabbit-skins, and kauri-gum. The gross total value of the exports in 1879 was £5,743,126. The imports embrace iron, textile fabrics and apparel, and haberdashery. The gross total value of the imports in 1879 was £8,374,585. Gold, iron and coal are abundant, and copper, lead, tin and petroleum exist. The gold fields are extensive, and in 1875 New Zealand exported 355,322 ounces, valued at £1,407,770. Over 100 species of fish are found on the coasts, the lakes are well stocked, and eels are caught weighing 50 pounds.

Government.—In the government of New Zealand, the executive power is vested in a governor appointed by the crown. The legislative power is vested in the governor and a general assembly, consisting of the legislative council, whose 45 members are nominated for life by the crown, and of the house of representatives, whose 88 members are elected for 5 years by the people. Both electors and members must possess a certain property qualification. A cabinet of responsible ministers, similar to that in England, conducts the general administration.

Religions and Education.—Among the religious denominations, the Church of England leads. Others found in New Zealand are Wesleyans, Scotch Presbyterians and Roman Catholics. Education is liberally supported by church organizations and by the state. In 1878 there were, all told, 748 common schools, with 1,272 teachers and 50,639 pupils. There are 13 high or grammar schools in the colony, and 9 others have received endowments. The university of New Zealand, the university of Otago, and Canterbury college are for higher education.

Railways, etc.—At the end of June, 1879, there were 1,145 miles of railroad completed at a total cost of £8,057,188. 7,065 miles of telegraph wire was used in 1875, and the number of messages sent that year was 993,323. The post-office, in 1878, received 8,236,062 letters, 116,674 post cards and 5,097,907 newspapers, and dispatched 7,288,699 letters, 137,509 post cards and 4,312,459 newspapers. During the year it issued 101,017 money orders to the amount of £368,254. The total public revenue of New Zealand, in 1879 was £3,551,814. The public debt of the general government of New Zealand, June 30, 1879, was £21,513,303.

THE POPULATION OF NEW YORK,

According to the last census, is 1,206,577; natives, 727,748; foreign, 478,834. The Irish population is about 300,000, and the German is reckoned at 250,000. But two cities in Germany have a larger population, so that New York is the third German city of the world. There are more Irish here than in Belfast, and New York has some five or six times as many Jews as in the whole of Palestine. It is strange, but nevertheless a fact, that at least fifty languages and dialects are spoken in its streets.

AMERICANS IN TURKEY.

In every part of Turkey American citizens are living remote from all other foreigners, and dependent for safety to life and property upon the will and power of the United States to protect its citizens engaged in legitimate business in every part of the world. These Americans are Missionaries who have done and are doing a great work in the education and elevation of the people of Turkey. Their work has received and is now receiving the highest praise from men of high position in various lands. Some of these men attach to the influence in Turkey of the American missionaries an almost international importance. They see in it a growing power worthy to be noted even in the consideration of the political future of the Turkish Empire. The society which employs them places them in the Turkish Empire to expend thousands of dollars every year in the furtherance of its objects. It carries on a great book business, with sales in every corner of Turkey, and it has opened 304 schools in that country, where 12,000 scholars are under instruction. It also owns houses and lands in many of the Turkish cities and towns. By its operations the trade of our country is fostered, as may be seen, for instance, in the development of the petroleum trade. Missionaries first introduced American petroleum into Turkey, and now almost every town in the country is lighted with it, and the names of the leading oil merchants of New York are seen by every roadside.

THE SCHOOLS OF THE ENGLISH-SPEAKING PEOPLES.

Official reports, recently published, show the entire number of scholars enrolled in the schools of the United States to be 9,373,185, and the number of teachers employed, 271,144. Great Britain and Ireland have enrolled 5,251,330 pupils, with 89,493 teachers of all grades. Australia (without New Zealand) has 452,254 enrolled scholars, with teachers numbering 7,542. The Canadian British Provinces have upon their school rolls 865,842, taught by 14,797 instructors. These unitedly have 15,942,621 scholars, and a corps of teachers numbering 382,876. If we add to the foregoing an estimate for the English-speaking schools in South Africa, India and elsewhere, not included above, of 500,000 pupils and 8,000 teachers, we have a grand army of busy students, numbering 15,952,058, and of teachers, 376,179—in all, 15,950,258. In round numbers, the one hundred millions of English-speaking people have sixteen millions in school, actively fitting themselves or others for the intelligent discharge of the great responsibilities that lie before them. About one-sixth of the people are thus passing their days in the school-house figuring out theoretical problems preparatory to meeting the sterner and more practical ones of a later life.

THE BRITISH COLONY OF TASMANIA.

BY J. A. AMUNDSON, A.B.

Danish, Russian, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and Swedish—Tasmania. French—Tasmanie; or, Terre de Van Diemen. German—Van Diemen's Inseln.

Location and Size.—Tasmania, or Van Diemen's Land, a colony of Great Britain, is situated 120 miles southeast of Australia, from which it is separated by Bass strait. It consists of one large island and a number of small ones. It extends in south latitude from 40° 38' to 43° 38', and in east longitude (from Greenwich), from 144° 40' to 148° 30'. It has an area, all told, of 26,215 square miles, and on December 31, 1879, had a population officially estimated at 112,469.

Topography.—The main island is somewhat triangular in shape. Its coast is very much indented, and presents numerous good harbors. Tasmania is well supplied with mountains, one principal range running along the east coast and attaining a maximum height of 5,010 in the peak Ben Lomond. In the center of the island is a lofty table-land, from whose highest point (Cradle Mount, 5,096 feet), numerous small ranges diverge in all directions. There are six good sized lakes, varying in extent of surface from 28,000 acres to 8,000 acres, situated in the central table-land. From this, also, proceed a good many rivers, chief among them being the Derwent, Macquarie and Mersey.

Minerals.—Tasmania is rich in mineral deposits, especially iron, tin ore and coal. Gold, copper, lead and bismuth are also found. Limestone and white freestone of a fine quality abound. The latter is largely exported to Melbourne. Its mineral endowments have as yet scarcely begun to be developed.

Climate.—The climate is remarkably mild and free from extremes the year through. Thirty years' observation gives 54° as the mean annual temperature, while the mean annual rainfall is 22.71 inches. The pure atmosphere of Tasmania is sought by many who have been enervated by the hotter climate of Australia.

Fauna.—Like the animals of Australia, those of Tasmania are mostly marsupials, the kangaroo and opossum being so abundant that leather from the former and the furs of the latter are exported. The island has one peculiar carnivorous animal, about the size of the wolf, which is sometimes called the Tasmanian devil. It has never been known to yield or retreat from the greatest odds, preferring rather to fight to the death.

Trees, Forests, etc.—Extensive forests of eucalyptus and acacia are found in the interior, serving well for cabinet work and ship building. In between the mountains are large tracts of pasture land, while a very fertile soil produces abundantly all the cereals, vegetables and fruits of temperate climates. Green and preserved fruit in large quantities are exported. In 1877, there were in Tasmania 23,622 horses, 124,459 head of cattle, 1,755,142 sheep and lambs and 60,681 pigs. The fishery is prosecuted with much vigor. Whales, both black and spermaceti, seals, excellent fish and oysters abound.

Trade.—The exports include wool, jams, hops, bark, cereals, horses, sheep, sperm oil, fruits and gold. The gross total values of exports and imports, including bullion and specie, in 1879, were as follows: exports, £1,301,097, and imports, £1,267,475. The imports consist of manufactures. Public debt December 31, 1878, £1,747,400.

Government, etc.—The capital of Tasmania is Hobart Town, population 20,000. Next in importance is Launceston, population 11,000. Both are ports. The government consists of a governor appointed by the crown, and of a parliament with two houses, the legislative council and the house of assembly. There is a property qualification for electors. The governor is commander-in-chief of the colonial troops, and is assisted by a cabinet of five ministers.

Religions and Education.—As to religion, the population was distributed in 1870 as follows: Church of England, 53.41 per cent.; Church of Rome, 22.24; Church of Scotland, 6.69; Free Church of Scotland, 2.43; Independents, 3.96; Wesleyans, 7.23; Jews, .23; other sects, 3.84. Education is compulsory. In 1873, there were 141 public schools, and four superior schools. In 1870, 24,444 persons in the colony could not read.

Railways, etc.—There are about 200 miles of railroad, and 630 miles of telegraph. In 1876 there were 177 post-offices. The public revenue of Tasmania, in 1876, was £327,394; the public expenditure, £336,387, and the public debt, £1,520,500. The official statistics of the direct trade between Tasmania and the United States being incorporated with those of Australia, cannot be given separately.

THE HAWAIIAN OR SANDWICH ISLANDS.

BY JAMES Q. RICE, A.M.

Danish—Sandwich Oer. French—Les îles Sandwich. German—Sandwich Inseln. Russian—Sándvichery Ostrová. Italian—Isola Sandwich. Spanish and Portuguese—Ilhas de Sandwich. Swedish—Sandwichsoarne. Chinese—Tsan Hsiang Shan.

Location and Topography.—The Hawaiian, or, more properly called, Sandwich Islands, are a group of islands in the North Pacific Ocean, lying between 18° 54' and 22° 2' north latitude and 155° and 161° west longitude. The group consists of eight inhabited and four uninhabited islands, having an area of 6,250 square miles, that of Hawaii being nearly double that of all the other islands together. The population by the census of 1878 amounted to 57,985. The islands are of volcanic formation and mountainous, the fertile lands being mostly confined to the valleys, with a belt of alluvial soil near the shore. The uplands are better adapted to grazing than to tillage, and the mountains, covered with dense forests, are not cultivable. The windward coasts which receive the northeast trade winds, interrupt the rain and are fertile, while the leeward side of the same island may be almost rainless. The islands have one excellent harbor—that of Honolulu, in Oahu—and several of the islands have tolerable ones. The principal physical feature of the islands is the number of volcanoes, and nowhere can one journey far without seeing an extinct crater. Hawaii has the largest two active volcanoes, Mauna Loa and Kilauea, the latter being the largest continually active crater in the world. Although the islands are very mountainous none of the peaks rise to the height of perpetual snow. The names of the islands are Hawaii, Maui, Kahoolawe, Lanai, Molokai, Oahu, Kauai and Niuhau, of which Hawaii is by far the largest and most important. The capital is Honolulu (population 14,114), situated on the southwestern coast of Oahu. The other chief towns are Hilo (population 4,200), situated on Hawaii; Lahaina (population 3,000), on Maui; and Waimea (population 1,200), on Kauai. The climate of the islands is healthful and remarkably equable. Extreme heat is never known, and the mean annual temperature at Honolulu is 75° F., while the daily range rarely exceeds 15°. A much more bracing climate may be obtained by ascending the mountains.

Flora and Fauna.—The indigenous flora of the islands numbers 373 kinds, while many more have been introduced. The cocoa-nut, banana, bread-fruit, pandanus, cordyline, and taro, or kalo, are probably indigenous. Few animals are found, Cook noticing on the island only hogs, dogs and rats. Neat cattle, goats, sheep and hogs are raised.

Agriculture.—The natives are inert and do not cultivate the soil to any great extent. Sugar, rice, cotton, coffee, arrow-root, maize, wheat, taro, or sweet potato (of which there are 38 species produced), pine-apples, oranges and lemons are the principal productions. Large capital has been embarked, chiefly by Americans, in the production of sugar, the soil and climate being especially favorable for it. The chief difficulty, however, is the lack of labor.

Exports and Imports.—The principal exports are sugar, rice, coffee, hides, skins, tallow and wool. The trade is chiefly with the United States. In 1878 the value of the exports was $3,500,000, and of the imports $3,000,000, and the commerce of the islands is rapidly increasing. The value of the exports to the United States for the year ending June 1st, 1880, was $4,606,444, and the imports for the same period were $2,086,170.

Government, etc.—The government is a constitutional monarchy, with a legislature of 20 nobles appointed by the king, and 28 representatives elected by the people. The whole population have embraced Christianity. There is one line of telegraph 40 miles in length between Lahaina and Wailuku. Education is superintended by the government, and nearly every Hawaiian can read and write. In 1878 there were 222 schools, the instruction being mainly in Hawaiian. The annual revenue is about $600,000, but it does not equal the expenditure, and there is a funded debt of about $500,000.

THE ISLAND OF TAHITI.

[BELONGING TO THE FRENCH REPUBLIC.]

BY HON. DORANCE ATWATER, U. S. CONSUL.

Size, Population, etc.—Tahiti has a superficial area of 257,000 acres and a population of 9,750, of which 7,860 are natives, 600 Chinese, 830 French, 260 English, 160 Americans and 40 Germans. Papeete is the only town (population 2,000), and the chief harbor of the island.

Products, Trade, etc.—The principal productions for export are cotton, oranges, limes, cocoanuts, copra (dried meat of the cocoanut), fungus, vanilla beans, mother of pearl, shell and pearls, the two latter articles coming from the Pomoto islands. Total value of exports $700,000; of imports $850,000, of which $550,000 are from the United States, which receives $190,000 of the exports, the remainder being divided between France, Germany, England and her colonies. There is a monthly communication by sailing vessel with San Francisco, frequently with New Zealand, New Caledonia, Australia and Valparaiso, and at long intervals with the Sandwich Islands. Total tonnage employed 22,000, of which one-fifth is American.

Education, Religion, etc.—Education which has always been under the direction of the different religious bodies, is to be in future under the control of government, which has devoted one-tenth of the whole revenue to educational purposes. Both the Catholic and Protestant churches receive subsidies from government, but notwithstanding the number of existing churches and the despotic influence which the missionaries held for over 50 years, their work has long since departed, and the field is far better prepared for the gleaner than when Captain Cook tarried here nine months for the transit of Venus.

Roads, Postal Facilities, etc.—There are no railroads or telegraphs. The public roads are good, and extend around the island; so also are the postal facilities. Steam and water power are confined to two cotton ginning, three sugar, and two saw mills, one ice and one soda factory. The soil is good and adapted to the growing of tropical and sub-tropical productions, but owing to the unwillingness of the Tahitian to labor, and the difficulty and great expense in procuring other laborers, the whole number of acres under cultivation does not exceed 3,000. Breadfruit, of which there are 30 varieties, is to be had at all seasons, and oranges, limes, bananas, guavas, cocoanuts, etc., etc., grow in abundance. The climate is salubrious, the prevailing complaints being asthma and rheumatism.

Other French Possessions.—The French possessions in the South seas, exclusive of those of New Caledonia, having a distinct government, consist of the Marquesian group of 11 islands, Gambier (two) islands, Tubuai (two) islands, Pomoto group of 78 islands, and Tahiti, with three smaller islands with a population of 33,000. The seat of government is at Papeete, Tahiti, and the whole under the direction of a governor sent out from France. Tahiti, made romantic by the reports of the early voyagers, and long known as the great missionary field, culminating in the French assuming a protectorate over it in 1842, was sold to France on the 29th of June, 1880, by King Pomare V., for a life annuity of $20,000 divided between himself and the remaining members of the royal family. No regrets are wasted upon this notorious, rapacious and lecherous family quitting the throne, nor would there be if they were to quit the sight of man.

THE FIJI ISLANDS.

BY JOHN C. TALCOTT, A.M.

Location, etc.—The Feejee, Fiji, or Viti Islands, form the largest group of the Polynesian archipelago, and lie in the South Pacific ocean, between latitude 15° 30'–20° 30' south, and longitude 177°–178° west. They number from 200 to 250, 80 being inhabited. Their total area is 8,000 square miles. The two chief islands are Viti Levu, having an area of 4,500 square miles, and Vanua Levu, or Levuka, possessing 1,500 square miles.

Soil, Climate, etc.—The soil of these islands is very rich and fertile. The temperature varies from 60° to 120°, and on account of the warm, moist climate the growth of vegetation is very wonderful, covering the islands with thick forests of excellent timber. The islands are subject to earthquakes.

From Heathenism to Christianity.—In 1854 the people were cannibals, widows were strangled at the death of their husbands, slaves killed at the death of their masters, victims were slain in numbers at the building of a house or a canoe, or at the visit of an embassy from another tribe. The family was the unit of political society. The families were grouped together in townships and otherwise under the lesser chiefs, who again owed allegiance to the supreme chief of the matanilo or tribe. The chiefs were a real aristocracy, excelling the people in strength, skill, intellect and acquisitions of all sorts, and the reverence felt for them was very great, and had something of a religious character. All that a man had belonged to his chief, and all that a chief had he would share with his people. Every thing depended on the caprice of the chief. Yet the people were naturally very good natured, polite and agreeable, so that the Wesleyan missionaries have found but little trouble in converting them to Christianity, and at present over one-half the population is Christian. There are 25,000 church members and 600 or 700 native preachers. The Roman Catholics have also met with good success among the people. In the year 1874 these islands were annexed to and became a colony of Great Britain. The government is by officers selected by the Crown, under whose administration the colony has made marked progress.

Education, Population, etc.—There are 1,500 day schools attended by 60,000 pupils. Barbarities, crimes and vices have rapidly decreased. A short time ago the number of inhabitants was over 200,000, but in 1874 the measles swept away 40,000, and in 1876 the total population was estimated at less than 140,000. There are about 1,500 whites on the islands, the remainder are Malays and a very superior negro race.

Products, etc.—The islands are well adapted to the production of sugar, maize, coffee, cotton, tobacco, manila, india rubber, etc. There are no animals larger than the dog and pig. The exports in 1876 consisted of copra (the dried nuts of the cocoa), $200,000; sugar, $43,000; maize, $41,000; cotton, $57,700; and bêche-de-mer, $12,000; coir, $13,200. The exports from Levuka in 1876 were in value about $390,000 and the imports $546,000. The customs returns were about $73,000, and the assessed native land revenue was about $100,000. The total revenue for 1878 was about $290,000.

HINTS TO EXPORTERS.

HOW TO MAKE AND MAINTAIN A COLONIAL TRADE.

(FROM THE BRITISH MAIL, LONDON, ENG.)

Apropos of how to do this, W. H. Bailey, in a recent letter to the Manchester Examiner, criticising Neil Dow on "Protection," makes use of the following practical remarks:

"The Americans sell their machinery better everywhere than they in England do. If they make a good tool or implement, they introduce it with great ability to the man who wants or is likely to want it. A few years ago it was considered infra dig. for a large engineering firm to advertise or publish circulars; and it has been said of a late firm of this city 'that orders were only received on Wednesdays from eleven to one.'

"When the Americans have a good thing to sell they let everybody know it. They have their machine merchants, and devote far more attention than the English do to the discovery of a customer. The books of their mechanical tool-makers are wonderful productions, and their catalogue literature he has not seen at all equalled by the tool-makers of this country."

BICYCLES FOR THE COLONIES.

A recent issue of the Queenstown Free Press has the following:—"A young Transvaaler, studying in Edinburgh, visited a lady friend the other day, who had recently arrived at Dumfries from the Cape. He performed the journey, 75 miles, on a bicycle, and accomplished the feat—through considerable rain—in two days." Manufacturers should take the hint and advertise themselves.

CHURCH and SCHOOL FURNITURE.

New Schools and new Churches are continually springing up in the colonies, India, and South America, creating a remunerative call upon the speciality capabilities of manufacturing firms.

MR. GLADSTONE, M. P., UPON ADVERTISING.

"Advertising," said Mr. W. E. GLADSTONE, speaking recently apropos of this subject, "is undoubtedly very effective. Its power is enormous. It appears, if we consult those who have made successful use of this extraordinary instrument, that it depends wholly on producing an impression upon the public mind by iteration or by the constant repetition of the same thing. This shows a very singular state of the public mind; it shows there is relative to those matters a certain amount of dulness, a great eagerness to compete for attention, and that no one gets it unless it is by giving, as it were, so many strokes of the hammer to compel people to notice what is going on."

Important to Carriage Builders.

British manufacturers, as a rule, do not advertise in the colonies, but the Americans do, and have made themselves so well known that a recent issue of the Melbourne Argus says:—"Our carriage makers here have one watchword, 'Beat America,' and they come very near doing so. Melbourne buggies are likewise the crack article in Sydney, Adelaide, and New Zealand. Lately a gentleman brought to one of our coachmakers a Goddard buggy from America, and said, 'Look at that.' Well our artist did look at it, and in a week or two he had turned out its exact counterpart; but we have to import the American woods." There is a vast field for our British makers if they would but cultivate these markets. The equipages of all the leading personages in the colonies and South America are generally of British make, and are highly spoken of by their purchasers, but the advertising perseverance of the Americans is bound to tell.

GOOD NEWS FOR EXPORTERS.

By a recent alteration in the customs tariff of the Argentine Republic the following articles are admitted to that country free of duty, viz: Threshing machines and reapers; live stock; coal (stone), except that used in the manufacture of gas; staves and barrels of wool and iron (not mounted); galvanised and other telegraph wire; books (unbound); engines and machines intended for establishment of new industries relating to agriculture, mining, fine arts and science; machines, tools, and materials destined exclusively for printing establishments, excepting types; blasting power and fuses; mercury; household articles and tools belonging to immigrants destined exclusively for their own use, and being of little value; gold and silver in coin, bars, ingots, grain or dust; unsized white paper specially intended for printing; lithographic presses; railroad rails, ties, spikes, brakes, switches, turnplates, locomotives, car-wheels; seeds intended for agriculture.

THE "LONDON TELEGRAPH" AND AMERICAN COMPETITION.

A leader writer in a recent issue of the Daily Telegraph says upon this subject:—"Five years ago England undoubtedly possessed, in respect to raw materials and labour, advantages which America could not pretend to equal. But the marvellous skill of the people of the United States in inventing labour-saving machinery now places them in a position more favourable than that which we enjoy as regards many particular branches of industries."

To Pianoforte Manufacturers.

American Pianos are coming into much favour in Melbourne. The Chickering iron grands are greatly liked, and Weber's New York pianos have lately been pushed by a special Melbourne agency. We notice that English firms rarely advertise in any save local colonial newspapers. This is a very great mistake.

British Mail, London.

AMERICAN MODESTY.

"Our machinery," says the Chicago Journal of Commerce, "is now far superior to that of England; our raw material costs less, and the expense of water-power is not nearly as great as that of steam, upon which England has to depend, whilst the decreased cost of living has warranted a corresponding decreased cost of wages without loss to the operatives."

LA GIRONDE,

BORDEAUX,

FRANCE.

La Gironde, journal quotidien (30^e année), 8, rue de Chéverus, à Bordeaux; Directeur G. Gounouilhon.

Abonnements pour l'Amérique et les Colonies: 72 frs. par an et 60 frs. pour les pays faisant partie de l'Union postale.

Annonces: 0,30c. — Réclames: 0,50c. — Chroniques: 0,60c. la ligne; Agence de Publicité Havas & Cie, 2, Cours de l'Intendance à Bordeaux et 8, place de la Bourse, Paris.

La Gironde a été fondée en 1852. M. Gounouilhon, qui en est l'unique propriétaire, en fit bientôt un organe d'opposition contre l'Empire. M. André Lavertujon en fut le rédacteur en chef depuis 1856 jusqu'en 1871; Son Successeur est M. E. Ténot, ancien préfet, aujourd'hui député des Hautes Pyrénées.

Journal républicain, libre échangeur, partie maritime et commerciale bien détaillée, organe très important pour la marine, le commerce, l'industrie, l'agriculture et les finances.

Par suite d'un traité en date du 19 Juillet 1880, passé entre M. le Ministre des Postes et des télégraphes et les journaux La Gironde et La Petite Gironde, l'état a fait passer entre Paris et Bordeaux, un fil télégraphique spécial pour leur service exclusif.

Ce fil est le premier qui ait été concédé dans ces conditions à un journal français. Cette concession a été consentie à La Gironde et à La Petite Gironde moyennant la somme de 72,000 frs. La Gironde publie les nouvelles 12 heures avant les journaux de Paris. Son tirage est de 13,000 exemplaires par jour.

La Gironde, Daily, (30th year), 8 Cheverus st., Bordeaux; G. Gounouilhon, Director.

Subscription for America and the colonies: 72 frs. a year, and 60 frs. for the countries belonging to the Postal-Union.

Advertisements: 0.30c. Special notices 0.50c. Reading matter 0.60c. a line. Agency of publicity Havas & Co., 2 cours de l'Intendance, Bordeaux, and 8, Place de la Bourse, Paris.

La Gironde was established in 1852. Mr. Gounouilhon, who is the only proprietor, soon made it an organ of opposition to the empire. Mr. Andrew Lavertujon was the chief editor from 1856 till 1871; his successor is Mr. E. Ténot, formerly a prefect, now a deputy of the Basses-Pyrénées.

A Republican journal, free trader, maritime and commercial part fully detailed; a very important organ for the navy, commerce, industry, agriculture and finances.

In consequence of a contract dated July 19, 1880, between the Minister of Post-offices and telegraphs, and the journals La Gironde and La Petite Gironde, the gov't has laid between Paris and Bordeaux a special telegraphic wire for their exclusive service. This special wire is the first that has been granted on these conditions to any French Journal. That grant has been made to La Gironde and La Petite Gironde on the payment of 72,000 frs. La Gironde publishes the news 12 hours in advance of the journals of Paris. The issue is 13,000 copies daily.

LA PETITE GIRONDE,

BORDEAUX,

FRANCE.

La Petite Gironde (11^e année), 8, rue de Chéverus, Bordeaux. Rédacteur en chef, Ph. Divin. Abonnement 32 frs. par an, pour l'Amérique et les Colonies. Annonces: 0,80c. la ligne. Réclames 1 fr. 50c. Faits divers 5 frs.

Agence de publicité Ch. Lesfargues, 8, rue de Chéverus à Bordeaux, à Paris toutes les Agences.

Journal républicain, libre échangeur, organe populaire pour le commerce, l'industrie, l'agriculture, dans les Campagnes et le travail dans les Villes. Se vend partout à centimes au numéro.

La Petite Gironde publie le jour même, par dépêche, les nouvelles intéressantes de Paris et de l'Etranger, et pendant la session du parlement, les séances de la Chambre des députés et du Sénat, 24 heures avant les journaux de Paris. Tirage par jour 80,000 exemplaires.

La Petite Gironde (11th year) 8 Cheverus street, Bordeaux. Principal Editor, Ph. Divin. Subscription 32 frs. a year for America and the Colonies. Advertisements: 0.80c. a line; Special notices: 1 fr. 50c.; Miscellaneous 5 frs. Publishing Agency Ch. Lesfargues, 8 Cheverus street, Bordeaux; in Paris, all Agencies.

A Republican Journal, free trader, popular organ for commerce, industry, agriculture in the country and labor in the cities. Is sold everywhere at 5c. (centimes, 1 cent) a number.

La Petite Gironde publishes the same day, through dispatches, interesting news from Paris and foreign countries and during the sittings of Parliament (English), and the sessions of the Chamber of deputies and Senate, 24 hours before the Paris Journals. Daily issue 80,000 copies.

Highest Honors at the U. S. Centennial World's Exhibition, 1876, at Philadelphia, and the Exposition Universelle de 1878, at Paris, France, and the New England State Agricultural Society, 1868.

The Centennial Judges pronounced them unanimously the best instruments for the price made, with the novelty of a Chime of Bells, with pleasing effects.

At Paris the Judges granted us medals and awards for the finest Upright Piano-fortes and Organs, with a rich and pure tone, with the greatest power combined, against the world.

The New England Fair, with its large committee, gave us a Gold Medal, with the inscription: "The Best Instrument for Tone, Design, and Workmanship." We also took the first premium in many State and County Fairs.

Our instruments contain more valuable improvements, will stand longer, and endure more in dry or damp climates than any others produced.

In places where we have no authorized agents we shall be pleased to sell direct from factory. A liberal discount to clergymen, teachers, lodges, &c.

Every Organ has our new device for closing the Pedals, keeping out dust, mice, etc.

THE CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

OF NEW YORK CITY

Is acknowledged to be by far the handsomest, brightest, and best paper of its kind published. The editorial and contributed articles, etc., etc., are unequalled by those of any other first-class Religious weekly published. The enormous edition of the paper, the care with which advertisements are admitted, and the limited space devoted to the latter, give the paper peculiarly marked advantages as an advertising medium. Advertising space can be engaged, either personally or by letter.

THE HENDERSON REPORTER,

HENDERSON,

KENTUCKY.

WEEKLY AND SEMI-WEEKLY.

City official and one of the oldest, largest, most extensively read and leading local papers of the South West.

Best Advertising Medium in Western Kentucky and Southern Indiana.

Weekly, $1.50 per Year; Semi-Weekly, $2.50 per Year.

Carries a large and well assorted stock of Paper, Envelopes, Pens, Pencils, Blank Books, and Stationery Notions of all kinds. Makes a specialty of all descriptions of plain and fancy Job Work, such as Wedding, Visiting, Business, Ball and Fancy Show cards; Letter, Note and Bill Heads; Programmes, Circulars, Posters, Hand-bills, Statements and Pamphlets, &c., at LOWEST CURRENT PRICES.

Established in March, 1853, and published ever since in Henderson, Ky., a city of over 7,000 inhabitants, on the Ohio river, the commercial metropolis of Western Kentucky, and where the great $2,000,000 L. & N. railroad bridge is so soon to be built. Also another railroad from Henderson to Jackson, Tenn., and perhaps two or three others. Three county roads just graded and graveled; others soon to be; large distilleries and spoke and handle factory just completed, and others going up; the county seat of one of the wealthiest counties of Kentucky—never a pauper county, now out of debt and a sinking fund on hand. Only 12 miles from Evansville, the commercial and manufacturing metropolis of Indiana, with 40,000 inhabitants, and from which the Reporter, owing to its peculiar situation and circulation, receives a large advertising patronage because of its large circulation in Henderson, Union, Webster, Hopkins, Crittenden, Christian, Daviess, Muhlenburg and McLean counties, Ky., and Vanderburg, Posey and Warrick counties, Ind. In short the Reporter is one of the oldest, largest, best located, established and paying local papers, in one of the wealthiest and most rapidly growing and improving cities and counties in Kentucky.

THE
Agriculturist and Review.

PUBLISHED

EVERY WEDNESDAY,

AT

JAMESTOWN SOUTH AUSTRALIA,

The Centre of the Wheat-growing districts of the Colony of South Australia.

Published in the interests of the Agricultural classes, the columns of the paper are devoted to the latest reports of the wheat market, both at home and abroad, and the quotations now recognized as the most reliable in the Colony.

Special articles on cultivation of fruits and cereals appear weekly, together with descriptions of new machinery, improvements, &c., &c. Politics, Forestry, Local Items, and Jottings of General News form the contents of each issue.

This newspaper appeared first as a merely local organ, but has now burst its local shell and commands an extensive circulation throughout the Agricultural Districts of South Australia, a circulation which has trebled itself during the past six months, and is still increasing. Unbiased in political views, the AGRICULTURIST has but one object in view, viz., the advancement of the Farming Interest, and no public measures are attacked that do not weigh heavily on the agriculturists.

As advertising medium the AGRICULTURIST offers more favorable advantages than any other publication in the Colony.

TABLES OF COINS OF THE VARIOUS NATIONS OF THE WORLD

And their equivalent values in United States Money,

TOGETHER WITH OTHER INFORMATION APPROPRIATE IN THIS CONNECTION.

While it is not claimed that the following tables contain a full description of all coins current in every nation, yet it is believed that this is the most nearly complete presentation yet published, in condensed form, of the principal coinage of each of the civilized countries of the globe. The frequently recurring changes among political fabrics—empires becoming republics, republics kingdoms, confederations resolving into separate states, and states consolidating into confederacies (to say nothing of the mutations of financial systems)—render the work of tracing the current coinage of the world a perplexing, not to say impossible task. To describe the coins of present and past generations, in their countless varieties, in current circulation, would require months, if not years, of patient research, and a volume much larger than this.

It will be observed that the equivalent values, as given in United States money, are expressed without descending into fractions of cents, except in regard to a few coins of minor value. For practical use, in this connection, fractions are confusing rather than assisting.

The order of arrangement of the various countries in the following list is by continents, commencing with Europe, followed by Asia, Africa, North America, South America and Australasia.

TABLES DES MONNAIES DES DIFFÉRENTES NATIONS DU MONDE

et leurs valeurs équivalentes en monnaie des Etats-Unis,

AVEC D'AUTRES INFORMATIONS RELATIVES À CE SUJET.

Quoique nous ne prétendions pas que les tables suivantes contiennent une description complète des monnaies de toutes les nations, nous croyons cependant que c'est à peu près la plus parfaite qui ait encore été publiée en forme abrégée de toutes les pièces monnayées par tous les pays du globe. Les changements fréquents qui ont lieu dans les arrangements politiques—les empires devenant des républiques, les républiques des royaumes, les confédérations se résolvant en Etats séparés, et les Etats se consolidant en confédérations—sans parler des mutations dans les systèmes financiers, rendent le travail de suivre le monnayage du monde une tâche fort embarrassante sinon impossible. Pour décrire les monnaies des générations présentes, et passées, dans leurs variétés sans nombre, actuellement en circulation, il faudrait des mois sinon des années de recherches patientes et un volume beaucoup plus étendu que celui-ci.

On observera que les valeurs équivalentes, données en monnaie des Etats-Unis sont exprimées sans descendre aux fractions de sous, excepté dans le cas de quelques monnaies d'une petite valeur. Pour l'usage pratique en pareil cas, les fractions causeraient plus de confusion que d'assistance.

L'ordre de l'arrangement des divers pays dans la liste suivante est par continents, commençant par l'Europe, suivie par l'Asie, l'Afrique, l'Amérique du Nord, l'Amérique du Sud et l'Australie.

TABELLEN der MÜNZEN der VERSCHIEDENEN NATIONEN der WELT

und deren gleichen Werth mit dem Gelde der Vereinigten Staaten, NEBST ANDERE BELEHRUNGEN, WELCHE IN BEZUG DIESES ERFORDERLICH SIND.

Während wohl nicht vorgegeben wird, dass die folgende Tabelle eine vollständige Beschreibung aller Geldmünzen aller Nationen giebt, so glauben wir doch, dass dieselbe, in gedrängter Form, die vollkommenste Zusammenstellung der bekanntesten Münzen der civilisirten Länder der Erde darbietet. Die so oft sich wiederholenden Veränderungen in politischer Hinsicht, indem Kaiserreiche in Republiken, Republiken in Königreiche, Conföderationen in einzelne Staaten und einzelne Staaten in Conföderationen umgewandelt werden (gar nicht zu reden von den Wechseln der finanziellen Systeme), machen diese Arbeit jedenfalls sehr beschwerlich, wenn nicht gar unmöglich. Die Geldmünzen der gegenwärtigen Generation, wie die der vergangenen Zeitalter, in ihren unzähligen Verschiedenheiten, nach neueren Münzsystemen zu berechnen, würde Monate, wenn nicht Jahre, geduldiger Forschung erfordern, und würde dies ein Buch viel grösser als dies Werk anfüllen.

Man wird bemerken, dass der, nach amerikanischen Gelde berechnete, Werth der Münzen gegeben ist, ohne in Bruchtheile von Cents einzugehen, ausgenommen bei einigen wenigen Münzen von geringem Werthe. Bruchtheile sind in dieser Verbindung für den praktischen Gebrauch eher geeignet zu verwirren als zu nützen.

Die Eintheilung der verschiedenen Länder in dieser Liste ist nach den Welttheilen, anfangend mit Europa, worauf Asien, Afrika, Nordamerika, Südamerika und Australasien folgen.

TABLAS DE MONEDAS DE LAS DIFERENTES NACIONES DEL MUNDO

y de sus valores equivalentes en Moneda de los Estados Unidos,

CON OTRAS INFORMACIONES RELATIVAS Á AQUEL SUJETO.

Aunque no pretendemos que las tablas siguientes contienen una descripción completa de las monedas de todas las naciones, sin embargo creemos que es casi la mas perfecta que se haya publicado en forma abreviada de todas las monedas acuñadas en todos los países del globo. Las mudaciones frecuentes que acaecen en los arreglos políticos—Los imperios haciendose republicas—las republicas reinos—las confederaciones resolviendose en Estados separados—y los Estados uniendose en confederación—sin hablar de las mudanzas en los sistemas financieros, hacen el trabajo de seguir la acuñación del mundo una tarea muy embrollada sino imposible. Para describir las monedas de las generaciones presentes y pasadas en sus variedades innumerables actualmente en circulación se necesitarian meses sino años de diligencias pacientes y un libro mucho mas extendido que este.

Se observará que los valores equivalentes en moneda de los Estados-Unidos se han dado sin descender á las fracciones de centavo, fuera del caso de algunas monedas de poco valor. En la practica en semejante caso, las fracciones causarían mas confusion que asistencia.

El orden del arreglo de los países diferentes en la lista siguiente se ha hecho por continentes empezando por la Europa y siguen la Asia, la Africa, la America del Norte, la America del Sur y la Australasia.

[Japan has established a mint at Osaka, from which it issues a great variety of gold, silver and copper coins of different values, based practically upon the United States system of coinage. Among them is the "mil," said to be the smallest of all modern coins. There is also in Japan a large paper currency of different denominations, worth but 60 to 80 per cent. of its face value.]
STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.
[These include the British Possessions of the Malay or East Indian Archipelago, embracing the colonies of Malacca, Penang, Province Wellesley and Singapore. ST. HELENA.
[The British system of accounts is used here, and British coins and currency form the principal circulation.]
MADAGASCAR.
[The coinage of France and Great Britain is current in the coast towns. Native money passes by weight. Barter is common in the exchange of European manufactures for native products.]
MAURITIUS.
[The standard coin of Mauritius is the rupee of India, the value of which is from 39 to 48 cents. Mercantile accounts are kept in rupees. Colonial (governmental) accounts are in sterling money. British, French and Spanish coins circulate more or less.]
RÉUNION.
[Being a French colony, the system of money and accounts conforms to that of France, although the coins of other nations, and the rupee of India, circulate freely.]
SEYCHELLES.
[A colony of Great Britain, having the money system of the United Kingdom, but using the East India rupee and other coins of various nations.]
ZANZIBAR.
[The circulating medium here consists largely of British, French, Portuguese and East India coins. The Maria Theresa dollar (value about $1.02 in silver) is known here as the "Janurio" dollar. There are three important American houses in trade upon the Island of Zanzibar (the most important portion of the whole Sultanate), through which a large American trade has been built up, involving the use of American coin and to some extent the system of accounts of the United States.]

[National Bank currency is redeemable only in U. S. legal tender notes. It passes current, however, at par with gold, since legal tender notes are equivalent in value to gold. This currency, although issued by private corporations (styled National Banks) under charters granted by the U. S. government, is secured from depreciation in value, even in the event of the insolvency of the issuing corporation, by a deposit of U. S. bonds (interest-bearing) with the Treasurer of the U. S., which deposit must be made prior to the issuance of currency by the depositing bank, and must be in the proportion of $1,000 of deposited bonds to $900 of currency put forth. In the event of the insolvency of a National Bank issuing currency, the U. S. government assumes the redemption of all otherwise unredeemed notes of the insolvent bank, using for that purpose so much as may be necessary of the bonds previously deposited as required by law. National bank currency is not legal tender for the payment of any amount, but is commonly received for taxes, government dues, and in commercial transactions throughout the nation, as equivalent in value to gold or legal tender notes.]

THE UNITED STATES NATIONAL DEBT.

The following table exhibits the classification of the unmatured, interest-bearing, bonded debt of the United States on August 31, 1865, when the public debt reached its maximum, and on the 1st day of July in each year thereafter, together with the amount outstanding on November 1, 1881:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 2, 1882.

The foregoing estimation, made by the Director of the Mint, of the value of the foreign coins above mentioned, I hereby proclaim to be the values of such coins expressed in the money of account of the United States, and to be taken in estimating the values of all foreign merchandise, made out in any of said currencies, imported on or after January 1, 1882.

CHAS. J. FOLGER, Secretary of the Treasury.

Notes.—The legal rate of interest in Canada, Nova Scotia, and Ireland is 6 per cent.; England and France, 5 per cent.

When the rate is not specified the legal rate is always understood and so allowed by the courts.

Debts of all kinds draw interest from the time they become due, but not before, unless specified.

LEGAL TENDER OF MONEY IN ENGLAND.

The tender of Bank of England Notes is legal in England and Wales for every purpose, and by any person. The Bank of England itself, however, has not this right. No one can be compelled to give change. Silver is not a legal tender for sums exceeding £2, nor pence nor half pence for sums over one shilling. Farthings are not a legal tender for more than sixpence.

Careful observation shows the average diminution from unavoidable abrasion, of the whole body of silver currency, to be about one per cent. in twelve years. At this rate the entire silver circulation would be worn out and dissipated in fine dust once every twelve hundred years. Well, let her grind.

BANK ACCOUNTS AND HOW TO TRANSACT BUSINESS WITH BANKS.

1. If you wish to open an account with a bank, provide yourself with a proper introduction. Well-managed banks do not open accounts with strangers.

2. Do not draw a check unless you have the money in the bank or in your possession to deposit. Don't test the courage or generosity of your bank by presenting, or allowing to be presented, your check for a larger sum than your balance.

3. Do not draw a check and send it to a person out of the city, expecting to make it good before it can possibly get back. Sometimes telegraphic advice is asked about such checks.

4. Do not exchange checks with anybody. This is soon discovered by your bank; it does your friend no good and discredits you.

5. Do not give your check to a friend with the condition that he is not to use it until a certain time. He is sure to betray you, for obvious reasons.

6. Do not take an out-of-town check from a neighbor, pass it through your bank without charge, and give him your check for it. You are sure to get caught.

7. Do not give your check to a stranger. This is an open door for fraud, and if your bank loses through you, it will not feel kindly to you.

8. When you send your checks out of the city to pay bills, write the name and residence of your payee thus: Pay to Jno. Smith & Co., of Boston. This will put your bank on its guard, if presented at the counter.

9. Don't commit the folly of supposing that, because you trust the bank with your money, the bank ought to trust you by paying your overdrafts.

10. Don't suppose you can behave badly in one bank and stand well with the others. You forget there is a Clearing House.

11. Don't quarrel with your bank. If you are not treated well, go somewhere else, but don't go and leave your discount line unprotected.

12. Don't think it unreasonable if your bank declines to discount an accommodation note. Have a clear definition of an accommodation note; it is a note for which no value has passed from the endorser to the drawer. If you want an accommodation note discounted, tell your bank frankly that it is not, in their definition, a business note.

13. If you take a note from a debtor with an agreement, verbal or written, that it is to be renewed in whole or in part, and if you get that note discounted, and then ask to have a new one discounted to take up the old one, tell your bank all about it.

14. Don't commit the folly of saying that you will guarantee the payment of a note which you have already endorsed.

15. Give your bank credit for being intelligent generally and understanding its own business particularly. It is much better informed, probably, than you suppose.

16. Don't try to convince your bank that the paper or security which has already been declined is better than the bank supposes. This is only chaff.

17. Don't quarrel with a teller because he does not pay you in money exactly as you wish. As a rule, he does the best he can.

18. In all your intercourse with bank officers, treat them with the same courtesy and candor that you would expect and desire if the situations were reversed.

19. Don't send ignorant and stupid messengers to bank to transact your business.

THE NATIONAL DEBT OF GREAT BRITAIN

Is £768,703,692—$3,728,212,906—or about double the national debt of the United States. The British debt, however, is annually increasing, while that of the United States is rapidly diminishing.

RESPONSIBLE BANKS OF THE WORLD.

Banks, newspapers and civilization go hand in hand together. It is an interesting and significant fact that those countries of the world having newspapers abundantly also possess large banking facilities. Thus America and Europe, having, in round numbers, thirty-one thousand newspapers out of thirty-four thousand and over in the whole world, have also about seventeen thousand banks out of something over eighteen thousand contained within the following reports from all nations. The inference is that the power of civilization, which creates a demand for newspapers, and assures their existence, likewise guarantees protection to trade, commerce, the arts and sciences, and guards with efficient force the property and rights of citizens.

Banks and commerce are also intimately allied, and are mutually coöperative forces. The magnificent reach of the commercial power of Great Britain has ever been accompanied by the establishment of banking houses in every part of the world, through which its operations have been largely expanded and conducted. Speaking of this as one source of the astonishing commercial growth and success of Great Britain, Hon. ALBERT D. SHAW, United States Consul, at Manchester, England, in a letter to the State Department, says:—"The second point named, viz., the far-reaching banking facilities of England, is hardly less important than the first. Wherever English manufacturers find a market on the globe, English banking ramifications extend. While commerce in this age does not necessarily 'follow the flag,' it does, to a considerable extent, follow the convenience and safety which good banking facilities provide in far-off countries. English manufacturers owe much to the agency of these two elements, for under the splendid organizations of partnerships and banking privileges their present strong position in the great markets of the world has been secured."

To bring within the knowledge of American manufacturers, merchants and advertisers the banking facilities of every part of the globe, is largely the purpose of this department of the "Newspaper and Bank Directory of the World."

In presenting the subjoined Catalogue of the Banking Institutions of all Nations, the Publisher begs to say, that with the exception of the United States and Canada, Great Britain and Ireland, and the Empires of Germany and Japan, he does not profess to give a complete list of the financial depositories of the great nations. Indeed, it would be impossible to do so without unduly increasing the size of this work. The lists of Austro-Hungarian, French, Italian, Spanish, Swiss, and other Continental Banks, are believed to embrace the most prominent institutions of that character, in the important Cities and Trade Centres of their respective countries.

It has not been thought necessary as a rule, to give, in conjunction with these reports, the capital of the several banks nor the names of their respective officers. The only exceptions to this are found in the reports of the banks of Japan and of Germany where the capital of those most important has in many cases been given.

In this connection it is to be remarked that, outside the United States and Canada, this data has been supplied chiefly by parties in position to know the standing of the institutions in their respective communities, and the names of no banks have been furnished except those believed to be solvent and reliable. The Editor and Publisher of this work, however, does not hold himself in any way responsible for, nor guarantee the character of the banks and banking concerns named, further than to say that he has implicit confidence in the truthfulness and good faith of the reports received and herewith published.

It will be observed that the arrangement (after giving the Banks of the United States and Canada) is by Divisions as follows: Europe, Asia, the East India Islands, Africa, Mexico and Central America, the West Indies, South America, Australasia and Oceania. Within these Divisions are given the names of 18,144 Banks and banking institutions, distributed as follows: In the United States and Canada, 6,888; in Europe, 10,242; in Asia, 306; in the East India Islands, 36; in Africa, 232; in Mexico and Central America, 38; in the West Indies, 85; in South America, 146; in Australia, Oceania, &c., 171. Thus it appears that the United States, Canada and Europe, (the last named with lists necessarily curtailed), unitedly possess 17,130 banks, while the remainder of the nations of the globe taken together, with reports as full as could be obtained, have but 1,014.

On the first day of October, 1881, there were within the United States 2,132 National Banks, possessing a capital of $463,821,985, with a surplus of $128,140,618, giving a total of $591,962,603, of available capital, or an average of $277,656 for each institution. On May 31, 1881, the Comptroller of the Currency reported 978 State Banks and Trust Companies, whose capital and surplus aggregated $141,047,976, giving an average of $144,222 working capital per bank. As to private banking concerns in the United States, the average capital was much less than that of either of the classes previously mentioned. 3,038 private banks reporting to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, possessed an aggregate capital of $93,323,855, affording each bank of this class an average capital of $30,719. Thus we have, in the three classes named, an aggregate of 6,148 banks, with a total capital of $826,334,434, or an average capital per bank of $134,407. There are within the United States 629 savings banks, organized and operated solely for the benefit of depositors, and without capital in the ordinary sense, besides 36 with an aggregate capital of $4,200,000. It is thus seen that the banking institutions of the United States, and the active capital employed therein are as follows:

	No.	CAPITAL AND SURPLUS.
National Banks,*	2,132	$591,962,603
State Banks,†	978	141,047,976
Private Banks,	3,038	93,323,855
Savings Banks,	665	4,200,000
Total,	6,813	$830,534,434

It appears that the deposits in the several banks and banking concerns of all classes, in the United States, on the first day of June, 1881, aggregated the sum of $2,667,343,595.

* National banks are based upon charters issued to individuals by the National government. They issue paper currency secured by a deposit of national bonds; but are neither owned nor managed by the government. Their currency is at par value with gold.

† State banks are authorized by the several States, but are owned and controlled by individuals. They issue no paper currency.

BANQUES RESPONSABLES DU MONDE.

Les Banques, les journaux et la civilisation avancent ensemble d'un pas égal. C'est un fait intéressant et significatif que les pays qui ont des journaux en abondance possèdent aussi de grandes institutions de banque. Ainsi l'Amérique et l'Europe ayant, en nombres ronds, trente et un mille journaux sur trente quatre mille et quelque, dans le monde entier, possèdent aussi dix-sept mille banques environ sur un peu plus des dix-huit mille contenues dans les rapports suivants de toutes les nations. La conclusion est que le pouvoir de la civilisation qui crée la demande des journaux et en assure l'existence, garantit pareillement la protection au commerce et au négoce, aux arts et aux sciences, et garde avec une force effective la propriété et les droits des citoyens.

Les banques et le commerce sont aussi intimement alliés et sont des forces concurrentes mutuelles. L'extension magnifiquue de la puissance commerciale de la Grande Bretagne a été constamment accompagnée de l'établissement de maisons de banque dans toutes les parties du monde, par le moyen desquelles ses opérations ont été largement étendues et conduites. Parlant de ceci comme une des sources de l'accroissement commercial et du succès étonnant de la Grande Bretagne, l'Honorable ALBERT D. SHAW, consul des Etats-Unis à Manchester, Angleterre, dit, dans une lettre au Ministre de l'Intérieur : " Le second point nommé, c'est-à-dire, les facilités de Banque de l'Angleterre répandues au loin, est à peine moins important que le premier. Partout où le fabricant Anglais trouve un marché sur le globe, là s'étendent les facilités de banques Anglaises. Pendant que le commerce dans ce siècle ne "suit pas nécessairement le drapeau," il suit à un degré considérable, la facilité et la sécurité que les établissements de banques lui fournissent dans les pays éloignés. Les fabricants Anglais doivent beaucoup à l'agence de ces deux éléments. Car sous l'organisation magnifiques des compagnies et des privilèges de banque leur forte position actuelle sur les grands marchés du monde s'est trouvée assurée.

Porter à la connaissance des fabricants, des marchands et des annonceurs Américains les facilités de banque de toutes les parties du globe, voilà le grand dessein de ce département du " Dictionnaire des journaux et des banques du monde."

En présentant le Catalogue suivant des établissements de banque de toutes les nations, l'Editeur demande la permission de dire qu'à l'exception des Etats-Unis et du Canada, de la Grande-Bretagne et de l'Irlande, des Empires de la Germanie et du Japon, il ne prétend pas donner une liste complète des dépôts financiers des grandes nations. En effet, il ne serait pas possible de le faire sans accroître inutilement la longueur de cet ouvrage. Les listes des banques de l'Autro-Hongrie, de la France, de l'Italie, de la Suisse et des autres nations du continent embrassent, à ce qu'il croit, les établissements principaux de ce genre dans les villes et les centres de commerce les plus importants de ces divers pays.

Il n'a pas cru nécessaire non plus de joindre à ces rapports le capital des diverses banques ni les noms de leurs officiers respectifs. La seule exception à ceci se trouve dans les rapports des banques de l'empire Germanique, où l'on a, dans plusieurs cas, donné le capital des plus importantes.

Nous devons remarquer à ce sujet que, excepté les Etats-Unis et le Canada, ces données nous ont été fournies principalement par des personnes en position de connaître la réputation des établissements dans leurs communautés respectives, et le nom d'aucune banque n'a été admis à moins qu'on ne l'ait regardée comme solvable et solide. L'Editeur de cet ouvrage, néanmoins, ne se regarde pas comme responsable pour le caractère des banques ou des établissements de banque nommés, et ne peut qu'assurer qu'il a une confiance implicite dans la véracité et la bonne foi des rapports reçus et publiés ici.

Il faudra observer que l'arrangement (après avoir donné les Banques des Etats-Unis et du Canada), est par Divisions comme il suit : l'Europe, l'Asie, les Iles des Indes Orientales, l'Afrique, le Mexique et l'Amérique Centrale, les Antilles, l'Amérique du Sud, l'Australie et l'Océanie. Dans ces divisions se trouvent les noms de 18,144 banques et établissements de banque distribués de la manière suivante : Dans les Etats-Unis et le Canada, 6,888 ; en Europe, 10,242 ; en Asie, 306 ; dans les Iles de l'Inde, 36 ; en Afrique, 221 ; au Mexique et l'Amérique Centrale, 38 ; dans les Antilles, 85 ; dans l'Amérique du Sud, 146 ; dans l'Australie, l'Océanie, etc., 171. Ainsi il paraît que les Etats-Unis, le Canada et l'Europe (la dernière nommée est nécessairement abrégée), possèdent ensemble 17,130 banques tandis que le reste des autres nations du globe prises ensemble, avec tous les détails que l'on a pu obtenir, n'en ont que 1,014.

Au premier d'Octobre 1881, il y avait aux Etats-Unis 2,132 banques Nationales possédant un capital de 2,319,109,925 frs. avec un surplus de 640,703,090 frs. donnant un total de 2,959,813,015 frs. de capital effectif ou une somme moyenne de 1,388,280 frs. pour chaque établissement. Au 31 Mai 1881 le surintendant de la circulation a établi l'existence de 978 banques des Etats et de compagnies de dépôt dont le capital et le surplus montaient à 705,239,880 donnant, en moyenne, un capital de 721,110 frs. à chaque banque de cette class.

Quant aux banques particulières des Etats-Unis le capital était beaucoup plus petit que celui des deux classes nommées ci-dessus ; 3,038 banques particulières ont rapporté au commissaire du revenu intérieur un capital total de 466,619,275 frs. donnant une somme de 153,575 frs. de capital en moyenne. Ainsi nous avons dans les trois classes nommées, un total de 6,148 banques formant ensemble un capital de 4,031,672,170 frs. ou un capital de 672,036 frs. à chacune.

Il y a en outre aux Etats-Unis 629 banques d'épargne organisées et conduites seulement pour le bénéfice des déposants et sans capital dans le sens ordinaire du mot, outre 36 autres avec un capital de 21,000,000 frs. On peut voir par là que le capital actif employé dans les établissements de banque dans les Etats-Unis est comme il suit :

	NUMBER.	CAPITAL ET SURPLUS.
Banques Nationales,*	2,132	2,959,813,015 frs.
Banques d'Etats,†	978	705,237,880
Banques particulières	3,038	466,619,275
Banques d'Epargnes,	665	21,000,000
	6,813	4,152,670,170 frs.

Il paraît que les dépôts dans les diverses banques et établissements de banque de toutes les classes au premier de Juin 1881 montaient à la somme de 13,336,717,975 frs.

* Les banques Nationales sont basées sur des chartes ou privilèges issus à des individus par le gouvernement National. Elles émettent du papier monnaie assuré par un dépôt de sécurités nationales ; mais ne sont pas la propriété du gouvernement ni sous sa conduite. Leurs valeurs sont au pair de l'or.

† Les banques des Etats sont autorisées par les divers Etats mais, sont la propriété d'individus particuliers et conduites par eux. Elles n'émettent pas de papier monnaie.

ZUVERLÄSSIGE BANKEN DER GANZEN WELT.

Banken, Zeitungen und Civilisation gehen mit einander Hand in Hand. Es ist eine sowohl interessante wie bedeutsame Thatsache, dass diejenigen Länder der Welt die an Zeitungen keinen Mangel leiden auch ein ausgedehntes Bank-System besitzen. So zum Beispiel Amerika und Europa, die, in runden Zahlen, einunddreissigtausend von den in der ganzen Welt publicirten etwas mehr als vierunddreissigtausend Zeitungen, herausgeben, zählen gleichweise ungefähr siebzehntausend Banken und Privat-Bankhäuser aus den etwas mehr als achtzehntausend die in den hierin später angeführten Berichten aller Nationen erscheinen. Der hieraus leicht und natürlich folgende Schluss ist, dass die Macht der Civilisation, welche einen Bedarf für Zeitungen erweckt und deren Gedeihen sichert, gleichweise den Handel und Betrieb, die Künste und Wissenschaften und mit wirkender Kraft dass Eigenthum und die Rechte des Bürgers beschützt.

Die Interessen der Banken und des Handels sind auch eng verbunden, und sind gegenseitig sich in die Hände arbeitende Kräfte. Die grossartige commercielle Macht Gross-Britanniens hat stets die Gründung von Banken in allen Theilen der Welt mit sich geführt, und durch diese letzteren ist der Handel jenes Landes zu jeder Zeit hauptsächlich vorwärts getrieben und ausgedehnt worden. Der Consul der Vereinigten-Staaten in Manchester, England, Herr Albert D. Shaw, berührt diesen Punkt in einer seiner Mittheilungen an das Staats-Ministerium indem er sagt:—, Der zweite Punkt der berührt worden ist, nämlich das weit ausgedehnte englische Bank-System ist nicht weniger wichtig als der erste. Wo je englische Fabrikanten für ihre Producten einen Markt in der Welt finden, dahin verzweigen sich englische Bank-Interessen. Wenn auch in unserem Zeitalter der Handel nicht notwendigerweise immer „der Fahne folgt“ so breitet er sich doch im grössten Masse nach der Richtung hin aus, wo ein gutes Bank-System die grösste Bequemlichkeit und die gediegenste Sicherheit in weit entfernten Ländern garantirt. Englische Fabrikanten verdanken dem Einfluss dieser zwei Elemente viel, denn den grossartigen Handelsgenossenschaften und dem Bank-System hauptsächlich ist die gegenwärtig von ihnen eingenommene gesicherte und mächtige Stellung zu verdanken.

Einer der Hauptzwecke dieses Theils des „Zeitungs- und Bank-Adressbuches“ ist, amerikanischen Fabrikanten, Geschäftsleuten und Anzeigern das Bank-System und die Bank-Facilitäten jedes Landes der Welt vorzuführen und sie mit denselben bekannt zu machen.

Der Herausgeber erlaubt sich jedoch darauf aufmerksam zu machen dass er in dem hiermit veröffentlichten Catalog angeführten Listen der Banken und Bankhäuser aller Nationen nicht als eine durchaus vollständige Recapitulation der finanziellen Niederlagen der bedeutenden Nationen hinstellen wünscht, mit Ausnahme der Vereinigten-Staaten und Canada, Gross-Britanniens und Irlands und der Kaiserreiche von Deutschland und von Japan, welche letztere complet sind. Es wäre in der That unmöglich dies zu thun, ohne dies Werk auf eine ungebührliche Art und Weise auszudehnen. Die Listen von österreichisch-ungarischen, französischen, italienischen, spanischen, schweizerischen und andern Banken des Festlandes Europas, enthalten die hervorragenden Firmen dieser Branche in den bedeutendsten Städten und Handels-Mittelpunkten der respectiven Länder.

In den meisten Fällen ist es nicht als nothwendig erachtet worden, diesen Berichten das Capital jeder einzelnen Bank oder die Namen der verschiedenen Beamten hinzuzufügen. In den Berichten mit Bezug auf die Banken des deutschen Kaiserreiches jedoch ist in den meisten Fällen das Capital der hervorragenden Banken angeführt worden.

Auch ist mit Bezug auf diesen Punkt besonders zu berücksichtigen dass, mit Ausnahme der den Vereinigten-Staaten und Canada angehörigen, die Berichte auf Mittheilungen von Geschäfts- und Privat-Leuten basirt sind, welche in der Lage waren, den Ruf derselben in den Städten und Oertern in welchen sie selbst leben, genau und gründlich zu kennen, und der Name oder die Firma keiner Bank ist angegeben, die nicht als ganz zuverlässig und solid angesehen wird. Der Herausgeber und Verleger dieses Werkes übernimmt jedoch keinerlei Verantwortung oder Garantie über den Stand oder Rang der genannten Banken und Bankhäuser weiter als zu sagen, dass er unbegrenztes Vertrauen in die Genauigkeit und Redlichkeit der erhaltenen und hiermit veröffentlichten Berichte setzt.

Der Leser wird finden, dass die Anordnung (nachdem die Banken der Vereinigten-Staaten und Canada's angeführt worden sind) in nachfolgenden Abtheilungen gemacht worden ist: Europa, Asien, die Ost-Indischen Inseln, Afrika, Mexico und Central-Amerika, die West-Indischen Inseln, Süd-Amerika, Australasien und Oceanica. In diesen Abtheilungen wird man die Firmen von 18,144 Banken und Bankhäusern anfinden, die in folgender Weise vertheilt erscheinen: In den Vereinigten Staaten und Canada, 6,888; in Europa, 10,242; in Asien, 306; in den Ost-Indischen Inseln, 36; in Africa, 232; in Mexico und Central America, 38; in den West-Indischen Inseln, 85; in Süd-Amerika, 146; in Australien, Oceanien, etc., 171. Es erfolgt demnach, dass die Vereinigten-Staaten, Canada und Europa (dessen letztere Listen notwendigerweise abgekürzt erscheinen) zusammen, 17,130 Banken zählen, während die übrigen Nationen der Erde, mit so vollständigen Berichten wie nur möglicherweise haben verschafft werden können, nur 1,014 aufweisen.

Am ersten October, 1881, existirten in den Vereinigten-Staaten 2,132 National-Banken mit einem Capital von 1,932,591,624 Marken und einem Ueberschuss-Capital von 533,919,242 Marken, einem benutzbaren Gesamt-Capital hernach von 2,466,510,846 Marken, welches einen jeden Etablissement einen Durchschnitt von 1,156,900 Marken zuspricht. In dem am 31. Mai 1881 vom Finanz-Controllleur (Comptroller of the Currency) dem von der Regierung mit der Oberaufsicht der Circulationen der Nationalbanken beauftragten Beamten, herausgegebenen Bericht, erscheinen 978 Staats-Banken und Depositen, deren Gesamt Capital 587,699,900 Marken betrug, welches jeder einzelnen Bank ein flüssiges Durchschnitts-Capital von 600,925 Marken giebt. Mit Bezug auf Privat-Bankhäuser in den Vereinigten-Staaten, war dem Berichte nach das Capital durchschnittlich viel kleiner als das irgendwelcher anderen der schon genannten Classen. 3038 Privat-bank Bericht erstatten, besaßen ein Total-Capital von 3,888,493,066 Marken welches auf jede Bank dieser Classe ein Durchschnitts-Capital von 127,996 Marken bringt. Wir haben demnach in den drei Classen zusammengekommen, ein Total von 6,143 Banken, mit einem Total-Capital von 3,443,066,142 Marken oder einem Durchschnitts-Capital per Bank von 560,029 Marken. In den Vereinigten-Staaten giebt es 629 Sparbanken, ausschliesslich im Interesse der Depositen gestiftet und geleitet ohne Capital im gewöhnlichen Sinne des Wortes, und 36 andere mit einem Total-Capital von 17,500,000 Marken. Die Bank-Institute der Vereinigten-Staaten und das darin thätig gemachte Capital erscheinen demnach wie folgt:

National-Banken,*	2,132	Marken, 2,466,510,845
Staats-Banken,†	978	587,699,900
Privat-Banken,	3,038	388,849,396
Spar-Banken,	665	17,500,000

6,813 Marken, 3,460,560,142

Die Depositen in allen Banken und Bankhäusern jeder Classe, in den Vereinigten-Staaten, am ersten Juni 1881, betragen Marken 11,113,931,646.

* National Banken sind auf Privilegien hin welche die National-Regierung einzelnen Personen gestattet, basirt. Dieselben geben Papiergeld heraus, dessen Werth durch ein Deposit von Land-Bürgschaftsscheinen gesichert ist; aber diese Banken sind weder das Eigenthum der Regierung noch werden sie von derselben verwaltet. Das von den National-Banken herausgegebene Papiergeld hat einen gleichen Werth mit Gold.
† Staats-Banken werden von jedem einzelnen Staate autorisirt, aber sie gehören und werden verwaltet von einzelnen Leuten. Dieselben geben kein Papiergeld heraus.

BANCOS RESPONSABLES DEL MUNDO.

Los Bancos, las gacetas y la civilizacion van á paso igual. Eso es un hecho interesante y significante que los paises del mundo en donde las gacetas abundan, poseen tambien grandes facilidades de bancos. Asi el America y la Europa que tienen en numeros pares treinta un mil periodicos de los casi treinta cuatro mil en el mundo, tienen tambien 14,000 bancos de un poco mas de 15,000 expresados en las listas siguientes. De esto se puede inferir que el poder de la civilizacion que cria la necesidad de las gacetas y asegura su existencia, asegura igualmente la proteccion del trafico, del comercio, de las artes y de las ciencias y guarda con una fuerza eficaz la prosperidad y los derechos de los ciudadanos.

Los bancos y el comercio son muy intimamente unidos y fuerzas mutuamente cooperativas. El alcance inmenso del poder comercial de Inglaterra ha sido acompañado siempre del establecimiento de casas de banco en todas partes del mundo por el medio de las cuales sus operaciones se han extendido y dirigido. Hablando de esto como de una de las fuentes del crecimiento sorprendente del comercio y de la prosperidad de Inglaterra el señor Albert D. Shaw, Consul de los Estados Unidos en Manchester, dice en una carta al Departamento del Estado: "el segundo punto nombrado á saber: el de las facilidades extendidas á lo lejos del sistema de los bancos de Inglaterra es escasamente menos importante que el primero. En cualquiera parte que los fabricantes ingleses hallen un mercado sobre el globo, alla se extienden ramos del sistema Ingles de bancos. Mientras que el comercio en este siglo no sigue el pabellon sigue en cierta proporcion la conveniencia y la seguridad que las facilidades de los bancos suplen en los paises remotos. Los fabricantes Ingleses deben mucho al concurso de estos dos elementos, pues bajo de las organizaciones magnificas de compañías y de los privilegios de banco su fuerte posicion presente les ha sido asegurada en los grandes mercados del mundo.

Poner al conocimiento de los fabricantes, de los comerciantes y de los anunciadores Americanos las facilidades de bancos en todas partes del globo, tal es el objeto principal de este departamento del "Directorio de las gacetas y de los bancos del mundo."

Presentando el catalogo abajo de los establecimientos de banco de todas las naciones, el editor debe decir que con la excepcion de los Estados Unidos y del Canada, de la Inglaterra y de la Irlanda y del imperio del Japon, no pretende dar una lista completa de los depositos financieros de las grandes naciones. Efectivamente seria imposible hacerlo sin aumentar inutilmente la dimension de esta obra. Las listas de los bancos de Alemania, de Francia, de Italia, de España, de Suiza y de las otras partes del continente abrazan, segun lo cree, los principales establecimientos de esta clase en las ciudades importantes y los centros del comercio de sus paises respectivos.

No se ha juzgado necesario de dar junto con aquellas listas el capital de los varios bancos ni tampoco el nombre de los oficiales suyos. Se debe notar sobre ello que, excepto los Estados Unidos y el Canada, aquellas listas han sido publicadas por personas en posicion de conocer la condicion de las instituciones en su vecindad y hemos publicado solamente los nombres de los que hemos creido solventes y dignos de confianza. El editor de esta obra sin embargo no se juzga responsable en ningun modo del caracter de aquellos establecimientos y no quiere salir fiador de la solidez de los bancos o banqueros nombrados mas que de decir que tiene una confianza entera en la veracidad y la buena fé en las relaciones que ha recibido.

Se observará que despues de haber dado los Bancos de los Estados-Unidos y del Canada el arreglo se ha hecho en divisiones como sigue: Europa, Asia, las Islas de la India, Africa, las Antillas, la America del Sur, Australasia, y Oceanica. En dichas Divisiones se hallan los nombres de 15,144 bancos y otras instituciones de banco distribuidas como sigue: en los Estados-Unidos y el Canada, 6,888; en Europa, 7,242; en Asia, 306; en Africa, 232; en las Antillas, 85; en el America del Sur, 146; en Australia, Oceanica, etc., 171. Asi parece que los Estados-Unidos, el Canada y la Europa (esta con listas necesariamente abreviadas), poseen juntos 14,130 bancos, mientras las demas naciones del globo reunidas no tienen mas de 1,014, segun los informes mas extensivos que hemos recibido.

En el primer dia de Octubre 1880 habia en los Estados-Unidos 2,090 bancos nacionales con un capital de 2,288,600,000 pesetas y un sobrante de 602,500,000 ps., dando un total de 2,890,500,000 ps. de capital efectivo, o una suma proporcional de 1,380,000 para cada institucion. Al mismo tiempo el superintendente de la circulacion manifestaba 650 bancos de Estado y de compañías de credito cuyo capital y sobrante montaba á 1,533,275 ps. dando una suma proporcional de capital efectivo de 1,533,275 ps. á cada banco. Por lo que toca á los banqueros individuales en los Estados-Unidos el capital era mucho menor que el de las clases mencionadas arriba; 2,802 bancos privados refenendo solamente al comisario de la Hacienda un capital total de 380,609,810 ps., o en suma proporcional 135,835 ps. á cada uno.

Asi tenemos en las tres clases mencionadas antes un total de 5,542 bancos con un capital de 3,947,739,610 ps., o un capital proporcional de 712,330 ps.

De los 910 bancos de los Estados-Unidos no incluidos en la enumeracion precedente se hallan 610 bancos de ahorros organizados y administrados solamente por el beneficio de los depositadores y sin capital en el sentido aceptado de la palabra. Los treientos otros bancos son principalmente instituciones de los Estados individuales y pueden considerarse como teniendo un capital de $200,000 cada uno, dando un total de $60,000,000.

Asi se ve que las instituciones de banco en los Estados-Unidos y el capital activo empleado en dichas instituciones es como sigue:

	No.	CAPITAL Y SOBRANTE.
Bancos Nacionales,*	2,090	2,890,500,000 ps.
Bancos de Estados,†	950	977,630,000
Banqueros,	2,802	380,609,810
Bancos de ahorros,	610	60,000,000
Total,	6,452	$849,547,962 ps.

Parece que los depositos en los varios bancos y otras instituciones de la misma especie de todas las clases en los Estados-Unidos en el primer dia de Junio de 1880 montaba á la suma de 11,099,400,000 ps.

* Los Bancos Nacionales son establecidos sobre cartas constitucionales concedidas á ciertos individuos por el gobierno nacional. Emiten papel moneda garantido depositando obligaciones nacionales; pero no pertenecen al gobierno, ni se hallan bajo su registro. Su papel-moneda esta al par del oro.

† Los bancos de los Estados se han autorizado por los varios Estados pero pertenecen á ciudadanos particulares que los gobiernan. No emiten papel-moneda.

BANKS AND BANKERS OF THE UNITED STATES AND OF THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

In the two next succeeding lists are given the names and locations of all banking institutions, whether National, State or Private, within the limits of the United States, the Dominion of Canada, and Newfoundland. The order of arrangement is first by States, alphabetically, and by cities and towns alphabetically within the States. The States are followed by the Territories of the United States, and these by the several Provinces of the Dominion of Canada and Newfoundland. Where the word "National," or the abbreviation "Nat." occurs in connection with banks within the United States, it indicates the same to be National banks. National banks are organized and operated under charters issued only by the United States Government. They are owned and managed by private corporations, but are subject to United States laws and surveillance. This class of banks alone is allowed to issue paper currency, and this only after depositing in the Treasury of the United States, as security for the redemption of such currency, bonds of the National Government of greater value than the paper issued. The issues of currency by the National banks are designated as "National Bank Notes," the total amount of which in circulation, on the 1st day of November, 1881, was $360,344,250. These are redeemable in legal-tender notes ("greenbacks") issued by the United States Government itself. Legal-tender notes are redeemable in gold by the Government, and are equal in value to gold at any place in the Nation or in Canada. National Bank Currency, although not a legal-tender in payment of debts, passes current in all ordinary commercial transactions, as well as in the payment of government taxes, whether National, State, or Municipal. Its ready convertibility into legal-tender notes makes it equivalent in value to gold. Legal-tender notes are by law made legal-tender to any amount in the payment of private and public obligations of every sort. The total amount of these in circulation on the 1st day of November, 1881, was $346,681,016, making the total paper circulation of the United States, on the date mentioned, $707,025,266. At the same time, the amount of gold coin in circulation was estimated by the Director of the United States Mint, at $562,568,971, and of silver, at $186,037,365, making the whole sum of the circulation of the United States on the 1st day of November, 1881, $1,445,631,602.

In the following lists those are State banks which have not the word National connected with their names, and which are not given as firms. Those which are described as firms are known as private banks or bankers. Both State and private banks are forbidden by law to issue paper currency. State banks are incorporated by or in pursuance of laws enacted by the several States in which they are respectively located. They are private corporations, managed and controlled by individuals, with but little, if any, supervision upon the part of the States themselves. Under the head of State banks are classed Savings banks, which, as a rule, are simply depositories of funds for safe keeping. Comparatively few of them are organized as stock-companies, with a capital fund—the total number of such banks with capital, in the United States, on May 31, 1881, being only 36, while those without capital numbered 629. The total amount of deposits in these 665 savings banks (including both classes), at the date last named, was $899,971,000, which to some extent indicates the earnings and savings of the industrial classes of the United States.

The operations of private banks and bankers are generally confined to the receiving of current commercial deposits, subject to be drawn upon at sight, without notice; the drawing of bills of exchange payable at other banks within the United States, or in foreign countries; and the discounting of local mercantile bills, generally payable in 30, 60, or 90 days after date. They form the most numerous class of bankers in the Union, and although their capital is small in proportion to their numbers, they play a very important part in moving the financial, commercial and trade machinery of the Great Republic.

As a whole, the banking operations of the United States are immense, and are conducted with great skill, prudence and success. The paper currency of the Nation passes freely, in every nook and corner of the land, at par with gold; each city, and every town of the least commercial importance, has its banking institutions, with (generally) its New York correspondent. New York City is the financial centre of the Republic, and to it all railways lead, and all telegraphs point. The Eastern half of the Republic is a network of rails upon the ground, and of wires in the air. The domestic commerce of the country is of almost inestimable greatness and rapidly increasing. The banks are the veins and arteries through which the currents of business flow from the great central heart of the Nation to its remotest extremities.

BANQUES ET BANQUIERS DES ETATS-UNIS ET DES PROVINCES ANGLAISES.

Dans les listes suivantes nous donnons le nom et la localité de chaque établissement de Banque, soit Banque Nationale, Banque d'Etat, ou Banque particulière dans les limites des Etats-Unis, du gouvernement du Canada et de Terre-Neuve. Cet arrangement est d'abord par Etats en ordre alphabétique, chacun suivi par les villes et bourgades qu'il renferme, aussi en ordre alphabétique ; après les Etats viennent les Territoires des Etats-Unis, qui sont suivis par les différentes provinces du gouvernement du Canada et de Terre-Neuve. Partout où le mot "National," ou l'abréviation "Nat.," est joint à celui de "Banque" dans les limites des Etats-Unis, il indique que ce sont des Banques Nationales.

Les banques nationales ont pour base des chartes issues par le gouvernement des Etats-Unis. Elles sont possédées et conduites par des corporations particulières mais sont soumises aux lois et à la surveillance des Etats-Unis. Cette classe de banques ont seules la permission d'émettre du papier-monnaie et cela seulement après avoir déposé dans le Trésor des Etats-Unis, comme sécurité pour la rédemption de la dite circulation, des Bons du gouvernement national d'une valeur plus considérable que le papier émis. Les issues de circulation sont désignées comme "billets des banques nationales." Le montant total de ces billets en circulation au 1^{er} Novembre 1881, était de ($360,344,250) 1,801,721,250 frs. Ces billets sont rachetables en billets "Legal-tender," (greenbacks, ou billets au dos vert,) issus par le gouvernement des Etats-Unis lui-même. (Ces billets ont été surnommés "Greenbacks" parce que le revers est de cette couleur.) Le nom Legal-tender a été introduit dans le temps où les paiements en espèces étaient suspendus et les billets de banque ordinaires étaient soumis à un très fort escompte tandis que ceux-ci devaient être reçus au pair pour les paiements dus aux banques ou au gouvernement, excepté les droits de la douane qui devaient se payer seulement en or.

Les billets "Legal-tender" sont rachetables en or par le gouvernement et sont égaux en valeur dans toutes les parties de la nation et le Canada. Les billets de Banque, quoiqu'ils ne soient pas legal-tender, pour le paiement des dettes, passent couramment dans les transactions ordinaires du commerce aussi bien que pour le paiement des taxes du gouvernement, soit celles de la nation, de l'Etat ou de la municipalité. Leur rapide convertissement en billets legal-tender les rend équivalents à l'or. Les billets legal-tender ont été faits legal-tender pour le paiement de toutes les dettes privées et les obligations publiques de toutes sortes. Le montant total de ces billets en circulation au 1^{er} jour de Novembre 1881, était de ($346,681,016) 1,733,405,080 frs.; ce qui porte la circulation totale des billets dans les Etats-Unis, à la date susdite à : 3,535,126,330 frs. ($707,025,266.) En même temps le montant des pièces d'or en circulation était estimé à 2,812,844,855 frs. ($562,568,971) par le Directeur de la monnaie des Etats-Unis ; et celle de l'argent à 930,186,825 frs. ($186,037,365.) Tout ceci fait monter la circulation totale des Etats-Unis au dit 1^{er} Novembre, 1881, à la somme de 7,278,158,010 frs. ($1,455,621,602.)

Dans les listes suivantes les banques qui n'ont pas le mot national placé à la suite de leur nom et qui ne sont pas données comme compagnie, sont des banques d'Etat. Celles qui sont décrites comme compagnies sont connues sous le simple nom de banques ou banquiers. La loi défend aux banques privées et aux banquiers d'émettre du papier de circulation. Les banques des Etats sont incorporées en vertu de lois émanantes des divers Etats où elles sont établies. Ce sont des corporations privées conduites et contrôlées par des individus avec peu ou point de surveillance de la part des Etats eux-mêmes. Sous le titre de banques d'Etat sont placées les banques d'épargne qui, en règle générale, sont simplement des lieux où l'on dépose des fonds pour les garder. Très-peu d'entr'elles sont organisées comme banques avec un capital. Le total de ces dernières banques avec capital aux Etats-Unis était de 56 seulement, tandis que celui des banques sans capital était de 629.

Le montant total des dépôts dans ces 665 banques d'Epargne des deux classes, à la dernière date mentionnée, était de 4,499,855,000 frs. ($899,971,000.) Ce qui indique jusqu'à un certain point, les gains et les épargnes des classes ouvrières des Etats-Unis.

Les opérations des banques particulières et des banquiers sont généralement bornées à recevoir les dépôts courants du commerce contre lesquels on peut tirer à vue, sans avis préalable ; au tirage des lettres de change payables à d'autres banques dans les Etats-Unis, ou dans les pays étrangers ; et à l'Escompte d'effets du commerce local payables à 30, 60 ou 90 jours de date. Ces deux espèces de banquiers forment une classe nombreuse dans les Etats-Unis et quoique leur capital soit petit en proportion de leur nombre, elles jouent un rôle important dans le mouvement rapide de la finance et du commerce de la Grande République.

Comme un tout, les opérations de banque des Etats-Unis sont immenses et sont conduites avec beaucoup d'habileté, de prudence et de succès. Le papier-monnaie passe librement dans tous les coins et recoins du pays au pair de l'or. Chaque ville, et bourgade de la moindre importance commerciale, a ses établissements de banque, généralement avec correspondants à New York. La ville de New York est le grand centre financier de la République ; tous les chemins de fer et les télégraphes conduisent vers elle. La moitié orientale de la République est un réseau de lignes de fer sur la terre et de fils de télégraphe dans les airs. Le commerce domestique du pays est d'une importance presque inestimable et rapidement croissante. Les Banques sont les artères et les veines à travers lesquelles le courant des affaires coule du cœur central de la nation à ses extrémités les plus reculées.

BANKEN UND BANKIERE IN DEN VEREINIGTEN STAATEN UND DEN BRITISCHEN PROVINZEN.

In den beiden folgenden Listen findet man die Namen und Plätze aller Banken, sowohl die National- und Staatsbanken als auch die Privatbanken, in den Grenzen der Vereinigten Staaten, der Britischen Provinzen und Neufundland. Die Einrichtung ist zuerst nach den Staaten in alphabetischer Reihenfolge. Die Städte in den einzelnen Staaten sind ebenfalls in alphabetischer Ordnung gegeben. Nach den Staaten folgen die Territoriums der Vereinigten Staaten, nach diesen die Provinzen Canadas, und dann Neufundland.

Wo immer das Wort „National,“ oder abgekürzt „Nat.“ vorkommt, in Verbindung mit Banken in den Vereinigten Staaten, bezeichnet es solche Banken als National-Banken. National-Banken werden organisirt und betrieben mit der Erlaubniss der Regierung der Vereinigten Staaten. Privat-Personen eignen und betreiben sie, aber nur nach den Gesetzen und unter der Aufsicht der Vereinigten Staaten. Diese Klasse von Banken allein hat das Recht Papiergeld herauszugeben, und dies Recht haben die Banken nur, nach dem sie im Schatzamte der Vereinigten Staaten National-Schuldscheine als Sicherheit für das von ihnen herausgegebene Papiergeld, in einem höheren Betrage als ihr Papiergeld, niedergelegt haben. Die Ausgaben des Papiergeldes der National-Banken werden bezeichnet als „National-Bank-Noten,“ wovon der ganze, in Circulation sich befindende, Betrag am 1. November, 1881, sich auf 1,441,377,000 Mark belief. Dieselben können durch Papiergeld (Greenbacks), welches von der Regierung der Vereinigten Staaten herausgegeben wird, ausgelöst werden. Dies, von der Regierung herausgegebene Papiergeld, hat den Werth von Goldmünzen in irgend einem Theile dieses Landes oder Canada. Obgleich National-Bank-Noten kein gesetzlich anerkanntes Geld sind zur Bezahlung von Schulden, so sind dieselben doch vollständig sowohl bei allen geschäftlichen Verbindungen, als auch zur Bezahlung von Regierungssteuern aller Art. Indem man dieselben mit Leichtigkeit in Papiergeld der Regierung umsetzen kann, so haben sie den Werth des Goldes. Papiergeld der Regierung ist vom Gesetz als vollständig anerkannt zur Bezahlung irgend welcher Schulden. Der ganze Betrag dieses, im Umlauf sich befindenden, Papiergeldes betrug am 1. November, 1881, 1,386,724,064 Mark. Somit ist also die ganze Summe des im Umlauf stehenden Papiergeldes in den Vereinigten Staaten am 1. November, 1881, 2,828,101,064 Mark. Zu derselben Zeit wurde der, im Umlaufe sich befindende, Betrag der Goldmünzen veranschlagt auf 2,250,275,884 Mark, und der Betrag der Silbermünzen auf 744,149,460 Mark. Der ganze Betrag des, im Umlauf sich befindenden, Geldes der Vereinigten Staaten betrug somit am 1. November, 1881, 5,822,526,408 Mark.

Staatsbanken sind in der folgenden Liste diejenigen, bei welchen nicht das Wort „National“ beigefügt ist, und welche auch nicht als Privatfirmen angegeben sind. Solche, die den Namen einer Firma tragen, sind bekannt als Privat-Banken oder Bankiere. Sowohl Staatsbanken als auch Privatbanken haben gesetzlich kein Recht Papiergeld herauszugeben. Staatsbanken sind incorporirt nach den Gesetzen der betreffenden Staaten, in welchen sie sich befinden. Sie werden verwaltet von Privat-Personen, und werden wenig, wenn irgend wie, von den betreffenden Staaten beaufsichtigt. Unter der Abtheilung der Staatsbanken werden hier ebenfalls die Sparbanken angeführt, welche im Allgemeinen nichts weiter als Banken für die Aufbewahrung von Geldern sind. Verhältnissmässig wenige derselben sind als Actiengesellschaften organisirt, mit einem Grundkapital. Die ganze Anzahl solcher Banken mit einem Grundkapital in den Vereinigten Staaten betrug am 31. Mai, 1881, blos 36, während solche, die kein Grundkapital haben, sich auf 629 beliefen. Der ganze Betrag der Summen in allen diesen 665 Sparbanken belief sich am besagten Datum auf 3,599,884,000 Mark, welche Summe, in einem Maasse, den Verdienst und die Ersparnisse der arbeitenden Klasse in den Vereinigten Staaten andeutet.

Die Geschäfte der Privatbanken und der Bankiere beschränken sich gewöhnlich auf das Entgegennehmen der gewöhnlichen geschäftlichen Depositen, auf welche man zu irgend einer Zeit, ohne vorherige Notiz ziehen kann; das Einkassiren von Wecheln auf andere Banken in den Vereinigten Staaten oder irgend einem anderen Lande; und die Uebernahme von geschäftlichen Werthpapieren, zahlbar in 30, 60 oder 90 Tagen vom Datum. Dies ist die zahlreichste Klasse der Banken der Union, und obgleich ihr Kapital klein ist, im Verhältniss zu ihrer Zahl, so spielen sie doch eine wichtige Rolle im finanziellen und geschäftlichen Leben der grossen Republik.

Im Ganzen genommen sind die Bankgeschäfte in den Vereinigten Staaten grossartig, und werden sie mit grosser Geschicklichkeit, Vorsicht und mit Erfolg verwaltet. Das Papiergeld der Nation coursirt ungehindert in jeder Ecke und jedem Winkel des Landes, im Werth des Goldes. Jede Stadt und jedes Städtchen, wenn auch von geringer geschäftlicher Bedeutung, hat seine Bank und steht (gewöhnlich) in Verbindung mit einer New-Yorker Bank. Die Stadt New-York ist das finanzielle Centrum der Republik, und dahin führen alle Eisenbahnen und zeigen alle Telegraphen. Die östliche Hälfte der Republik ist ein Netz von Schienen auf der Erde und von Drähten in der Luft. Der einheimische Handel des Landes ist beinahe unberechenbar und nimmt beständig zu. Die Banken sind die Adern und Blutgefässe, durch welche der Kreislauf der Geschäfte von dem grossen Herzen der Nation bis in die entferntesten Theile des Landes fliesst.

BANCOS Y BANQUEROS DE LOS ESTADOS UNIDOS. Y DE LAS PROVINCIAS INGLESAS.

En las listas siguientes damos el nombre y la localidad de cada establecimiento de banco, sea banco nacional, banco de Estado o banco privado en los límites de los Estados Unidos, del gobierno del Canada o de Tierra Nueva. Este arreglo es primeramente por Estados alfabéticamente ordenados, seguido cada uno de las ciudades y villas también en orden alfabético; después de los Estados se hallan los Territorios de los Estados Unidos, á los cuales siguen las varias provincias del gobierno del Canada y de Tierra Nueva. Donde quiera que ocurra la palabra National o su abreviatura "Nat." junta con la de "Banco" á dentro de los límites de los Estados Unidos, indica que son "Bancos Nacionales."

Los bancos nacionales son fundados o establecidos con privilegios concedidos por el gobierno mismo de los Estados Unidos. Son la propiedad y bajo de la conducta de corporaciones privadas pero sujetas á las leyes y á la superintendencia de los Estados Unidos. Esta clase de bancos solos tienen el poder de emitir papel-moneda, solo después de haber depositado en la Tesorería de los Estados Unidos, como seguridad de la redención de dicha circulación, obligaciones del gobierno nacional por un valor de mucho mas grande importe que los billetes emitidos; aquellas emisiones de circulación se designan como "billetes de los bancos nacionales." La suma total de estos billetes en circulación al primer día de Noviembre 1881, era de $360,344,250. Dichos billetes pueden redimirse por billetes Legal tender ("greenbacks," billetes con su reverso verde,) emitidos por el gobierno mismo de los Estados Unidos. Estos billetes han sido llamados greenback porque el reverso se hallaba de este color. La apelación "legal tender" fué introducida al templo en que los pagos de moneda de oro o de plata se habían suspendido y los billetes ordinarios de banco se hallaban sometidos á un descuento ilimitado mientras que estos se debían recibir al par en los pagos debidos á los bancos o al gobierno, con exception de los derechos de la aduana que habían siempre de pagarse en oro.

Los billetes "legal tender" son redimibles en oro por el gobierno y son iguales al oro en todas partes de la nación y del Canada. Los billetes de los otros bancos aunque no legal tender por el pago de deudas, pasan corrientemente en las transacciones ordinarias del comercio así como por el pago de los impuestos del gobierno, sea de la nación, del Estado o del ayuntamiento. Su facilidad de conversion en billetes legal tender los hace equivalentes al oro. Los billetes legal tender fueron hechos legal tender por el pago de todas las deudas privadas y las obligaciones publicas de todas clases. La suma total de aquellos billetes en circulación al primer día de Noviembre 1881, era de $346,631,016 lo que lleva la circulación total en los Estados Unidos, á dicha fecha, á $707,025,266. Al mismo tiempo la suma de la moneda de oro en circulación era estimada á $562,568,971, por el Director de la casa de moneda de los Estados Unidos, y la de plata á $186,037,365. Todo lo que hace montar la circulación total de los Estados Unidos al primer día de Noviembre 1881, á la suma de $1,455,621,602.

En las listas siguientes los bancos que no tienen la palabra "nacional" después de su nombre y que no se dan como compania, son bancos de Estado. Los que se describen como companias se conocen bajo del simple nombre de bancos o de banqueros. La ley interdice á los bancos privados y á los banqueros de emitir billetes de circulación. Los bancos de los Estados son incorporados por fuerza de leyes emanantes de los varios Estados en donde se establecen. Son corporaciones privadas conducidas y gobernadas por individuos con poca o ninguna superintendencia de la parte de los Estados mismos.

Bajo del nombre de bancos del Estado se han colocado los bancos de ahorros que, como regla general, son simplemente lugares en que se depositan los fondos para guardarlos. Muy pocos de estos se organizan como bancos con capital. El total de estos últimos bancos con capital en los Estados Unidos era solamente de 56, mientras el de los bancos sin capital era de 629. La suma total de los depositos en dichos bancos de ahorros de ambas clases á la fecha mencionada era de $899,971,000. Lo que indica, hasta cierto punto, las ganancias y los ahorros de las clases trabajadoras de los Estados Unidos.

Las operaciones de los bancos privados y de los banqueros se limitan generalmente á recibir los depositos corrientes del comercio contra los cuales se pueda girar á vista y sin aviso anticipado; al giro de letras de cambio pagaderas en otros bancos de los Estados Unidos o en países estrangeros; y al descuento de billetes del comercio local pagaderos á 30, 60 o 90 dias de fecha. Estas dos clases de banqueros forman una clase numerosa en los Estados Unidos, y aunque su capital se halle muy reducido en proporcion de su numero, hacen un papel importante en el movimiento rapido del comercio de la Grande Republica.

Como un todo, las operaciones de banco en los Estados Unidos son inmensas, y conducidos con mucha habilidad, mucha prudencia y mucho suceso. El papel moneda pasa libremente por todos puntos del país al par del oro. Cada ciudad y villa de la mínima importancia tiene sus establecimientos de banco generalmente con sus correspondientes en Nueva-York. La ciudad de Nueva York es el grande centro financiero de la Republica; todos los carriles y los telegrafos conducen alla. La mitad oriental de la Republica es una trama de carriles en el suelo y de hileras en el aire. El comercio domestico del país es de una importancia casi inapreciable y creciente rapidamente. Los bancos son las arterias y las venas al traves de las cuales la corriente de los negocios provienen del centro de la nación á sus estremidades mas remotas.

BANKS AND BANKING INSTITUTIONS OF EUROPE.

[Within this division are included the Banks of the Austro-Hungarian Monarchy, Belgium, Bulgaria, the island of Cyprus, Denmark, France, the German Empire, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Greece, Italy, the island of Malta, the Netherlands, the Kingdom of Sweden and Norway, Portugal, the Azores and Madeira islands, Roumania, Russia, Spain, the Balearic and Canary islands, Switzerland, Turkey, in Europe and in Asia, and East Roumelia—all in the order named. The aggregate number of banks and banking concerns included in these lists is about 7,250, nearly one-half of which are situated within Great Britain and Ireland. It will be understood, however, that this catalogue does not profess to contain a complete list of all the banks and banking institutions of Europe, but only a sufficient number of responsible ones in each important locality to enable those who desire to enter into correspondence or business relations, to do so with convenience and safety.]

BANKEN UND BANKGESCHÄFTE VON EUROPA.

[In dieser Abtheilung findet man, in der hier angegebenen Reihenfolge, die Banken von Oesterreich-Ungarn, Belgien, Bulgarien, der Insel Cyprus, Dänemark, Frankreich, Deutschland, Grossbritannien und Irland, Griechenland, Italien, der Insel Malta, Niederlande, Schweden und Norwegen, Portugal, der Azoren- und Madeira-Inseln, Rumänien, Russland, Spanien, der Balearischen- und Canarien-Inseln, der Schweiz, der Europäischen und Asiatischen Türkei und Ost-Rumelien.

Die ganze Anzahl der Banken und Bankgeschäfte, welche in dieser Liste gegeben sind, beträgt ungefähr 7,250. Beinahe die Hälfte derselben befinden sich in Grossbritannien und Irland. Es ist aber verstanden, dass diese Liste nicht alle Banken und Bankgeschäfte Europa's anführt, sondern dass sie vielmehr nur eine genügende Anzahl von zuverlässigen Banken an jedem wichtigen Platze enthält, so dass Solche, welche Geschäftsverbindungen anknüpfen möchten mit diesen Plätzen, dies mit Sicherheit und Bequemlichkeit thun können.

BANQUES ET INSTITUTIONS DE BANQUE EN EUROPE.

[Dans cette division sont comprises les banques de la Monarchie Austro-Hongroise, de la Belgique, de la Bulgarie, de l'île de Chypre, du Danemark, de la France, de l'empire germanique, du Royaume-Uni de la Grande Bretagne et de l'Irlande, de la Grèce, de l'Italie, de l'île de Malte, des Pays-Bas, du royaume de Suède et de Norvège, du Portugal, des Açores, de Madère, de la Roumanie, de la Russie, de l'Espagne, des îles Beléares et des Canaries, de la Suisse, de la Turquie d'Europe et d'Asie, et de la Roumélie de l'Est. Toutes dans l'ordre nommé.

Le nombre total des Banques et des établissements de banque inclus dans ces listes est d'environ 7,250, dont presque la moitié sont en Angleterre et en Irlande. Il faut bien se souvenir cependant que ce catalogue ne prétend pas donner une liste complète de toutes les banques ou établissements de banque de l'Europe, mais seulement un nombre suffisant des plus responsables dans chaque localité importante pour que ceux qui désirent entrer en correspondance d'affaires puissent le faire avec aise et sûreté.]

BANCOS Y INSTITUCIONES DE BANCO DE EUROPA.

[En esta division se incluyen los Bancos de la monarquía Austro-Hungara, de Belgica, de Bulgaria, de la isla de Chipre, de Danimarca, de Francia, del imperio germanico, del Reino Unido de Inglaterra e Irlanda, de Grecia, de Italia, de la Isla de Malta, de los Países-Bajos, del Reino de Suecia y de Noruega, del Portugal, de las Islas Azoras y de Madera, de la Rumania, de la Rusia, de España, de las islas Baleares y de las Canarias, de la Sutsa, de la Turquía de Europa y de Asia, y de la Rumania del Este. Todos en el orden expresado arriba.

El numero total de los bancos y establecimientos de Banco dados en estas listas es cerca de 7,250 cuya mitad casi se halla en Inglaterra y en Irlanda. Se debe recordar sin embargo que este catalogo no pretende presentar una lista completa de todos dichos establecimientos de Europa, sino solamente un numero suficiente para que los que desearan entrar en correspondencia de negocios, puedan hacerlo con desembarazo y seguridad.]

BANKS OF THE EMPIRE OF GERMANY.

[For populations and provinces of the several places named, see the list of German publications, in this volume. The figures (1874, etc.,) following the names of banks and bankers give the respective dates of the establishment of the institutions mentioned. The letter M, where used in connection with amounts of money, signifies marks. One mark is equivalent in value to the English shilling, or 24 cents in U. S. money.]

BANKEN DES KAISERREICHS DEUTSCHLAND.

[Bezüglich der Bevölkerung und der Länder der verschiedenen hier genannten Plätze sehe man die Liste der deutschen Publikationen in diesem Bande. Die Zahlen (1874, etc.,) hinter den Namen der Banken und Bankiere, bezeichnen die Zeit der Etablierung der betreffenden Geschäfte. Der Buchstabe M, wenn immer derselbe in dieser Verbindung gebraucht wird, steht für Mark. Der Werth von einer Mark ist gleich dem englischen Schilling, oder 24 cents des Geldes der Vereinigten Staaten.]

BANQUES DE L'EMPIRE GERMANIQUE.

[Pour la population et les provinces des différents lieux nommés, voir la liste des publications germaniques dans ce volume. Les chiffres (1874, etc.,) qui suivent les noms des Banques et Banquiers donnent les dates respectives de l'établissement des institutions mentionnées. La lettre M employée après le montant en argent signifie marcs. Le marc est égal en valeur au chelin Anglais ou 24 cents en monnaie des États-Unis.]

The Frankfurter Volkszeitung recently published interesting statistics of the world's correspondence by post and telegraph. The latest returns which approached completeness were for the year 1877, in which more than four thousand million letters were sent, which gives an average of 11,000,000 a day, or 127 a second. Europe contributed 3,036,000,000 letters to this enormous mass of correspondence, America about 760,000,000, Asia 150,000,000, Africa 25,000,000, and Australia 50,000,000. Assuming that the population of the globe was between 1,300,000,000 and 1,400,000,000, this would give an average of three letters per head for the entire human race. There were in the same year 38,000 telegraph stations, and the number of messages may be set down for the year at between 110,000,000 and 111,000,000, being an average of more than 305,000 messages per day, 12,671 per hour, and nearly 512 per minute.

THE SECRET OF ADVERTISING.

A very successful man gives the following as the result of his experience: "Some merchants use but very little judgment about advertising. So long as they have an 'ad.' in some paper, paying for it, they think it is sufficient, and trust to luck for the consequences. They shut their eyes and discharge their gun in the air, and wait for the game to drop. They are for duck and get crow. Advertising requires as much good judgment as any other part of a merchant's business. Judicious advertising always pays. There are some business men who seldom advertise, and they are always complaining about their trade. They treat advertising as the improvident, shiftless fellows do roofs. When the sun shines, they do not need patching; and when it rains, they cannot patch them. When trade is fair, they see no need of advertising; and when trade is dull, they say they cannot afford to advertise. Moral: Repair a leaky roof when it is fair weather; and advertise in all seasons. Advertising pays all parties interested better than any other commercial investment."

BANKS AND BANKING INSTITUTIONS OF ASIA.

[Within this are included, in addition to the banks of the continent, the Banks of Japan and of the Island of Ceylon. The Banks of the islands of the Malay Archipelago (including the Straits Settlements, the Philippine Islands, etc.) are grouped separately at the close of this list, under the heading of "Banks of the East India Islands." The total number of banks given in this list is 306, of which 159 are within the Empire of Japan, and 127 within the limits of British India and its dependencies. The Asiatic countries in which no banks have been ascertained to exist, are Anam, Arabia, Afghanistan, Beloochistan, the Empire of Burmah, Cambodia, Corea, Tibet, and Turkestan. The body of the Chinese Empire with its immense territorial possessions, may be said to be practically without banks of any kind. Those enumerated within the subjoined lists as found in China proper, numbering 29 in all, are confined to the cities of Amoy, Foochow, Hankow, Ningpo, Shanghai and Swatow—all coast cities, with the exception of Hankow. They are, without exception, under the ownership and control of foreigners—English, French and Russians. The banks of Turkey in Asia will be found with those of Turkey in Europe, under the division of Europe. Such banks as may be in Asiatic Russia are classified under Russia, in the European division.]

DIE BANKEN UND BANKGESCHÄFTE ASIENS.

[In dieser Liste sind nebst den Banken des Festlandes auch die Banken von Japan und von der Insel Ceylon gegeben. Die Banken der Inseln des Malayischen Archipel (einschliesslich der Straits Settlements, der Philippinen Inseln, etc.) sind besonders zusammengestellt am Ende dieser Liste, unter der Ueberschrift „Banken der Ostindischen Inseln.“ Die ganze Zahl der in diesen Listen gegebenen Banken beträgt 306. Davon sind 159 im Kaiserreiche Japan und 127 innerhalb der Grenzen British Indiens und seiner Provinzen. Die asiatischen Länder in welchen man keine Banken ausfindig machen konnte sind Anam, Afghanistan, Arabien, Beloochistan, das Kaiserreich Birma, Cambodia, Corea, Tibet und Turkestan. Von dem grossen Chinesischen Kaiserreiche, mit seinen vielen Besitzungen, kann man beinahe sagen, dass es thatsächlich keine Banken irgend welcher Art hat. Die in dieser Liste angeführten, 29 im Ganzen, befinden sich in den Städten Amoy, Foochow, Hankow, Ningpo, Shanghai und Swatow—alle, mit Ausnahme von Hankow, Hafenstädte. Dieselben sind ohne Ausnahme in den Händen von Ausländern—Engländern, Franzosen und Russen. Die Banken der Asiatischen Türkei findet man zusammen mit denen der Europäischen Türkei, unter der Abtheilung Europa. Banken vom Asiatischen Russland sind angeführt in der Liste Russlands, in der europäischen Abtheilung.]

BANQUES ET BANQUIERS DE L'ASIE.

[Sous ce nom sont comprises en addition aux Banques du continent, les Banques du Japon, et de l'île de Ceylon. Les Banques des îles de l'Archipel de Malacca (y compris les établissements des détroits, les Philippines, etc.) sont séparément, à la fin de la liste, sous le titre de "Banques des îles des Indes orientales. Le nombre total des Banques données dans cette liste est de 306 dont 159 sont dans l'empire du Japon et 127 dans les limites de l'Inde Anglaise et de ses dépendances. Les pays Asiatiques dans lesquels on n'a découvert l'existence d'aucune banque sont l'Anam, l'Afghanistan, le Beloochistan, l'Arabie, l'empire de Burmah, la Cambodie, la Corée, le Thibet et le Turkistan. On peut dire que le corps de l'empire Chinois avec ses immenses possessions territoriales est en fait sans banque d'aucune espèce. Celles qui sont énumérées dans les listes suivantes comme existantes dans la Chine proprement dite au nombre de 29 en tout, se trouvent dans les villes d'Amoy, de Foochow, de Hankow, de Ningpo, de Shanghai et de Swatero—toutes villes sur la côte excepté Hankow. Elles sont, sans exception sous le contrôle des étrangers—Anglais, Français et Russes. Les banques de la Turquie d'Asie se trouveront avec celles de la Turquie d'Europe sous la division de l'Europe. Toutes les banques qui appartiennent à la Russie Asiatique sont classifiées sous la Russie, dans la division Européenne.]

A merchant of long experience makes the following pertinent observations: "The advertisements in a newspaper are more read than the thoughtless imagine. They are a map of a class of men's capabilities in life. The man who contemplates doing business in a distant town takes up the local paper and in its advertising columns sees a true picture of the men he has to deal with; a complete record of the town, its commerce, its trade, the facilities of storekeeping, its banks, and in almost every case he can estimate the character of the men who are soliciting the public patronage. The advertising pages are a map of the town, a record of its municipal character, a business confession of the citizen, and instead of being only an optional production of man, it is freighted with the life-thoughts of a hundred."

THE BANKS OF JAPAN.

In departing from the usual form adopted in these reports, in giving the Banks of the Kingdom of Japan with a fullness of detail which it would be impossible to pursue in relation to the lists of other countries generally, the Editor and Publisher feels justified by the desire of the civilized world to know more specifically of the progress of this wonderful and interesting people in their relations to and aspirations for an advancing civilization. Through the extreme kindness of the Minister Plenipotentiary of the United States, in Japan, the Hon. JOHN A. BINGHAM, the subjoined report has been received. In attestation of its official character, the following correspondence is submitted:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE,
WASHINGTON, June 18, 1881.

H. P. HUBBARD, Esq., New Haven, Connecticut.

SIR: Referring to your personal application to the United States Legation at Tokyo, for certain information concerning Banks and Newspapers in Japan, I am now directed by the Secretary of State to forward herewith to you the enclosed letter and its accompaniments from Mr. BINGHAM, in reply to your request.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

ROBERT R. HITT,
Assistant Secretary.

[COPY.]

UNITED STATES LEGATION,
TOKIO, JAPAN, May 6, 1881.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your letter of the 29th of December, 1880, which was received by me on the 1st of February last, I have to inform you that on the 7th of February last I addressed a note to his Excellency, Mr. INOUE, His Japanese Majesty's Minister for Foreign Affairs, requesting the information which you desired, as stated in your letter, and that on the 14th of February last I received from Mr. INOUE a copy in the Japanese language of the first Report of the Bureau of Banks, a translation of which is herewith enclosed, which gives you a list of all the Banks, foreign and domestic, in Japan; of their capital, location, etc. And I also enclose a printed and official translation of the Japanese Banking Act. These Banks are all reported to me as reliable and permanent. I have been thus long delayed in obtaining the translation of the official report of "the Bureau of Banks." * * *

I am, Dear Sir,

Very truly yours,

JNO. A. BINGHAM.

Mr. H. P. HUBBARD, New Haven, Connecticut.

BANQUES DU JAPON.

Lorsque l'Editeur de cet ouvrage s'éloigne ainsi des formes ordinaires pour donner la liste des Banques du Japon avec une plénitude de détails qu'il serait impossible de poursuivre dans les rapports des autres pays, il se sent justifié par le désir de faire connaître plus spécialement au monde civilisé les progrès de ce peuple admirable et intéressant comparés à la civilisation des autres nations. Par l'extrême obligeance du Ministre Plenipotentiaire des Etats-Unis au Japon, l'Honorable Mr. JEAN A. BINGHAM, le rapport ci-dessous a été obtenu. Pour en montrer le caractère officiel nous soumettons la correspondance suivante.

MONSIEUR: En conséquence de votre application personnelle à la légation des Etats-Unis à Tokio pour certains renseignements concernant les Banques et les journaux au Japon, le secrétaire de l'Intérieur m'a autorisé à vous envoyer la lettre ci-jointe avec les documents qui l'accompagnent en réponse à votre requête. J'ai l'honneur d'être, Monsieur,

Votre obéissant serviteur,

ROBERT R. HITT,
Assistant Secrétaire.

LÉGATION DES ETATS-UNIS,
TOKIO, JAPON, 6 Mai, 1881.

CHER MONSIEUR: En réponse à votre lettre du 29 décembre, 1880, reçue par moi le 1er Février dernier, je dois vous informer que le 7 Février j'adressai à son Excellence, Mr. INOUE, Ministre des affaires étrangères, de sa Majesté Japonnaise, demandant l'information que vous désiriez d'après votre lettre et que le 14 Février dernier je reçus de Mr. INOUE une copie en langue Japonnaise du 1er rapport du Bureau des Banques dont vous trouverez ci-joint la traduction qui vous donne une liste de toutes les banques étrangères et domestiques du Japon, de leur capital, de leur location, &c., &c. Je vous envoie aussi une traduction imprimée et officielle de l'acte sur les banques Japonnaises. On me rapporte que toutes ces banques sont parfaitement sûres et permanentes. La cause de mon délai est que je n'ai reçu qu'aujourd'hui la traduction du rapport officiel du Bureau des Banques. * * *

J'ai l'honneur d'être, Monsieur,

Votre dévoué serviteur,

JNO. A. BINGHAM.

DIE BANKEN VON JAPAN.

Indem wir die Liste der Banken des Kaiserreichs Japan so ausführlich und vollkommen geben, wie es nicht möglich gewesen wäre in Bezug auf die Listen anderer Länder in Allgemeinen, fühlt der Redacteur und Verleger sich gerechtfertigt, bezüglich dieser Ausnahme, durch das Verlangen der civilisirten Welt, so viel als möglich zu erfahren über das Verhältniss dieses merkwürdigen und interessanten Volkes in Verbindung mit der fortschreitenden Civilisation. Der beifolgende Bericht wurde uns durch die ausserordentliche Freundlichkeit des, in Japan wohnhaften, Gesandten der Vereinigten Staaten, Hon. JOHN A. BINGHAM, geliefert. Als Beweis des officiellen Charakters dieses Berichtes geben wir hiermit die beifolgende Correspondenz :

H. P. HUBBARD, Esq., New Haven, Connecticut.

MEIN HERR! Bezugnehmend auf Ihre persönliche Anfrage bei dem Gesandten der Vereinigten Staaten in Tokel, wegen gewisser Auskunft über Banken und Zeitungen in Japan, bin ich beauftragt vom Sekretär des Auswärtigen Ihnen hiermit den beiliegenden Brief nebst Dokumenten von Herrn BINGHAM zu übersenden, in Antwort auf Ihre Anfrage.

Ich bin, mein Herr,

Ihr gehorsamer Diener,

ROBERT R. HITT,
Gehülf-Sekretär.

GEHRTER HERR! In Antwort auf Ihr Schreiben vom 29. December, 1880, welches ich am 1. Februar d. J. erhielt, möchte ich Sie benachrichtigen dass ich am 7. Februar d. J. einen Brief sandte an Seine Hoheit, Herrn INOUE, Minister der Auswärtigen Angelegenheiten Seiner Hoheit des Kaisers von Japan, worin ich ihn ersuchte um Auskunft über die Angelegenheiten, ausgedrückt in Ihrem Schreiben. Am 14. Februar erhielt ich als Antwort darauf von Herrn INOUE ein Exemplar des ersten Berichts des Büreaus für Banken, in japanesischer Sprache, wovon ich Ihnen hiermit die Uebersetzung zusende. Sie finden in demselben alle Banken Japans, sowohl die welche Verbindung mit dem Auslande haben, als auch die welche nur auf Japan beschränkt sind. Ebenfalls finden sie darin Auskunft über ihr Kapital, die Lokation, etc. Zugleich sende ich auch eine gedruckte, officiële Uebersetzung des Japanesischen Bank-Acts. Ich erhielt die Versicherung, dass alle diese Banken fest und zuverlässig sind. Wegen der Uebersetzung des officiellen Berichtes „des Büreaus für Banken“ wurde die Beantwortung Ihres Schreibens so lange hinausgeschoben. * * *

Ich bin, geehrter Herr,

Ihr

JNO. A. BINGHAM.

Herrn H. P. HUBBARD, New Haven, Connecticut.

BANCOS DEL JAPON.

Cuando el Editor de esta obra se aparta así de las formas ordinarias para dar la lista de los Bancos del Japon con una plenitud de detalles que sería imposible de seguir en las noticias de otros países; se siente justificado por su deseo de dar á conocer mas especialmente los progresos de aquella nacion maravillosa e interesante en sus relaciones comparados con la civilisation de los otros pueblos. Por medio de la extrema fineza del ministro plenipotenciario de los Estados-Unidos en el Japon, el Honorable Sr. Dn. JUAN A. BINGHAM, la noticia de abajo fué obtenida. Para mostrar el caracter oficial de esta noticia presentamos aqui la correspondencia siguiente.

BANKS OF THE EAST INDIA ISLANDS

[This division includes such of the islands of the Malay Archipelago (which, in its broadest sense, embraces the Straits Settlements, the Philippine Islands, and islands generally off the south-east coasts of Asia,) as are reported to have banking institutions within them. Those, therefore, which are not mentioned herein may be understood to have no Banks, or none sufficiently important for report. The Banks of the Island of Ceylon are described under the heading of the Banks of Asia proper. Within this division there are 36 Banks, distributed among six islands.]

BANKEN DER OSTINDISCHEN INSELN.

BANQUES DES ILES DES INDES.

[Cette liste inclut les Iles d'Archipel de Malacca (qui dans le sens le plus étendu embrasse les établissements des détroits, les Philippines, et généralement les Iles au large des côtes sud-est de l'Asie), qui ont été rapportées comme possédant des institutions de Banque. Ainsi celles qui ne sont pas données ici peuvent être considérées comme n'ayant pas de banques assez importantes pour être mentionnées. Les Banques de l'Ile de Ceylon sont données sous le titre des Banques de l'Asie proprement dite. Dans cette division il y a 36 banques distribuées parmi six îles.]

BANCOS DE LAS ISLAS DE LAS INDIAS.

[Esta lista incluye las Islas del Archipiélago de Malacca (que en el sentido mas extensivo abraza los establecimientos de los Estrechos, las Filipinas y generalmente las Islas a lo largo de las costas Sud-este de Asia,) que se han referido como teniendo instituciones de Banco. Entonces las que no son mencionadas aqui deben considerarse como no peseyendo Bancos de suficiente importancia para ser mencionados. Los Bancos de la Isla de Ceilan se hallaran bajo del titulo de los del Asia. En esta division hay 36 Bancos distribuidos entre seis Islas.]

BANKS AND BANKING INSTITUTIONS OF AFRICA.

[Within this division are found the Banks of Algeria, Egypt, Morocco and Tunis, in North Africa; Cape Colony, Natal, Orange River Free State, and the Transvaal, in South Africa; Angola, Liberia, Senegal, and Sierra Leone, in West Africa; and Zanzibar, upon the east coast. These lists also include the Banks of the Mauritius, Reunion, Madagascar, Seychelles, St. Helena and other islands adjacent to the east and west coasts of Africa, except those of the Azores and Canary Islands, which are classed under the division of Europe. The total number of banks and banking concerns within this division is 232, of which 85 are in Cape Colony and 87 in Algeria. The great interior of Africa is, so far as known, wholly without banking facilities of any kind.]

DIE BANKEN UND BANKGESCHÄFTE AFRIKAS.

[In dieser Abtheilung findet man die Banken von Algerien, Egypten, Marokko und Tunis, in Nord-Afrika; sowie die von Kap Kolonie, Natal, Orange Rivier Freier Staat und Transvaal, in Süd-Afrika; als auch von Angola, Liberia, Senegal, und Sierra Leone, in West Afrika, und Zanzibar auf der Ostküste Afrikas. In diesen Listen sind auch die Banken der Insel Mauritius, Reunion, Madagaskar, St. Helena, der Seychellen, und anderer Inseln eingeschlossen, welche an der Ost- und Westküste Afrikas liegen, ausgenommen die Azoren- und Canarischen Inseln, welche in der europäischen Abtheilung gegeben sind. Die ganze Anzahl der Banken und Bankgeschäfte in dieser Abtheilung beträgt 232, wovon 85 in Kap Kolonie und 87 in Algerien sind. Das ganze Innere Afrika's ist, so viel man weiss, ganz ohne irgend welche Bankinstitution.]

BANQUES ET BANQUIERS D'AFRIQUE.

[Dans cette division se trouvent les banques de l'Algérie, de l'Egypte, du Maroc et de Tunis dans l'Afrique du Nord; celles de la Colonie du Cap, du Natal, de l'Etat libre de la Rivière Orange et du Transvaal dans l'Afrique du Sud: celles d'Angola, de la Libérie, du Sénégal et de Sierra Leone dans l'Afrique de l'Ouest; et celles du Zanzibar sur la côte orientale. Ces listes renferment aussi les banques de Mauritius, de la Réunion, de Madagascar, des Seychelles, de Ste. Hélène et autres îles adjacentes aux côtes à l'est et à l'ouest de l'Afrique, excepté celles des Açores et des Canaries qui sont classées dans la division de l'Europe. Le nombre total des banques et des institutions de Banque dans cette division est de 232 dont 85 sont dans la Colonie du Cap et 87 dans l'Algérie. L'intérieur immense de l'Afrique est, autant qu'on peut le savoir, sans facilité de banque d'aucune espèce.

DISTANCE TO THE NEAREST FIXED STAR.

The idea of distance, when very great, is often best conveyed by familiar comparison. A lecturer on scientific subjects lately said: "The earth's orbit, which is more than 190,000,000 miles in diameter, at most of the stars dwindled to a mere point and has no sensible size whatever. If you suppose a railway from the earth to the nearest fixed star, which is supposed to be twenty billions of miles from us; and if you supposed the price of the fare to be one penny for every hundred miles (not a penny per mile), then, if you take a mass of gold to the ticket office equal to the national debt it would not be sufficient to pay for a ticket to the nearest fixed star. And I think I should not be wrong in saying that there are stars so far off that at the price of one penny for every hundred miles, the whole treasure of the earth would not be sufficient to pay for a ticket."

The total number of banks within this division is 146, of which 44 are in Brazil.]

BANCOS E INSTITUCIONES DE BANCO DEL AMERICA DEL SUR.

[El editor siente que las noticias de los Bancos de las naciones del America del Sur han sido menos completas que se habia de esperar. Casi cada nacion es representada por uno o mas bancos respectables, (exceptuando a caso el Peru,) por medio de cuales todas las partes del pais se puedan alcanzar. El numero total de Bancos en esa division es de 146, 44 de los cuales se hallan en el Brasil.]

MR. WALTER ON THE UNITED STATES.

John Walter, M. P., of The London Times, recently speaking at Abingdon, in Berkshire, on the result of his tour in America, said it was desirable that there should be in all English towns a body of men able to advise their neighbors who are about to go to America. Any Englishman going to America, who is a good judge of land and who is steady and industrious, might be certain of becoming wealthy and prosperous before he is fifty years old. Before the close of the next century the United States would have a population of 200,000,000. He wished more Englishmen would go there. They would be an additional element of stability in the country, and would be as likely to succeed there as men of any other nationality.

THE NEW YORK BANKER AND BROKER.

NEW YORK, U. S. A.

A DAILY JOURNAL OF THE

New York Financial and Commercial Exchanges.

Successor of THE FINANCIAL RECORD.

The actual transactions at the financial and commercial Exchanges of New York city, taken together, best show the condition of business in the Western Hemisphere.

EVERY ONE who buys or sells in the United States or the Western Hemisphere will find statements of their transactions of great value, and of greatest value when the transactions of these Exchanges are taken together, and regularly read.

THE NEW YORK BANKER AND BROKER is the only journal that groups the official reports of the New York Exchanges, in tabular form, on a single page, thus making incomparably the most concise and convenient daily record of these transactions ever published. By making this work a specialty THE BANKER AND BROKER can and does make the most accurate and the best possible report for instant reference, study and filing. The official reports of the Exchanges, taken separately, cost, exclusive of postage, more than five times the subscription price of THE BANKER AND BROKER, and require an expert to compare them intelligently. The grouped report of THE BANKER AND BROKER presents the substance of the official reports tabulated to show all at a glance to any one.

In addition to this invaluable daily chart of business and best guide to intelligent dealing, THE NEW YORK BANKER AND BROKER gives a Daily Digest of Exchange transactions and all important news relating thereto, thus presenting the substance of the financial and commercial matter in all the other New York dailies.

The value of this work can only be measured by taking all the other New York dailies of a given day together, and comparing the important points they contain with what is published in the day's issue of THE BANKER AND BROKER.

THE BANKER AND BROKER also publishes the most complete table of the opening and closing of transfer books of corporations doing business in New York for dividends, etc. To banks, brokers and dealers interested in the securities dealt in at the Stock Exchange this table alone is worth the price of THE BANKER AND BROKER.

Although THE BANKER AND BROKER is published daily on fine paper in best style, and employs the most experienced and competent men, the subscription price is but half that of the usual financial daily, and same price as the usual financial weekly. The object is to extend the circle of intelligent dealers, or briefly to present daily within reach of the largest number

The Leffel Mechanical News

Is the oldest MECHANICAL and MILLING paper in the country, and has long been recognized as the leading and standard journal of its class. The rapid increase in its circulation, and the cordial support which it has received from the manufacturing and mechanical public, has led within the present year to its material improvement and enlargement, so that it is now enabled to present its readers sixteen large pages, twice a month. Filled with new and valuable matter relating to the occupations and interests of mechanics and manufacturers, the progress of science and the useful arts, new inventions, improved processes and important discoveries. Each number contains from thirty to forty elegant illustrations, of practical interest and value to persons engaged in manufacturing, or in any branch of industry in which machinery, tools, or mechanical processes are employed. The yearly volume therefore consists of 384 pages, with over six hundred engravings, all of which the subscriber receives (the postage being paid by the publishers) for the simple outlay of the subscription price, which is only one dollar a year. The MECHANICAL NEWS is the lowest in price, for the amount and quality of its contents, of any journal in the United States. Its editorial force comprises the best scientific and industrial talent, engaged exclusively upon its columns, making its staff, in number and ability, the equal of that employed on any scientific and mechanical journal in this country. The press-work and illustrations are of first-class quality, and executed on fine super-calendered paper. The publishers will spare no pains or expense to so conduct the MECHANICAL NEWS that it shall maintain an unquestioned position in the front rank of the industrial and scientific press of the United States. For the convenience of the reader, each number of the paper is machine-folded, pasted and trimmed. The size of its pages renders it convenient for binding and preservation, and in this form the numbers for a single year constitute a volume which for practical value as well as beauty can not be equalled at so low a cost. The aim of the publishers is to make it in all respects,—in price, in quality of material and execution, and in the character of its contents, the mechanic's own paper. SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, ONE DOLLAR A YEAR (postage paid by us) strictly in Advance. Inclose the money (either in currency, postal order or postage stamps) in a letter and direct it plainly to

THE NORTHWESTERN MILLER

PUBLISHED AT MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.,

—IS THE—

NATIONAL MILLING NEWSPAPER.

It is the first Weekly Milling Newspaper in the World.

It reaches more than Twelve Thousand different post offices in the United States and Foreign countries.

It reaches every Miller and Millwright in the country once a month.

It is published at the centre of the Milling Industry of America, and the greatest milling center of the world.

It makes a specialty of Manufacturing and Trade News, and its Notes of Improvements are full and reliable.

It is always fresh, lively and readable, and its advertisements are attractively set and handsomely printed.

Its average Circulation is 5,000 Copies Weekly.

An Advertisement for one year appears in 250,000 papers, and is read by every Miller and Millwright in the Country at least twelve times.

To those not on its subscription list a sample copy is sent at least once a month.

For the introduction of machinery of every kind, whether particularly adapted to the milling business or not, the NORTHWESTERN MILLER cannot be excelled. When it is considered that every one of the twenty thousand mills in the country, great and small, receive the paper at least once a month, and that mills, especially in country neighborhoods, are the gathering places of the population from far and near, and that everything readable is eagerly seized upon by these visitors, the justice of our claim will be admitted by discriminating advertisers. So confident are we of the value of the NORTHWESTERN MILLER that we will guarantee beneficial results to advertisers who have never tried it. Send for specimen copies, maps showing location of mills and affidavits as to circulation, &c.

Minneapolis, Minnesota, is the largest flour milling centre in the world. Its mills, twenty-six in number, have a daily capacity of more than 20,000 barrels of flour, using nearly 100,000 bushels of wheat, and requiring for its transportation ten trains of twenty freight cars each. Packed in barrels and placed end to end, the yearly product would reach more than twice across the continent. It is largely exported, more than 1,000,000 bbls. having been sent across the Atlantic in 1881, though this trade is yet in its infancy, as the first foreign shipments were made in 1878. The NORTHWESTERN MILLER is the recognized exponent of this enormous industry, and the conceded authority on all questions relating to the flour and grain trades, and modern methods of flour manufacture.

WOOD AND IRON

A JOURNAL OF THE

Manufacturing, Building and Jobbing Trades, and Record of Railway Progress.

A Journal of applied mechanics for practical men, circulating 5,000 copies per month among the following classes:

BUILDERS,

HARDWARE DEALERS,

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT DEALERS,

SAW MILLS,

SASH DOOR AND BLIND FACTORIES,

LUMBERMEN,

LUMBER DEALERS,

FOUNDRYMEN,

MACHINE SHOPS.

HARNESS MAKERS,

WAGON & CARRIAGE MAKERS,

CABINET MAKERS,

UPHOLSTERERS,

GENERAL MANUFACTURERS,

RAILROAD OFFICERS.

WOOD AND IRON is the first journal of the kind published in the West, and its hearty reception and almost instantaneous success, show the need which has been felt for such a publication. Its list of contributors includes the best names in the fields of mechanics and engineering.

POINTS FOR CONSIDERATION.

Minneapolis and St. Paul have a combined population of more than 125,000, and are the distributing points for a section of territory extending West and North more than a thousand miles in either direction.

Of the 6,000 miles of railroad built in the United States last season, 2,081 were in the Northwest, and every mile leads directly to this centre, or is an extension of roads already centering here.

In the city of Minneapolis, a solid mile of business fronts, 1,551 dwelling houses and other structures, to the value of over $5,000,000 were erected last season, and St. Paul has an equal record.

Thousands of sections of government and railroad land in the Northwest vacant last spring have been taken up by hardy and industrious emigrants, who are adding to the material and wealth of the country in every department of industry.

The only medium for reaching all of the classes named above in this vast territory is WOOD AND IRON, which does so thoroughly every month.

Thirty-six pages, 8 x 12 inches, handsomely printed and illustrated. Send for sample copy and advertising rates.

THE "CAPE ARGUS."

CAPE TOWN, CAPE COLONY.

The Leading South African Journal.

ESTABLISHED 1854.

The "CAPE ARGUS," widely known for its advocacy of native rights and colonial self-government, has an extensive circulation through all parts of South Africa, especially amongst the professional and mercantile classes. Being the only metropolitan journal which issues the week's news in a comprehensive form, it is also largely supported by the agricultural community, and has, therefore, no superior in South Africa as an advertising medium.

THE BEAUFORT COURIER.

BEAUFORT WEST, CAPE COLONY, S. AFRICA.

Weekly. Established 12 years. The only paper published in the Karroo division, an extent of country about 500 miles square, with a large circulation in the neighboring districts. The COURIER has been the government gazette, as well as the advertising medium for the local bodies; attracting a large number of readers in the province. The town of Beaufort West lies on the high road to the Diamond Fields, the Transvaal State and the N. E. country beyond, and is the main station on the Great Western Trunk Line of Railway. It is a vast country of great agricultural and pastoral wealth and only requires enterprise to develop it; simple and cheap pumping machinery, and agricultural implements, being required. The rivers are shallow, and machinery of all kinds is much needed, especially for wellsinking. Coal has been found in different parts of the district of excellent quality.

THE BEAUFORT WEST COURANT,

Published in the Dutch vernacular, is issued from this office weekly, and is widely read in the N. W. District by the Dutch settlers.

The Dubuque Daily and Weekly Telegraph

Is the only two cent paper published in the State of Iowa. It is published by the

Dubuque Telegraph Company,

DUBUQUE, IOWA,

And has a circulation more than double that of any other paper published in Dubuque City, and although independent, it is the most influential paper in the County of Dubuque, if not in the State of Iowa. This was evidenced at the October election, 1881. Dubuque County is Democratic, having an average majority of about 1,500. At the Democratic Convention, M. M. Ham, the editor of the Dubuque Herald, which is the Democratic organ of Dubuque County, was nominated unanimously for State Senator, and J. K. Graves was nominated by the Republican Convention. The Dubuque Times, the Republican county organ, refused to support Mr. Graves and came out in favor of Mr. Ham, thus leaving Mr. Graves without a party organ to support him. The TELEGRAPH being the only real independent paper published in the county, and not daunted by the gloomy prospect (out of 8 papers published in the county having declared for Mr. Ham) came on in favor of Mr. Graves, and after a vigorous canvass, Mr. Graves was elected by an unprecedented majority, being nearly 2,000, or 3,500 more than his party vote. Mr. Graves' majority was nearly equal to Mr. Ham's entire vote.

EUROPEAN MAIL FOR

Gt. Brit'n & the Continent.

Published 1st of each Month.

THIS ORGANIZATION HAS NO PARALLEL.

Advertisements inserted in the series come under the notice of the Importers and Consumers of the whole civilized World.

Each of the EIGHT papers under the general title of THE EUROPEAN MAIL, contains every item of intelligence from Mail to Mail, specially affecting the country or colony for which it is published, with an exhaustive resume of home and continental politics, science, art, and social news, together with a retrospect of commercial transactions in Great Britain and on the Continent.

Manufacturers and merchants may command the greatest markets of the world for their products through the mediums of publicity afforded by the EUROPEAN MAIL. A demand may be created where none exists at present, or an existing demand may be sustained and increased even against the most energetic competition.

The EUROPEAN MAIL gives such perfect mercantile information that it is the highest commercial authority in the vast and prosperous territories through which it circulates. It is therefore an imperative necessity to the merchant who orders goods in bulk, and to the wholesale and retail distributor; it is also the most complete newspaper despatched from England, and is eagerly sought by all classes; it thus, unlike merely commercial newspapers, reaches and leavens the great communities who are the actual consumers of all products, and who must be acted upon by advertisement to require a special article before the merchant will venture to order a consignment.

Port Denison (Bowen) is generally acknowledged to be the most perfect and beautiful harbour in Queensland. It is a port of call for the Queensland Royal Mail steamers from England direct via Torres Straits. It is the outlet for an immense pastoral country, and that its agricultural resources are not wanting, though only just beginning to be largely developed, is proved by the fact that within a fortnight over 30,000 acres of land were taken up for sugar growing. The Australian Company, limited (an English company), are now establishing a meat-freezing depot in the harbour for the export of meat to England. Minerals also abound in the District, and two companies have been formed to work large deposits of silver ore. The climate is delightful, and the soil will grow a cocoa-nut or a cabbage equally well. It is, however, at times subject to droughts, when water is scarce, and if American manufacturers of well-boring apparatus would make their manufactures known in Northern Queensland, there is no doubt many residents here would avail themselves of the opportunity of getting a constant supply of water at a cheap rate.

COMPARATIVE TABLES FROM U. S. CENSUS REPORTS.

Through the kindness of Hon. S. N. D. NORTH, Editor of the Utica, N. Y., Herald, and Special Agent of the United States Census Bureau for procuring statistics of the Newspapers of the Nation, in connection with the Tenth Census, the Publisher of this Directory is able to present herewith, in advance of its official publication by the Government, the following "Comparative Table of the Condition of the Press of the United States during the Past three Decades," in conjunction with many items of interest concerning the Press.

Never before this has our Government taken pains to secure such thoroughly systematic returns of statistics relating to the Press. All previous data of this character has been gathered by those whose chief duty was to enumerate the population. The collection of information touching newspapers was of secondary importance, and many of the returns made under former methods were imperfect. Under the arrangements for the Tenth Census, the gathering of Press statistics was deemed sufficiently important to be confided to the management of a special agent, through whose efforts every point of value concerning the newspapers of the United States has been secured, and for the first time in the history of the Nation has the Press, with its vast army of editors and employes, its absorption and active use of millions of capital, and its annual receipts and expenditures, running into scores of millions, been adequately presented to the world.

It may well be added that the Census Bureau was peculiarly fortunate in securing the services of Mr. NORTH for the important position which he has occupied. That the place was by no means a sinecure is obvious from the personal labor devoted to the work by the Special Agent himself. In a private letter to the Editor of this Directory (from which we take the liberty of reproducing a few passages,) he says: * * * "I found it a great disadvantage to pursue such an inquiry after the close of the year in relation to which statistics were desired. Other disadvantages arose from the entire novelty of the inquiry in connection with a census, for this is the first time that the Census office has ever undertaken to make a special and distinct inquiry relating to the Newspaper and Periodical Press. * * A very large portion of the clerical work connected with the inquiry, I have done personally, including the writing of many thousands of letters to delinquent or deficient publishers and others. Much of the time I have had but one clerical assistant. * * * Not the least onerous part of the work was the collection and arrangement of a complete file of all the newspapers and periodicals of the country. This file has been donated by Superintendent WALKER to the Library of Congress, and will be bound, by States, for future reference. It is believed to be a unique collection, and is known to be essentially perfect. * * * You who have been compiling newspaper directories, know something of the annoyances, the delays, the infinite misunderstandings, and the innumerable difficulties and perplexities of every name and nature, which add to the burden of the work at every point. I have wished I were well out of it many times since I began this work for the Census, and I rejoice with great rejoicing that the end is near." * *

From the work thus thoroughly done by official authority, we are enabled to present to the readers of this Directory the subjoined condensed table and items of statistical information, which are worthy of study by all who desire to inquire intimately into the secret springs which move that gigantic and irresistible power—THE PRESS OF AMERICA.

NOTE.—The rapid growth of the Press of the United States, both in numbers and annual circulation, will be noted with interest. Since the year 1850, the number of publications has increased over four hundred per cent. and the annual circulation almost five hundred per cent.

STATISTICAL ITEMS CONCERNING

THE NEWSPAPER PRESS OF THE UNITED STATES.

[GLEANED FROM ADVANCE SHEETS FURNISHED BY THE UNITED STATES CENSUS BUREAU.]

The total amount of blank paper consumed during the census year (July 1, 1879, to June 30, 1880), in the publication of newspapers, was 4,328,083 reams, weighing 178,165,951 lbs. [Its value, estimating cost at nine cents per lb., would be $16,034,935.59.—EDITOR.]

The aggregate amount of blank paper consumed by daily newspapers, per issue, during the census year, was 7,551 reams, weighing 297,598 lbs.—an average of 324½ lbs. for each daily. [Value of blank paper daily used, $26,783.82.—EDITOR.]

The total quantity of blank paper used by weeklies and all other classes (except dailies), per issue, was 63,963 reams, weighing 2,908,681 lbs.—an average of 312 lbs. for each journal of the classes named. [Value of blank paper used by such classes per issue, $261,781.29.—EDITOR.]

During the census year there were established new papers as follows: 92 dailies: 1,043 weeklies and all others (except monthlies). The discontinuances were: Dailies, 69; weeklies and all others (except monthlies), 845. There are 1,634 consolidations represented in all existing newspapers.

The number of existing journals established prior to 1850 is 1,300; established between 1850 and 1860, 923; between 1860 and 1870, 1,711; between 1870 and 1880, 5,319. There are 126 publications whose birth date could not be ascertained.

There are published in the German language 615 newspapers, 79 of which are dailies. In other foreign languages there are 152 journals, including 9 dailies, of which 2 are Bohemian, 4 French, 1 Norwegian, and 2 Spanish. Among others there are 2 Chinese weeklies (published in San Francisco), 27 French weeklies, 3 Italian, 19 Swedish, 2 Polish and 3 in the language of the North American Indians.

The average area to each newspaper in the United States is 260.12 square miles.

Of the 2,604 counties in the United States, there are 2,072 in which newspapers are published. Of the aggregate number of towns in which newspapers appear, 2,380 have but one; 1,018 have two; 395 have three; 197 have four; and 324 have five, or more, publications.

The amount annually paid in wages, by newspapers, in the United States, is as follows: By dailies, $17,825,053; by weeklies and others, $10,746,283. Total, $28,571,336.

The aggregate receipts from advertisements and subscriptions, during the census year, were as follows: by dailies, $44,750,034; by weeklies and others, $44,691,098. Total, $89,441,132.

The amount of wages paid to newspaper employes was distributed as follows: to employes of dailies, 56.65 per cent.; to those of weeklies and other classes, 43.35 per cent. The average amount paid during the year by dailies was $19,523; by weeklies and others, $1,486.

The division of gross receipts from advertising was by classes as follows: receipts by dailies, 51.69 per cent.; by weeklies and others, 48.31 per cent. The division of gross receipts from subscriptions was, dailies, 46.21 per cent.; weeklies and others, 53.79 per cent.

During the census year there were employed in the editorial departments of the press 16,489 persons. In the composing and printing departments there were 54,654 employes, including 50,799 males, and 3,855 females. The total number employed in all departments was 71,143.

The aggregate number of lbs. of type in use by all newspapers during the census year was 6,689,878—being 586 pounds for each publication.

The aggregate number of ems of type set per issue was, for dailies, 66,229,666; averaging 63,828 ems for each journal. Weeklies and others required an aggregate of 490,753,756 ems per issue, or an average of 50,748 ems per publication.

In printing the 11,418 newspapers in the United States there were in use 8,048 presses, of which 3,027 are run by steam, 148 by water, and 4,873 by hand. Each press prints, upon an average, a little less than one and a half (1.41) publications.

Eighty-four newspapers claimed a circulation per issue of 50,000 or over. Among these were 9 dailies, 30 weeklies, 6 semi-monthlies, 9 quarterlies and 30 monthlies. Ninety-six claimed a circulation running from 25,000 to 50,000 per issue. These embraced 18 dailies, 46 weeklies, 3 semi-monthlies, 2 quarterlies and 27 monthlies. One hundred and forty-eight claimed a circulation of from 15,000 to 25,000 copies per issue. Among these were 25 dailies, 71 weeklies, 2 semi-weeklies, 6 semi-monthlies, 1 bi-monthly, 4 quarterlies and 39 monthlies. Of publications claiming from 10,000 to 15,000 circulation there were 194, including 32 dailies, 83 weeklies, 63 monthlies, and 16 of other classes. Thus it appears that 522 publications in the United States claimed a circulation per issue during the census year of 10,000 copies or over that number. The number of journals that claimed from 1,000 to 10,000 circulation was 3,803. Among them were 387 dailies, 2,732 weeklies, 471 monthlies, and 213 of other classes. Of those claiming not exceeding 1,000 circulation per issue there were 361 dailies, 4,665 weeklies, 270 monthlies, and 187 of all other classes—total, 5,883.

The average amount of wages per annum paid employes upon daily newspapers in Massachusetts is $40,690; in the State of New York, $38,087; in the District of Columbia, $33,570; in Louisiana, $33,83; in Maryland, $28,710; in Minnesota, $28,315; in Rhode Island, $26,859; in Ohio, $22,551; in Missouri, $21,741; in Illinois, $21,455; in Pennsylvania, $21,009; in Utah, $16,020; in California, $18,822; in Connecticut, $17,987. All other States and Territories rank below the foregoing. The smallest average is in Washington Territory, where the dailies pay an average of but $5,233 per annum in wages.

SUMMARY TABLES OF ALL PUBLICATIONS.

Following this page will be found tables, which have been prepared with great care, containing a summary statement of the Newspaper Publications in each Nation and Country of the World, as well as in the chief Cities of the Globe. These are given complete in the four great languages, thus bringing these interesting statistics within the reach of eighty-five per cent. of all who read, in their own vernacular, since it is demonstrable that this proportion of all newspapers, and by inference all literature, is in either English, German, French or Spanish.

These tables contain an inexhaustible mine of interesting facts which will well repay the careful researcher into newspaper literature for time spent in their study.

These tabulations are based upon the information contained in the several lists of newspapers found within this work, and constitute the first complete summary of the newspaper publications of the world.

In this connection it may be said that in some instances (notably in relation to Japan and Australia) circulations have necessarily been estimated, in the absence of full reports containing them. In relation to the United States and Great Britain, in cases where circulations are not found in the lists, the deficit has been made good in the tables by allowing each of such publications a circulation equal to the average of those of the same class whose editions are given.

ZUSAMMENGEFASSTE TABELLEN ALLER PUBLIKATIONEN.

Dieser Seite auf dem Fusse folgend, wird der Leser Tabellen finden, welche mit grosser Sorgfalt geordnet worden sind, und einen abgekürzten Erweis über alle Zeitungs und literarische Publikationen jeder Nation und jedes Landes sowohl wie der bedeutendsten Städte der Welt, vorführen. Dieselben sind in den vier Haupt-Sprachen vervollständigt worden, und die in denselben erscheinenden interessanten Statistiken werden daher von fünfundachtzig per Centen der gesammten Leser in der Muttersprache jedes Einzelnen leicht verstanden werden, da es erweisbar ist, dass dieses Verhältniss aller Zeitungen, und, annehmbar aller literarischen Publikationen, entweder in der Englischen, Deutschen, Französischen oder Spanischen Sprache erscheint.

Diese Tabellen enthalten eine unerschöpfliche Quelle belehrender Thatsachen, deren sorgfältiges Studium jeden in Zeitungs-Literatur interessirten Nachforscher überreichlich für angewendete Zeit belohnen wird.

Die Tabellen sind auf die in den mannigfaltigen in diesem Werk erscheinenden Zeitungs Listen enthaltenen Einzelheiten basirt, und, als ein Ganzes bilden die erste vollständige Zusammenstellung aller Zeitungs-Publikationen der Welt.

In dieser Verbindung sollte es im Auge behalten werden, dass in einzelnen Fällen (ganz besonders mit Bezug auf Japan und Australien) die Circulationen der einzelnen Publikationen nothwendigerweise wegen Mangels an darüber eingegangenen vollständigen Berichten nur hat geschätzt werden können. Mit Bezug auf die Vereinigten Staaten und Gross-Britannien, wo immer die Circulationen in den Listen nicht festgestellt worden sind, ist das Deficit in den Tabellen gutgemacht worden, in dem einer jeden solchen die, anderer derselben Klasse angehörenden und mit Bezug auf ihre Circulation festgestellten Publicationen, gutgeschrieben worden ist.

TABLES SOMMAIRES DE TOUTES LES PUBLICATIONS.

A la Suite de cette page on trouvera des tables qui ont été préparées avec grand soin, contenant un état sommaire des publications des journaux dans chaque pays et chaque nation du monde aussi bien que dans les principales villes du globe. Ces sommaires sont donnés dans les quatre grands langages, mettant ainsi ces statistiques à la portée de 85 per cent. de tous ceux qui lisent, dans leur propre langue; puisque l'on peut démontrer que telle est la proportion de tous les journaux, et par inference de toute la littérature, en Anglais, en Allemand, en Français ou en Espagnol.

Ces tables contiennent une mine inépuisable de faits intéressants qui récompenseront les recherches soigneuses de la littérature des journaux pour le temps passé dans cette étude.

Ces tables sont fondées sur l'information contenue dans les diverses listes de journaux trouvés dans cet ouvrage, et constituent le premier sommaire des publications des journaux du monde.

Sous ce rapport on peut dire que dans quelques instances (surtout en ce qui regarde le Japon et l'Australie) nous avons été obligés d'estimer les circulations, dans l'absence des pleins rapports qui les contenaient. En ce qui regarde les Etats-Unis et la Grande-Bretagne, dans les cas où les circulations ne se trouvent pas dans les listes, nous avons remédié au déficit dans les tables en accordant à chacune de ces publications une circulation égale à la moyenne de celles des mêmes classes dont les éditions sont connues.

TABLAS SUCINTAS DE TODAS LAS PUBLICACIONES.

En seguida de esta página se hallarán unas tablas, que han sido preparadas con el mayor cuidado y empeño, conteniendo un resumen compendioso de las publicaciones diarísticas y literarias de todas las naciones y de todos los países del mundo, así como de las ciudades mas prominentes del globo. Se presentan esas tablas completas en los cuatro grandes idiomas, de modo que ochenta y cinco por ciento de la gente que lee pueden examinar esas interesantes estadísticas en su lengua nativa, pues es demostrable que esa proporción de todos los periódicos, y por inferencia de la literatura entera, se imprimen en Inglés, en Aleman, en Francés ó en Español.

Esas tablas contienen una mina inagotable de datos interesantes que recompensará abundantemente al estudiante que examina cuidadosamente la literatura diarística por el tiempo que pasará en su lectura.

Esas tablas estan fundadas en la informacion contenida en las varias listas de gacetas y periodicos que se encuentran en esta obra, y formen el primer resumen completo de las publicaciones diarísticas del mundo.

Tocando a esto se puede decir, que en algunos casos (mas notablemente con referencia al Japon y á la Australia) no ha sido posible por falta de informacion completa y conclusiva, sino de estimar las circulaciones. Respectivamente á los Estados Unidos y á la Gran Bretaña, en casos cuando no se encuentran las circulaciones en las listas, se ha cumplido el alcance en las tablas concediendo á cada una de tales publicaciones una circulacion igualando la de aquellas otras de la misma clase cuyas salidas habian sido fijadas.

WARWICK, - - - QUEENSLAND.

(Established 1867).

Is published twice a week, viz: WEDNESDAYS and SATURDAYS.

It is a good medium for advertising, as it circulates largely in the town of Warwick, on the stations and farming districts of the surrounding neighborhood and in all the southern portions of the Darling Downs.

PRICE, 20s. PER ANNUM, OR 5s. PER QUARTER.

If paid in Advance, 16s. per Annum, or 4s. per Quarter.

Advertisements inserted at a moderate cost.

COWTON & IRWIN, PROPRIETORS.

The International Newspaper Agency, H. P. HUBBARD, Proprietor, is the only authorized agent in America.

The United States of America publish a greater number of newspapers, and a greater number of dailies, than any other nation in the world. The total number of her journals of all classes is 11,207, and her dailies number 970. Germany comes nearest to her in dailies, having 863.

A WORLD OF GOOD.—One of the most popular medicines now before the American public, is Hop Bitters. You see it everywhere. People take it with good effect. It builds them up. It is not as pleasant to the taste as some other bitters, as it is not a whiskey drink. It is more like the old-fashioned bone-set tea, that has done a world of good. If you don't feel just right, try Hop Bitters.—Detroit News.

The United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland possesses but 202 daily papers, but their aggregate issue per diem is 3,981,438, and their average circulation is 19,710—nearly five times as great as that of the dailies of the United States.

We are strongly disposed to regard that person as the best physician who does most to alleviate human suffering. Judged from this standard, Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., is entitled to the front rank, for her Vegetable Compound is daily working wonderful cures in female diseases. Send for circular to the above address.

"ROUGH ON RATS."

The thing desired found at last. Ask Druggists for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, bed-bugs. 15c. boxes.

Egypt is not quite in Egyptian darkness, notwithstanding the popular impression to the contrary. She has eleven daily newspapers, and fifteen of all other kinds. Her annual out-put is 10,069,400 of copies, which are printed in Arabic, Coptic, French, English and various other languages.

The total number of daily newspapers published in the United States is 970, with a circulation per issue of 4,314,249—the average daily circulation of each journal being 4,447.

Wheat Bitters, the best and the richest blood, brain and nerve food, are not made by fermentation but by solution. Their already large sales by reputable druggists, should be a convincing proof of their merits.

Paris leads all other cities of the world, not only in the number of its daily newspapers, (182) but in the amount of its annual circulation. It publishes fourteen more dailies than are found in London, New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and Berlin, combined; and five more than are in New York, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, San Francisco, Boston, Baltimore, New Orleans, and Washington, combined.

When a medicine performs such cures as Kidney-Wort is constantly doing, it may truly be said to have wonderful power. A carpenter in Montgomery, Vermont, had suffered for eight years from the worst of kidney diseases, and had been wholly incapacitated for work. He says, "One box made a new man of me, and I sincerely believe it will restore to health all that are similarly afflicted." It is now sold in both liquid and dry form.—Danbury News.

The State of New York publishes a greater number of newspapers than are found upon all Continents south of the Equator.

Better than putting one dollar out at compound interest, is the sending it to Dr. C. W. Benson, Baltimore, Md., for two boxes of his Celery and Chamomile Pills, which cure nervous disease, quiet the mind, bring on refreshing sleep and prevent paralysis. The same amount will buy at your druggists, his well-known and popular Skin Cure, the popular and standard remedy for all Scalp and Skin diseases.

THE NORTHERN MINER, CHARTERS' TOWERS, QUEENSLAND.

A Tri-Weekly Paper specially devoted to the interests of the MINERS of NORTHERN QUEENSLAND, is published every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday morning, and circulated in the Goldfields, among all classes. Is Liberal, Progressive, Political and Cosmopolitan in its writings.
